A Source of Great Anxiety.
My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. N. H. TILDEN,
Ins. and Real Estate Agt., 49 Sears Building, Boston, Mass., June 5, 1872.

MOTHERS, READ THIS!
A Great Blessing!
WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.
Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.
My little girl is two and a half years old; and during the time I have used two consecutive nights rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and trouble for some days.
I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there, and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very late in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I feel as if I could never say enough about the VEGETINE. I feel as if I could never say enough about the VEGETINE, for the great blood purifier. It extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with the digestive organs, correcting diseased secretions, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood (carrying out its use, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted task.
VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 4c|op nrm.

Professor Isaac F. Holton.

[Springfield Republican.]

The history of the Obscure Scholar has often been written, not seldom as a labor of love by some appreciative friend, who would thus lift a modest headstone over one that very likely may have no other. These lives generally include some of the strongest elements of pathetic interest, as they drag along their weary, hope-depressing years, full of trial and aspiration, and of disappointment, also. It is pitiful to see fine mental powers and generous culture hampered and thwarted by adverse forces, perhaps, as here, for more than a full generation of years. But in the case of Professor Holton, the determining obstacle to success lay in an incapacity of communicating his affluent knowledge, for which there was no cure or help. The contrast between the powers of acquisition and the faculty of imparting was simply wonderful. This may have resulted as much from some peculiar physical infelicities, as from any special intellectual defect. If our friend's soul had alighted in a relatively complete physique, he would have been the model for a sculptor.

A graduate of Amherst college in the class of 1836, with ex-Governor Bullock, Dr. Roswell Hitchcock of New York Union Theological seminary and other eminent men, Mr. Holton first crossed the present writer's track in the summer of 1839, by tapping at the parsonage door in Rushville, Illinois, on a hot Saturday afternoon. He stood there covered with dust and sweat, a bundle of traps in his hand, on foot from the East for Quincy, Ill., sixty miles further west, to join Rev. David Nelson's Mission Institute, partly as a pupil and partly as an instructor in that backwoods seminary. That statement was his sufficient introduction and warrant for the Sunday hospitalities. But he at once revealed the curiously inquiring scholar by taking in hand a defective eye of the maid of all work with as much eagerness as though he had been a professional oculist. Monday morning he trudged on in the deep dust of that dry summer to Quincy, but left behind him the beginning of a friendship the growth of which never withered.

An intense fondness for natural science, particularly for botany, in which Dr. Asa Gray of Cambridge rated him as hardly second to any one in this country, sent him to South America on another of these foot tramps, where, for more than a year and a half, he explored sections of that country, the outcome of which was an octavo volume, published in 1857, at New York, under the title of "New Granada: Twenty Months in the Andes." This book is a prodigy of conscientious care and labor, containing, among much other subsidiary apparatus, a minutely drawn out itinerary of the entire journey. In 1848, we had found him attached to a medical school in New York, as teacher of botany, and sexton of the Houston street Presbyterian church. We recollect that he showed us a pamphlet he had lately published on the mathematics of music, a deeply profound investigation in another favorite science, the mathematical. For some years he filled the chair of chemistry at Middlebury college, Vt. His learning was various, much of it in fields and nooks quite out of the beaten paths, and all of it even painfully thorough. He pursued learning for its own sake, loving it as a man the idolized mistress of his heart.

In 1863, Prof. Holton was the pastor of a small Presbyterian church at Hillsgrove, McDoncugh county, Ill., living, and almost starving, on a little farm which he had fenced off from the prairie, the title deed of which he found to be defective, after he had spent some years in trying to improve the property, struggling also to eke out his pittance of an income by some literary labor, through the help of eastern friends and publishers; and passionately longing to get into some corner of the world of letters where his tastes and knowledge could have some congenial occupation. In that year, the writer of these memoranda had become a joint owner and editor of the Boston Recorder, having also been since its origin in 1861, an editor and proprietor of the Boston Review (afterwards the Congregational Review), a theological and literary bi-monthly. This item of news fell under the recluse scholar's eye, and inspired the first letter of a series of correspondence, from which a few extracts (on his side), will close this paper, showing the character and spirit of the man, and his restless eagerness to escape out of the obscurity which had enveloped him; yet not from vanity, for he hardly know more than the name of that weakness; but from the thirst for communion with thinking minds, and to do something more positively to guide that thinking rightly. There is another aspect of him which must not be unveiled,—the clinging kindliness of a most loving nature, which was ready to put itself, in utter self-forgetfulness, into a friend's hands for any fraternal services. These letters are full of little personal peculiarities, as the dating, for instance, of the first (and others in the same style following,) on the "116th day, 1864." After noticing the items about the Recorder already referred to, he proceeds:

"I am sorry to have lost track of you for so many years, but it is one of the inevitable incidents of living in an immense country. It would be blessed to live in some Christian Japan, where no friend could ever go more than a hundred or two miles away. * * * I am back in my own house, built ere you saw me last, as a refuge from the fickleness of men, and the severities of war that make themselves felt twice in every cup of coffee or tea. I had hoped some aid from the New York Observer here, as they paid me first $4.00 per column, and afterwards $3.00 per article; but when I got ready to write more, my first was sent back, and the reason assigned that they must retrench. I correspond with a lively little daily, the CHRONICLE, in Portsmouth, N. H., but get nothing but the invariable insertion of my articles, and their paper with two or three extra copies of such as have anything of mine in them. Much more than half of these are book notices—books sent me, books that I have bought or borrowed or examined deliberately away from home. Were it not to bore you, I would show you how I have pitched into Craig's microscope. And now, if you really are in 'Moses' seat,' in Boston, much good may you do there, and much good may it do you. No man ought to be at such a post that has not lived at the West and loved the West. You have lived not only on both sides of the Alleghanies but also of Mason & Dixon's line."

This opened the way to something more than a resumption of friendly intercourse. Under date of "1864: 131st," he wrote:

"I did not know that you had been to Europe and Asia. I wish you joy of its remembrance, and hope it is without that haunting desire to revisit, that I feel towards New Granada, where I spent two tedious, painful years and brought away about 1800 different species of plants. * * * I send an article on the Danish question that I wish might influence you to favor the right. I thought I could write it without opening a book, and find, on finishing it, I have used eight, and that without full satisfaction. Accuracy will not pay till beyond the grave. * * * I will try my hand at the Review. From all, I infer that your paper and Review are neither very friendly to the modern improvements in Congregationalism. I am a mixture of intense conservatism and radicalism. I detest change without improvement, or even with improvement in case of religious order. Previous to my going to N. Granada, I furnished a scientific resume of Norton's Library Adviser, addressed, of course, to literary non-scientific men; medicine, mechanics, mathematics, all popularized and condensed. But it costs two dollars to reduce a lecture of Prof Henry's to ten lines." .

June had come, and the prairie had to be looked after if the student-missionary would have anything for horse and children to eat:

"This starts later in the week than I had intended. I hired a hand to plough for me while I wrote, but so exhausted have I been that I found myself falling asleep and stopped. The straying of my horse has delayed my crop and puts it in danger. In the rare instances in which it has been possible to hire plowing, three dollars per day has been paid and gladly."

The pressure of unpropitious circumstances was now loosening Professor Holton from his uncongenial Western home. Under date of November 28, 1864, he wrote:

"I can almost hear the voice of Divine Providence in relation to my home here. I cannot stay without an expensive law-suit. This would interfere with my dearest plans of usefulness. I have written to Bro. [Rev. Dr. J. J.] Marks at Washington to procure me a chaplaincy in a colored regiment, a post I have long coveted, only that my orchard and home would have to be sacrificed to it. Had I trusted more to God and less to title-deeds, perhaps I should not now be stranded here. But it is hard to have no home. If I stay here another year, it will be because I have no where else to go, and it seems as if the time will be lost. But no time is really lost while we follow the Pillar of Cloud.

"I preached a Thanksgiving sermon, but it seemed as if it were a hard task to a man just rendered homeless. But I really would rather have lost all I have, than see Lincoln defeated, and with him the cause of liberty and free government.

"Perhaps had I consulted you, you could have recommended me something better than a chaplaincy, or have put me in a better way of getting it. You may not be too late yet to serve me. I felt quite sure, for some little time, that the Lord would give me the desire of my heart in the Recorder office, so completely did it seem the place for me; but it is rash to speculate on the way that God will do. I am just on an article on Motley's Dutch History, but I find it hard writing just now."

Negotiations were in progress for Mr. Holton's removal East, in accordance with his strong inclinations as above expressed, but some hindrances seemed to be quite difficult of management. It will be seen that the notices of the papers a couple of weeks ago put that removal a year too early.

"February 13, 1865. The same mail that brought your letter contained one from Prof. Asa Gray recommending me to take up this same book [Marsh's Man and Nature] as the subject of an elaborate review. This strange coincidence of conclusion of men so widely different, and who view me from standpoints so opposite, surprised me. * * * I am surprised and pleased to find it a book with a practical aim that takes so deep hold on human interests for all coming time. It is a matter that I have often reflected on when gazing from some height over the boundless primeval forests of New Granada; from the Alto del Sarjento or Cosa Perro, for instance. The same thought forces itself on those who contemplate the stupendous ruins in the sterile wastes of Edom or Trachonitis. But I have not looked beyond the eighth page of the book. I shall know more, and will do the best I can and as fast as I can."

This article, carefully examining the work of Professor Marsh,—"Man and Nature, or Physical Geography as Modified by Human Action," was published in the Boston Review for September, 1865, in 20 pp. Referring to his coming to Boston, in the same letter, and to his readiness to do almost anything, if he should succeed in accomplishing that much desired plan, as well as to the almost impossibility of doing literary work where he then was, he proproceeds, somewhat ironically:

"Perhaps I can write best 'cabined, cribbed, confined,' with three roystering little children in our one living room, writing now on the dining table, then on an atlas or melodeon, or sewing machine, taking books from their shelves in the bed-room, or from their boxes up stairs, now stopping to bring wood or water, now to discuss rails and cord wood, with my tenant, now to act as justice of the peace in my little dominion, associating only with men whose talk is of oxen, with no current literature in reach nor time for it—quite probably not. He who would try to eat a wild pine-apple from its native rock, could not judge thereby what it might become in a better soil. Neither can a man tell for himself or another, how soon or how suddenly he will run to dregs. For all these risks there is no remedy. * * * I would care little what drudgery I might be put through, if not pumped dry of thought by being made to write faster than I can think, nor required to write poetry. I dread nothing else, from soliciting advertisements at the book-stores down to washing inky type. * * * If I leave, it will not be for money so much as for work; more appropriate work. I feel like Urish in Jerusalem, orcharding here while 4,000,000 freedmen and as many poor whites are coming to light."

This intense longing for an outlet into more agreeable activities was gratified by the transfer of Mr. Holton to Boston in the summer of 1865, and his engagement upon the Recorder, which continued until its annexation to the Congregationalist, two or three years later. On the starting of the Daily News he was retained as one of the editors and was hard at work as ever upon its columns and other literary and scientific tasks, when death surprised him, apparently in his usual health. Forty-eight hours before that event, while his prospect would seem to have been good for many more years, he is reported to have written a paper containing his wishes as to the post mortem disposition of his body. What that disposal was has not transpired, to our knowledge. His age was sixty-one. Very many friends will long remember him, both for his eccentricities and his genuine worth. He was a singularly childlike Christian, and a tireless devotee of sound knowledge. J. T. T.

The Grangers in the House.

The Washington correspondent of the Advertiser says the resolution of Mr. Smith of Ohio (introduced in the House of Representatives on Monday) upon the subject of asserting the government power to control railroads crossing State lines and engaged in commerce between States is the first test vote had in the House upon any of the issues raised by the grangers. It was understood on both sides of the House to be such a test, and the democrats, with a very few republicans, at once attempted by motions to adjourn to avoid a vote. But all attempts to dodge the question or delay present action were voted down by a nearly unanimous republican vote, and the resolution was finally agreed to by an almost strictly party vote. Unless the democracy are enabled to do something to neutralize the effect of the day's work it is agreed on all hands that there cannot in the future be much in common between themselves and the grangers, while the republicans thus far have not opposed them in any of their main ideas.

Getting on Trains.

The fatal railroad accident at Dover on Friday last, by which Mr. William Preston lost his life, should be a warning against attempting to get on a train when in motion. The writer of this tried the experiment a year ago, and will never try it again; once is enough for him. The trouble is that although you may succeed in getting both hands upon the rail, you lose your feet and are perfectly helpless so far as getting on to the train is concerned. Nothing but a thoroughly trained gymnast can draw his body up on a train with his hands alone. You must have your feet on some solid foundation to give the body sufficient propulsion to send it aboard; and having once lost your legs clinging to a railroad train, you can never regain them, and must either have help or go under the train as did Mr. Preston on Friday.

Moral—Never attempt to get on a train when in motion. You may possibly succeed, but there is a chance for failure which you cannot afford to take,—that is, if your life is of any value to the world or anybody in it. TRAVELLER.

Shall Savings Banks be Despoilers?

[Cor. Portland Pre ss.]

The Savings Banks of Maine have invested outside the State, the earnings of the laborers of the State, to an amount equaling the capital stock of the Companies engaged in the manufacture of cotton and wool in the State. They have made themselves the instruments of gathering up, little by little, from all parts of the Commonwealth, the surplus profits of industry, and sending them abroad to stimulate the activities and enlarge the productive capacities of other sections of the country. Of the total sum thus discharged from the State, nearly $8,000,000 have been sent beyond the limits of New England, far the greater part invested in Western bonds. These bonds, or rather one class of them, those issued by Railroads, as you recently showed, now stand, in the aggregate, dishonored by non-payment of interest, to the amount of $341,500,000, and not worth accordingly over fifty cents in the hundred of their nominal value.

They are, as a class, doubtful securities. Not a dollar of savings banks funds should have been put into them. Some of them of course are good. Private capitalists who handle their own money, who can take time and trouble to investigate, may properly enough invest in them. Depositors in our Savings Institutions are not so much concerned whether one-half or one per cent. of tax is levied upon their savings, as that the dispersion of these savings all over the country in debateable securities shall be peremptorily prohibited. The withdrawal of eight or ten millions of live capital from the State, signifies the same with reference to industrial progress, as if the great manufacturing concerns above alluded to were stricken out of being. Savings Banks ought to have no hand in any such work of spoliation and exhaustion, nor run the risk of great and fatal losses in the strife to obtain a higher rate of interest.

Readables.

A sophomore says he cannot understand how any one possessing what is generally known as a conscience can counterfeit a five-cent piece, and put on the back of it "In God we trust."

A glycerine factory in Whitehall, N. Y., exploded Monday, killing two men.

A Boston man was cursing an editor the other day when he fell dead. Several similar instances have been lately reported. Men should be careful in speaking of anything sacred.

Jerry Varrilt, a Frenchman, was run over on Saturday by a locomotive near Haverhill, Mass., and died soon after the accident. He was about 32 years old.

A pond two acres in extent has just been discovered on the top of a mountain in Glastenbury, Vt. The old people say that it was discovered before, years ago, by two men who had some wonderful trout-fishing there, but were never able to find it a second time.

Joshua C. Piper, a prominent milkman of Worcester, Mass., has been fined $50 and costs for having in his possession milk adulterated with water and carbonate. He appealed on the ground that the statute under which the complaint was made is unconstitutional.

The house of J. B. Severy of Farmington, Me., was badly injured a few days since by the explosion of a bottle of horse liniment.

A school case has just been decided by the supreme court sitting at Ellsworth, Me. A young lady, visiting her friends in a certain district in which she did not belong, attended school in that district. The agent and others objected to this as a violation of the rules of the district, and their objections resulted in compelling the girl to leave the school. Not being satisfied with this they brought the case to court, and it has been decided in favor of the young lady. The judge took the ground that it was a just interpretation of the law that scholars should have a right to attend school somewhere—that children moving with their parents into another district would thereby lose the privilege of attending their old school, and it would be hard to debar them on this account from the school privileges of the district to which they had removed.

The small-pox is making sad ravages in South Windham, Conn., over forty persons suffering from it still. The disease was spread in the following manner: A child was brought from Mystic, sick with the disease; a consultation of doctors was called without its discovery; the child died, and a public funeral was held and largely attended. The doctor first called is reported to have since taken the disease and died.

Daniel Powers, a boy 11 years old, shot William White, 13, with a musket, while the two were hunting rats in a barn at Hartford, Conn., on Saturday. The charge made a bad wound in the left shoulder, and tore away a part of the cheek, but the boy will recover. Powers, being terribly frightened, at once fled, and has not yet been captured.

From $500,000 to $750,000 is what is missing from the collected taxes of Brooklyn, N. Y.

W. D. Coleman, clerk of public works in Richmond, Va., has proved a heavy defaulter, and upon his detection he endeavored to commit suicide, inflicting injuries on himself which may prove fatal.

A bill has passed the New Jersey Senate appropriating $100,000 for the centennial celebration.

Two men employed in a rolling mill in Allentown, Pa., were smothered to death while engaged at the bottom of a well.

In the suit of Mrs. Putnam, widow of Avery D. Putnam, who was killed by Foster with a car hook on a Broadway and Seventh avenue car, against the railroad company, in which she got a verdict of $5000 against the railroad in the superior court and which was sustained by the general term, the court of appeals has reversed the judgment, holding that the company was not responsible, as, although Foster was intoxicated, Mr. Putnam did not ask the conductor to remove him, but to keep him quiet, which he did, and no passenger asked the conductor to remove Foster.

Victor Vaudis, the father of two little girls who do daring trapeze acts at the Boston Theatre, in response to a correspondent, who deprecated the depraved taste that could admire acts involving so much torture to the children, writes to the Advertiser that these two children are all that he has left of five, and that they would not be alive but for the physical training by which they were prepared for the stage, as they were delicate and puny, but are now vigorous, healthy, and delight in the trapeze.

Thomas Young of Manchester, who was out hunting, Saturday, received the charge of a gun in the hands of a companion, and had his leg amputated soon afterwards in consequence. The shooting was purely accidental.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is so unauthorized, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and abused by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known legitimate establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have made its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

SMITH'S ACADEMY

—AND—

Commercial College

FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 51 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful as it is satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; cools the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for the intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, so quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.

Laconics.

The fishing fleet have been unfortunate for the last two weeks, in not having weather suitable for fishing. The prices of fish have ranged higher than at any time this winter, cod selling for four dollars and haddock for four dollars and fifty cents per hundred pounds. The last two days they have made good catches.

Councilman William Preston, of Dover, who was killed by the cars on Friday night, was buried from the Episcopal church in that place on Sunday afternoon. The city government and fire department attended in a body.

The Secretary of the S. P. C. A. on Tuesday arrested two men belonging to Newmarket for driving horses that were poor and weak and not in a condition to work; after explaining the law to them, as they professed to be ignorant of the statutes on cruelty to animals, they were let off with the promise that they would dispose of the animals as soon as they got home.

A young man was arrested Tuesday for being drunk,—not from rum but from eating opium. He was deranged and not safe to be at large.

Prof. Nathaniel M. Pierce, "psychometrist and life reader," was in town on Monday, perfecting arrangements for making a public address.

A correspondent at York writes: "Our new town hall is to be dedicated on the twenty-third, Washington's birthday being on Sunday. A band of music is engaged for the occasion, a good supper, oysters, etc., will be provided, and a right jolly good time is expected."

Patents have been granted J. C. Tiffany, of this city, for a gasometer, or gas-holder; also for a nut and bolt fastening.

Howard Langrishe & Carle's "Black Crook" company will appear at the Temple on Monday and Tuesday evenings, Feb. 16 and 17, in "The Magic Talisman," a play said to be much superior to the one first named. The company is a very large one, rooms for forty performers having been taken at the Franklin House; and the press in other cities speaks very favorably of the show. See advertisement.

A Coincidence.

On Sunday last, Rev. R. H. Kimball of York selected for his morning sermon a text from the 21st chap. St. John, 22d and 23d verses: "What is that to thee? Follow thou me." On the afternoon of the same day in this city, Rev. W. H. Alden preached an eloquent discourse from the same text.

An Interesting Reminiscence.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

If speaker Blaine of the United States house of representatives insists upon his right to know what a member will do when he gets the floor before he will grant him the privilege of the same, then the only remedy will be to cheat and deceive him. We know of a memorable instance in point which has never yet been made public, but which in its result had a great effect upon the destiny of the country. It occurred at the Charleston democratic convention of 1860, which was the immediate forerunner of the threatened disolution of the Union. Caleb Cushing was president of that convention. He was elected by and was thoroughly in the interests of the South and the extreme men of the North, who were opposed to the nomination of Stephen A. Douglas, popular choice for President of the United States. The fight against Douglas was made upon the slavery part of the platform, which was to be adopted before any presidential nomination was made. The convention, though close, contained a small majority of Mr. Douglas's friends. They could adopt their platform if they could get a vote upon it. But how to do so was the point. Cushing would not give any man the floor whom he suspected of an intention to move the previous question. Thus the debate went on altogether upon one side, and the convention bid fair to last for weeks, if not for months. The funds of many northern men were giving out, western whiskey was exhausted, and there were reports of the yellow fever having made its appearance. Things looked desperate, when all was saved by the tact of a distinguished member of the Ohio delegation. He went to the late C. L. Vallandigham, also a member, and who was on the most intimate terms with Cushing. Said he: "Val, can't you get the floor for my friend Governor King of Missouri, who has been endeavoring for a long time to attract Cushing's attention to his seat?" "What does what he want with it?" says Mr. Vallandigham. "Why, they have, I believe, a little difficulty in the delegation as to how the vote shall be cast, and they want Mr. Cushing to settle it." This was true. "All right," says Val; "I will see Cushing." See him he did, and when our friend saw Mr. Vallandigham nod his head in assent, he proceeded to the Missouri seats and informed Governor King that as soon as the man who then had the floor sat down the President would recognize him, but he must be quick on his pins. Governor King arose, explained his difficulty, was answered by Cushing, when lo! to the consternation of the South and their northern allies, he moved the previous question on the platform. The delegates from the Northwest rose in one mass and vociferously seconded the motion of the gentleman from Missouri. Cushing, one of the very best parliamentarians in the country, saw he was floored, and when the confusion subsided he had to put the question, which the Douglas men carried, and the fight was over. Then came the secession of the southern delegates, who left the convention in the precise order they did the Union after the election of Lincoln—South Carolina leading off, closely followed by Mississippi and the remainder of the cotton States. But for this deception of Cushing, Mr. Douglas would not have been nominated, and there would have been a compromise candidate, who might have kept the democratic party North and South intact, and defeated Lincoln, and so averted the war.

"Washing on Outside and Inside."

They recall, who have ever heard them, Saulsbury and McDougall together, the latter defining in a wild, illustrated, poetic way, the word government, law or sovereign, pouring upon it the wealth of his vagrant readings, making a mere definition gorgeous by his endowments of color, light, and sentiment. Then Saulsbury, shutting one eye to see him fairly, would say with ludicrous pity:

'McDougall, you're the brightest intellect in the American Senate!'

Clutching Saulsbury with the grasp of a vice, and speaking to him in a manlin way, falls to weeping, and McDougall, imagining himself called upon in this case to utter a mild reproach, would construct a garment of sanctity for himself:

'I burn the lamp early and late,' said McDougall. The rising sun sees me up already laboring with the muse of Homer. [Sob from Saulsbury.] I reach down the Koran at sunrise and read myself a sublime lesson, pilfered it is true, from the benignant Brahma, but little altered except in the vernacular. At 8 o'clock, like Socrates, I breakfast upon a fig and a cake of oatmeal. Wine never crosses these lips. Till 10 o'clock I roam in my garden, communing with the mighty Master of the Sadducees.' [Sob from Saulsbury.]

Enter the bar-keepers with the drinks and the airy castle dissolves.

—It is said that before slates were invented people multiplied on the face of the earth.

—It is said that all newspaper offices in Kansas have two pair of stairs, one for the editor to go down, while the visitor is ascending the other.

—A New York firm have in their store a piece of lace five yards long worth $1200 a yard, which a man could crowd into his watch-fob or pocket-book.

—A bright little girl of New Bedford, not long since, was urging her mother to go up stairs and hear her say her prayers before retiring. Her mother, not finding it convenient, told her that Jesus could hear them just as well. "But, mother," responded the little cooper, "Jesus can't turn well the gas."

Health's Shield and Protection.

Health is universally admitted to be the most desirable of earthly blessings, yet it is jeopardied so recklessly as if it were of no value at all. Thousands who are compelled by their occupations and pursuits to breathe unwholesome air, to expose themselves to violent alternations of heat and cold, and to brave other evils inimical to health and life utterly neglect to invigorate themselves against disease which surround them by a proper course of tonic treatment. For many years it has been a public fact, unheeded even by the mart nets of the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best antidote to malaria and the finest acclimating medicine in existence. In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames; while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and all kindred complaints it is confessedly without a rival.

The happiest discovery of the age. ANAKESIS, an infallible cure for PILES, a scientific combination or poultice instrument and medicine, endorsed by physicians of all schools, discovered by Dr STEARNS, a regular physician, and used successfully in thousands of cases. Sufferers who have tried everything else in vain will find instant relief and permanent cure. It is regarded by medical men as the greatest of modern discoveries, and pronounced infallible. Price $1.50. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept accessible, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Obscure Diseases, no matter how they originate, and without regard to the sex of the sufferer, are cured without danger or inconvenience by Helmbold's Extract Buchu, the great Diuretic, which acts specifically upon the Kidneys, Bladder an auxiliary organ. No other preparation possesses the fully developed merits of Helmbold's Extract. It is the only genuine Buchu, and it never fails. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent. Sold by all druggists.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. 7os

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

R. H. EDDY SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. This is unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above fuel, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

About Monuments.

[Cleveland Herald.]

Henry Keep's widow has recently married Judge Shelley, of Georgia. Henry Keep will be remembered as the nabob of the New York Central railroad. Mr. Keep died some four years ago. Few women have felt their sudden widowhood so keenly as did Mrs. Keep. She felt so badly that she ordered a $100,000 monument from Italy, to grace Henry's grave in the Watertown, N. Y., cemetery. A remarkable feature of the monument is thus described: At its base is a room several feet square, enclosed in glass, and within the room, bending over the tomb, are the life-size figures of Mrs. Keep and daughter, carved in the marble, each being an exact likeness of the original. The attitudes are those of the most intense grief, and their countenances bespeak that their hearts cannot be consoled." Jes so! And hereby hangs a suggestion:—It is nonsense to suppose that the monument is to be dropped out of the late Mrs. Henry Keep's attention and regard just because she has become Mrs. Judge Shelley. As the Judge probably loves statuary, the Keep memorial will stand as a convenient excuse for taking a run north every summer to exchange the heated air of Georgia for the invigorating breezes of Watertown, which is a charming place of resort. The Judge will have lots of fun running out to that splendid example of Italian art and seeing how sad his wife can look over a planted help-meet. But it will make him careful of his health!

—Wiggles of Boston, has a bad cough; but still he wants to go to the opera. Being a moderately sensitive man he objects to disturbing the performance, and this is the way he manages it. He watches the trombone players, and when he perceives them getting ready for a blast, he gets off a series of coughs like the bursting of a dozen bombshells. Little does that trombone player know that he is accompanying a man for he never intends to accompany any one, on or off the stage. Wiggles makes a mistake sometimes, and goes off in a fit with the flute—which isn't quite so successful a duet. He calls his performance with the trombone the music of the future.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public solely on the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signatures of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old; I had all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt continually as though I should have a severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad was it when they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

A Source of Great Anxiety.
My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. N. H. TILDEN,

MOTHERS, READ THIS!
A Great Blessing!
WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.
Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? Can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.
My little girl is two and a half years old; and during that time I have not had two consecutive nights' rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and trouble for some days.
I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there; and now she sleeps sweetly with her bedfellow until every inch in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I often say, the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar a drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing.
MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,
175 Tudor street.
South Boston, July 10, 1871.

Circulation of the Blood.
The circulation of the blood is the life of the body, and its stoppage is death. We are healthy when the blood circulates freely; any interruption preventing its free course is the commencement of disease. "Blood is the life of the flesh." Can we expect to enjoy good health when bad or corrupt humors circulate with the blood, causing pain and disease; and these humors being deposited through the entire body, produce pimples, eruptions, ulcers, indigestion, costiveness, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and numerous other complaints? No disease can be in the body without first being generated in the blood; and no disease can possibly be in the body if the blood is pure. It is of great importance to know what medicine will purify and renovate the blood, eradicate the disease, renew vitality, mentally and physically, and instil fresh vigor into all the vital functions of the body. This medicine is the VEGETINE, the great blood purifier.
It extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with its foundation; correcting disordered action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted task.
VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is very pleasant to take; even a child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 40rsp nrm.

A Disease-Destroying Tree.

[Medical Times and Gazette.]

M. Gimbert, who has been long engaged in collecting evidence concerning the Australian tree, Eucalyptus globulus, the growth of which is surprisingly rapid, attaining, besides, gigantic dimensions, has addressed an interesting communication to the Academy of Sciences. This plant, it now appears, possesses an extraordinary power of destroying miasmatic influence in fever-stricken districts. It has the singular property of absorbing ten times its weight of water from the soil, and of emitting antiseptic camphorous effluvia. When sown in marshy ground, it will dry it up in a very short time. The English were the first to try it at the Cape, and within two or three years they completely changed the climatic condition of the unhealthy parts of the colony. A few years later, its plantation was undertaken on a large scale in various parts of Algeria. At Pardock, twenty miles from Algiers, a farm situated on the banks of the Hamyze was noted for its extremely pestilential air. In the spring of 1867, about 13,000 of the eucalyptus were planted there. In July of the same year—the time when the fever-season used to set in—not a single case occurred; yet the trees were not more than nine feet high. Since then, complete immunity from fever has been maintained. In the neighborhood of Constantine, the farm of Ben Machydlin was equally in bad repute. It was covered with marshes both in winter and summer. In five years, the whole ground was dried up by 14,000 of these trees, and farmers and children enjoy excellent health. At the factory of the Gue de Constantine, in three years a plantation of eucalyptus has transformed twelve acres of marshy soil into a magnificent park, whence fever has completely disappeared. In the island of Cuba, this and all other paludal diseases are fast disappearing from all the unhealthy districts where this tree has been introduced. A station-house at one of the ends of a railway viaduct in the department of the Var was so pestilential that the officials could not be kept there longer than a year. Forty of these trees were planted, and it is now as healthy as any other place on the line. We have no information as to whether this beneficent tree will grow in other than hot climates. We hope that experiments will be made to determine this point. It would be a good thing to introduce it on the west coast of Africa.

Ignis Fatuus Lake.

Says a Vermont exchange: "A body of water said to cover an area of two acres or more, has just been discovered on the top of one of the mountains in Glastenbury. Some of the oldest inhabitants say that many years ago it was known to be there and was called 'Lost Pond,' and that one day Stephen Pratt, then of Bennington, Vt., and two other gentlemen were roaming about in the then seemingly interminable forests, trapping. Happening to have hooks and lines in their pockets they determined to see if there wasn't some trout in the small brook which they came across. After getting everything in readiness they threw their hooks into the little brook, and to their amazement, as they afterward expressed it themselves, 'it was filled with trout!' They fished along up the stream a few rods, and to their utter astonishment, came to the pond above mentioned. There they said the 'trout took hold too fast for sport!' They caught more than they could bring home through the woods, and were obliged to leave some, but with a determination that they would visit the pond the next day. After a long march they finally reached the road to town, where they had left their team, but greatly fatigued. They travelled all the next day, but could not find the pond, and it has not been discovered until now."

Trapped Like A Rat.

A burglar in Greensburg, Pa., was recently caught in a remarkable manner. Breaking into a closed and unoccupied office of a physician of that town, the burglar opened a closet (while his companion with a dark lantern was in another part of the room) and feeling for clothing at about the height of closet hooks generally, got his hands between the jaws of a skeleton, which being adjusted with a coil spring and kept open with a thread, closed suddenly on the intruding hand by the breaking of the thread. A sudden thought striking the burglar of his being caught by a skeleton in the doctor's closet so terrified him that he uttered a faint shriek, and when his companion turned the lantern toward him and he beheld himself in the grim and ghastly jaws of Death himself he became so overpowered by fear that he fainted, fell insensible to the floor, pulling the skeleton down upon him, and making so much noise that his companion fled immediately, and the doctor, alarmed at the noise and confusion, hastened into the office and secured the terror-stricken burglar, still held by the skeleton.

Lord Byron's Sword.

The Chicago Tribune has recently been reviving some stirring memories. It speaks of the latest vicissitude of fortune undergone by the sword which Byron wore at Missolonghi, and which is now in Chicago. There it narrowly escaped destruction in the great fire, and was one of the only four things saved by the lady who owned it—herself, a small box of plate, a shawl which she threw over her head, and the historic sword. She is a descendant of the late Colonel Jonathan Miller of Montpelier, Vermont, who, in the heat of youthful enthusiasm for classical and Christian Greece oppressed by the barbarian Mussulmen, left his studies in college to go out with the well-known Doctor S. G. Howe of Boston. Byron gave the sword to a native Greek officer who fell in the action where Marco Bozzaris also lost his life, and it was found knotted to his wrist as he lay dead on the field of battle. The heirs of this officer sold it to Mr. Miller, who brought it to this country, and with it, by the bye, two sons of a Madame Miltiades, who asserted herself to be a direct descendant of the Miltiades who commanded at Marathon. Both these young gentlemen in due time became, and as we make out the story still are, citizens of the United States and legal voters.

Colonel Miller is said to have used his sword to some purpose in the last and great siege of Missolonghi, when, the Turkish commander having battered the town into a heap of ruins, the defenders accomplished a most desperate feat. Placing their women and children in the middle of a dense column of the garrison, they cut their way through the Turkish camp to the mountains, and to the number of two thousand escaped. Among these was Colonel Miller. This was at midnight of April 22, 1826. When on the following day the Turks entered the town, they found the sick, the wounded, and such others of the inhabitants as were for any reason incapacitated for the forced march and the fight, gathered together in an old mill, which when a large number of the enemy had entered it, was blown into the air by its defenders.

The Boston school committee has voted, 67 to 35, not to recede from its action declaring vacant the seats of certain ladies chosen by the people to seats on the board. This is not the first time Mrs. Partington has tried to sweep back the Atlantic with a broom, so her action excites no wonder. But how in the world did the Bostonians manage to pick up 67 mules to put on their school committee?

British Columbia has a political crisis, and the people have used force to break up a sitting of the ministry. The teapot is much disturbed by the storm.

Henry, the defaulting clerk in the Lynchburg internal revenue office, was arrested at Kanawha Falls, West Virginia. The prisoner is to be returned to Lynchburg for trial.

The English elections continue favorable to the conservatives. There has been much rioting.—enough had it occurred at a Presidential election in this country, to have set our English cousins to loudly lamenting over the failure of republican institutions.

A heavy gale in the Baltic sea caused partial inundations of Kiel and Swinemunde, but the storm has abated and the waters are subsiding.

Johnson Rourke, aged 17 years, engaged to Elizabeth Lloyd, both living in Salem county, N. J., becoming madly jealous of her at a party last week, early left for home. As she, accompanied by two gentlemen, was returning later in a carriage, a pistol bullet from a copse penetrated her back, lodging in her left lung and will probably cause her death. Rourke was arrested, but maintains that his pistol accidentally went off.

When a Philadelphia paper states that "such scenes must long linger lovingly in the memories of all who saw them, for with Youth at the helm, and Pleasure at the prow, the gondola of Enjoyment swept swiftly along on the azure sea of Hope," it means a public ball.

A Bourbon paper says that "most of the brains of the republican party came out of the democratic ranks." We knew the latter party had lost them, but this is the first confession of the fact, so far as we have remarked.

The gross earnings of the Union Pacific Railroad for 1873 were $10,216,103 06; expenses of operation, $5,047,212 36; leaving as net earnings, $5,222,891.30. The annual interest on all the bonds of the company is $1,632,780, gold, and $1,544,500 currency.

It is reported that pensions have been paid to thousands who are not entitled to them, and investigations are to be made.

A quarrelsome couple were discussing the subject of epitaphs and tombstones, and the husband said: "My dear, what kind of a stone do you suppose they will give me when I die?" "Brimestone, my love," was the affectionate reply.

C. S. Wait, of Westfield, Mass., had been bald for years said years. Two months ago he was burned almost to death, his head being shockingly crisped. A new scalp has grown, and from it hair grows luxuriantly. Bald men who read this will know what to do now.

James L. Lowell was put on trial at Lewiston, Me., on the 10th, for the murder of his wife, Lizzie Lowell, on the 12th of June, 1870. It may be remembered that this is the somewhat romantic case which was brought to light by the discovery of a headless skeleton in the woods, about three miles from Lewiston, in October last. The evidence so far is very damaging to Lowell's prospects of getting clear of the charge.

The Danbury News says "there is a most ingenious marshal in Flushing, L. I., a gentleman who is remarkable for the success of his little games on people. Just before New Year's, a little girl gave him two dollars to get her a pair of gloves in New York, for a present. The Flushing marshal got the gloves for a dollar and a quarter, told the little girl they cost one dollar and three quarters, gave her a quarter change, put the half dollar in his pocket and nearly chuckled himself into a case of genuine apoplexy over the success of his operation. New Year's morning his wife presented him with a pair of gloves, and explained how she had secretly arranged for their purchase with a little girl. The Flushing marshal put the gloves in his pocket, smiled lightly, and narrowly escaped fainting dead away. We purposely avoided bringing out this hero until President Grant had secured his Chief-Justice."

State News.

Five firemen and five engineers have been discharged on the Boston & Lowell Railroad on account of their conduct in connection with "the smash up" at Tyngsborough during the late snow storm.

The dwelling house of G. F. Locke, at Barrington, was burned on the 5th. Loss, $1000.

At one haul Horace J. Willey of Stratham caught 110 lbs. of bass.

The story of the Newmarket sick man who vomited up a bloodsucker and got well turns out thus: He had been sick with what was called cancer in the stomach. He vomited up clotted blood which resembled a bloodsucker, and is dead.

John Boyle, of Salmon Falls, an employe in a mill, got his right hand into the cotton picker gearing and had it completely crushed, so that it had to be amputated at the wrist. He was engaged cleaning the machine while it was running.

At a festival at South Danbury, recently, tableaux were among the attractions offered. As the curtain rose upon one of them entitled "A Marriage Scene," the audience was not long in discovering that an actual wedding was taking place upon the stage before them, the parties being residents of that town.

Oliver Gay, of Manchester, closed a contract with the city of Lawrence recently, to furnish the stone work for the new reservoir and water works in that city, requiring 275,000 cubic feet of cut granite, at a cost of $75,000. Gen. Natt Head is to furnish 3,000,000 bricks for the same works.

Charles Rust was painfully hurt in Dover on the 4th by being thrown from a snow plough against a tree. A small child of Michael Morton of Nashua fell into a pail of hot water on the 9th, and was horribly scalded, so that its death was likely to ensue. The mother of Hon. E. H. Rollins fell at her home in Rollinsford on Friday, and badly fractured her hip. Emmett R. Chamberlain was thrown from a load of hay in Nashua on Monday, and had one leg broken.

On the 9th inst. Mrs. Emery Wright of West Swansey was overturned from a sleigh while on the way to church to attend the funeral of a neighbor, and received injuries from which she died an hour later. Her age was sixty years.

A Colonial Parliament.

[Cor. Melbourne (Victoria) Telegraph.]

I will now introduce you, and I am convinced you will be astonished when I point out to you all the comfort and luxury which is to be found in this great house, in whose halls all those wise men assemble who are elected by the people to sit in conclave and to decide over the colony's destiny. You see the Hall of Assembly is surrounded by snug little rooms, which seems to be created merely for the laudable purpose to indulge therein in a game of whist, or any other game of a more excitable nature. Behind these rooms we find a magnificently furnished billiard-room, where two excellent billiard boards invite members to a common game or general and devil's pool. Leaving the billiard-room, we enter by a certain door into the refreshing saloon of the House, which in comfort and spread-out luxuries ranks with one of a first-class hotel. Seeing all this, you understand now, dear reader, what is the meaning of Mr. N. N., when he draws the attention of the Speaker to the fact that there is no quorum present In such a case the well-known bell is rung, and then the billiard-players mark down how their game stands; the whist-players put down their cards; the gentlemen lounging in the refreshment saloon empty their glasses and swallow their tit-bits; and all rush into the Assembly Hall to do all their duty by listening for a short while to a debate, or by voting as they think proper; whereupon one after the other returns to his former interrupted occupation.

As the majority of the members are excellent billiard and whist players, none of my attentive readers will be astonished when I inform them that a great number of the hon. members pass their time from morning till late in the night on the premises of the House. I am also enabled to state the reason why a billiard-room has been fitted up. Formerly it was reported that some of the gentlemen had occupied too much of their valuable time inside of the refreshment-room, and scandal was busy to state that many of them made their appearance in a somewhat dubious state of equilibrium when they returned to the hall where their presence was necessary. To keep these gentlemen sober, some clever genius proposed the purchase of a billiard-table as a proper conductor, and the arrangement found so much favor in the eyes of the harassed legislators that a second table very soon followed the first one; and now the talk goes that a third one shall be added.

The genuine members of our Parliament—so people say at least—make their appearance already early in the morning at the House. There they peruse all the newspapers of the colony, kept and laid out for their private use. The papers finished, they gossip a little with each other, or write their business letters with material belonging to the State, to send them ultimately by a Government servant to the post, where they are received free of cost. After the performance of this hard labor, a few hours are devoted to the indulgence of sundry little games, and after this innocent pastime follows a sumptuous lunch in the refreshment-room, where the bill of fare is a far cheaper one than anywhere else, as the Government caterer is compelled to supply everything at a fixed price. The lunch over, a siesta follows in the smoking-room, a stroll through Collins-street, or a couple of visits, &c., till at last the time arrives appointed for the sitting of the House. Returned to Parliamentary duty, they amuse themselves again by listening, or not listening, to a debate; by passing a few, or no remarks at all; by refreshing themselves at intervals, or by indulging in a game of billiards, whist, or any other game; and in such a manner the day has been very agreeably spent. Such are the promoters of the Permissive Bill, and such the men who have issued a stern law against the innocent game of Chinese fan-tan. Verily, to subdue immorality amongst the lower classes it becomes an absolute necessity to commence with the reform of the upper ten, who, according to the above version, give their poorer brethren a very bad example.

—"Some of these fine days," placidly observes the Richmond Enquirer, "judge, jury, reporters and spectators of the hustings court will wake up in the basement of the city hall, under about 14,000,000 pounds of brick and mortar!"

Health's Shield and Protection.

Health is universally adumitted to be the most desirable of earthly blessings, yet it is jeopardied as recklessly as if it were of no value at all. Thousands who are compelled by their occupations and pursuits to breathe unwholesome air, to expose themselves to violent alternations of heat and cold, and to brave other evils inimical to health and life utterly neglect to fortify themselves against the dangers which surround them by a proper course of tonic treatment. For many years it has been a public fact, undeniel even by the martinets of the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best antidote to malaria and the finest acclimating medicine in existence. In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alternative has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames; while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and all kindred complaints it is confessedly without a rival.

The happiest discovery of the age. ANAKESIS, an infallible cure for PILES, a scientific combination of poultice instrument and medicine, endorsed by physicians of all schools, discovered by DR. SILSBEE, a regular physician, and used successfully in thousands of cases. Sufferers who have tried everything else in vain will find instant relief and permanent cure. It is regarded by medical men as the greatest of modern discoveries, and pronounced infallible. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Obscure Diseases, no matter how they originate, and without regard to the sex of the sufferer, are cured without danger or inconvenience by Helmbold's Extract Buchu, the great Diuretic, which acts specifically upon the Kidneys, Bladder an auxiliary organ. No other preparation possesses the fully developed merits of Helmbold's Extract. It is the only genuine Buchu, and it never fails. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent. Sold by all druggists.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness," and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. 708

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by selling under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

A Perilous Experiment. To leave a cough or cold to "get well of itself." The chances are that it will get worse. Meet it promptly with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar. The remedy is palatable and prevents all danger. A few drops and the cure is complete. Crittenton's, 7 6th Avenue. Sold by all Druggists.

Piles, Piles, Piles, Piles.

Outward applications are time and money thrown away. The only permanent cure is Dr. Harrison's Purgative Lozenges. They strike at the cause. We could fill this page wit cures. They are pleasant, never gripe, nor, like all pills, do they require increase of dose. For elderly persons, females and children, and all others, they are exactly suited to obviate Costiveness, the prolific cause of ill health. Trial box, 30 cts. —There is small hope for female suffrage in Germany. Prince Bismark's newspaper organ warns electors against allowing their wives to influence them in casting their votes, and is so ungallant, not to say so untruthful, as to add, "All the qualities of woman are made to disturb and bewilder the factors of political life, and to bring misfortune on the affairs of man."

Board of Trade Jamboree.

The boards of trade of Portsmouth and Dover signalized the completion of the road between the two cities by visiting Boston in a body on Tuesday. In this they were joined by the respective city governments. The train arrived in Boston at 10:40 A. M., when a procession was formed, and they marched to the Merchants' Exchange, where they were received by the executive committee of the Boston board of trade. They were presented by Colonel C. G. Atwood, and Mr. John W. Candler welcomed the visiting gentlemen mostheartily. Mayor Marvin replied assuring the Boston board that their cordial and hearty welcome found a ready response in the hearts of the visitors, and that they would gladly return the courtesy. They of Portsmouth and Dover were as proud of Boston as though they were born there. They had come to celebrate the opening of a new road beginning in Dover and ending in Boston. In fact it was not the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad, but the Dover and Boston Railroad. They heartily and cordially accepted the courtesies of the Boston board, and were glad to be with them on the occasion. The party then inspected the rooms of the board. At half-past two the visitors assembled at the American House and sat down to a most substantial dinner, After the good things were discussed Hon. Frank Jones congratulated them on the completion of the road. Mayor Marvin followed, with historical remarks concerning the inception and completion of the enterprise. Dr. Levi J. Hill of Dover, Rev. Carlos Martyn of Portsmouth, Colonel A. H. Young of Dover, Mr. Williams of Salem, Rev. Thomas W. Brown of Dover and others made speeches, and at a quarter to five o'clock most of the visitors left for home.

Laconics.

The regular weekly Assembly of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, will be given in Mechanics' Hall this evening. Harlow's Band furnishes the music, and those who attend these dances always manage to have a good time.

Rev. Dr. Bolles' illustrated lecture on the microscope and its wonders, in the Universalist church on Tuesday evening, drew only a fair audience when it merited a crowded house. Dr. Bolles is a good lecturer, and is master of his subject. He held the attention of his auditors closely to the end, and instructed as well as amused them by his illustrations—the straddlebug whose home is a drop of water being an object of intense interest. [We suppose the lecturer brought the drop of water he used from Salem, as he probably could not have got a drop here, in the present state of the water supply.] One reason for the smallness of the attendance was doubtless the excursion of the Board of Trade and City government to Boston.

Schooner Z. Star, of and from St. John for Boston, went ashore on Jerry's Point near midnight, Tuesday, and floated off with the flood tide. She is bilged, and when the captain came to the city for assistance she was nearly full of water, which was still gaining on the crew. She is loaded with fresh herring.

The Times reports that a fellow has twice attempted to break into the schooner T. J. Trafton, laid up for the winter at the North End. The mate of the schooner frustrated both attempts, and proposes to use the thief for a target next time he comes. All right, if the mate only shoots true.

Dancing.

There can be no doubt that dancing is the most thoroughly delightful, and enjoyable amusement in the world. I did intend to dissent from this opinion; but minority reports are always unpopular, and I hasten to fall in with the popular current, in considering this question, as readily as in matters of bread and butter. I do not dance, personally; I have friends who do, however, and as they dance so much more than their necessities of simple exercise require, I assume that they are dancing for those who do not; e. g.,—myself. Therefore, I dance by proxy. To obtain an elevated idea of the Terpsichorean art one should view it from above, that is to say, a birds-eye-view; for in such position the entire "floor" is within the scope of the observer's vision, enabling him to note the apparently harmonious movement of the whole party, as well as the cheerful idiosyncrasies of individuals. Before taking position, it is well to hover round the entrance to the Hall, to witness the arrivals. Other hoverers are there also, with no other duty than to observe and remark upon the figures who pass in at the door. Carriage after carriage discharges its burdens of silk-gauze, tarleton, and what-not; and anxious cavaliers in solemn black are intent on a careful delivery of bunchy objects of no particular color or shape, and possessing some mysterious means of locomotion. Up stairs they go to the "dressing-room," from whence they afterward emerge to take positions in the "Grand March." This is a thrilling moment. The Orchestra of half a dozen "strings" is amply qualified for a duty of this nature, and everybody knows that the effect of a "Grand March" in the absence of brass and pulsatile instruments, is unspeakably majestic. But even grand things must come to an end; so does this, and the business of the evening commences. Until now, matters have been of a practical turn, if we except the natural enthusiasm inspired by the music, in the mystification at bringing down "hay-foot" for "straw-foot" —but with the commencement of dancing, then commences also a new order of things. Anybody can march, but dancing requires talent of a much higher order. Indeed, I speak truly when I say I entertain for him or her who can fathom the intricacies of the dance, a species of awe, and respect, that nothing but an equal proficiency on my own part, (an utter impossibility,) can ever entirely dissipate. The technicalities of the dancing hall are as inscrutable to me, as the phrases of the Sanscrit Testament; and the tactics thereof dwarf with puny insignificance, the combined deliverances of Hardie, Casey and Upton,—yet with what easy nonchalance are they received and obeyed by the devotees of the art! Observe in what a pre-occupied and perfunctory manner the first dance is performed.

No member of any set is looking at anything in particular. This is a peculiar characteristic of every ball I have witnessed. It is a mystery which requires a solution. That it has an object, and that it is spontaneous, is evident from its universal manifestation. At this period repairs of damaged clothing began; the air of unconcern gives way to one of unalloyed anxiety as to the condition of the wardrobe, and various maneuvers are resorted to in wild endeavors to maintain it intact. Later in the evening, when disheveled costumes are the rule, the restraint wears away, and the dancers become merry. This merriment betrays itself in many ways but notably in that adopted by the individual who cannot contain himself.

In the intervals if not observed by others, he knows no respite, but abounds in "wings," "shuffles" and other ornamental movements, to his own intense satisfaction, and the delight of those in his vicinity.

This is the man whom I admire; yet am I at a loss to know whether his performance is a desire for display or simply an exuberant overflow of animal life. In either case, it never fails to interest me; yet I cannot refrain from thinking that were his mighty efforts exerted in behalf of science, or the mechanic arts, what miracles would he not perform. With his legs he describes parallels, curves, circles, isosceles triangles, Hogarth's line of beauty, and ends, as did a case within my knowledge, by inserting each foot within the hoops of two ladies at the same time, their simultaneous withdrawal in opposite directions causing his dissident nether members to execute a movement which brought him to the floor; in which posture he tendered his abject apologies.

Of course, after dancing, there is no fatigue, but always an appetite. It is always observable too, that dancing continues until the "wee sma' hours;" that is, probably, a reportorial vagary, for I am assured by an experienced authority that it is untrue. Of course, it's untrue; for, if people should dance all night, it would make them, during the next day at least, very STUPID.

Fire Department Ordinance.

SEC. 15.—If any person shall willfully or maliciously injure any of the fire apparatus owned by the city, or any reservoir or well intended for the use of the fire department, or shall ride or drive any animal or carriage across any hose or other apparatus when at use at any fire, or at any trial of any engine, he shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and shall be required to pay all damages by him caused.

The above Section will be enforced by the Board of Engineers. 12tf feb6

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause the same to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

What It Has Done.

Will this general temperance movement accomplish any real good? is a question asked almost daily. That it has already accomplished very substantial and beneficial results may be seen from the following extract from a letter to the Cincinnati Commercial:

The statement is sometimes made in Cincinnati that "there is more whisky used than before," but whisky men tell me it is a great mistake. The liquor shipped and transferred here for Washington, Wilmington, and beyond, is less than half what it was two months ago; and the keeper of the "respectable saloon" here says the business is nearly ruined. All the floating class who are neither one thing nor another, will stop while this movement is going on; and these, with the class that are afraid of being caught in saloons, and the class that are really and truly reformed, made up five-sixths of the customers. It is only the old soakers, men who "must have it," who will dodge around the stable and up the alley, and creep between boxes and into the back door, while this movement lasts.

—A Boston ship-builder says that Noah's ark wasn't much of a ship after all, being little better than a barn with the crevices calked up.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in Nervous Complaints, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, lending strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Strangulings, Pains in the Head, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I resided at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, from which my back was so stiff I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I took one more third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

A Source of Great Anxiety.
My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. N. H. TILDEN,

MOTHERS, READ THIS!
A Great Blessing!
WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.
Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.
My little girl is two and a half years old; and during that time I have not had two consecutive nights' rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly fired out with sleepless nights and trouble for some days.
I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there; and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very late in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I of ten say, the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar a drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing. MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,
175 Tudor street.
South Boston, July 10, 1871.

Circulation of the Blood.
The circulation of the blood is the life of the body, and its stoppage is death. We are healthy when the blood circulates freely; any interruption preventing its free course is the commencement of disease. "Blood is the life of the flesh." Can we expect to enjoy good health when bad or corrupt humors circulate with the blood, causing pain and disease; and these humors being deposited through the entire body, produce pimples, eruptions, ulcers, indigestion, costiveness, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and numerous other complaints? No disease can be in the body without first being generated in the blood; and no disease can possibly be in the body if the blood is pure. It is of great importance to know what medicine will purify and renovate the blood, eradicate the disease, renew vitality, mentally and physically, and instil fresh vigor into all the vital functions of the body. This medicine is the VEGETINE, the great blood purifier.
It extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with its foundation; correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted task.
VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 4o6p nrm.

A Modern Martyr on Ice.

[Danbury News.]

The glare of many colored lights above and the glare of the ice below, dotted here and there with scores of swift gallants and graceful lassies, made an entrancing picture. I found my way down to the ice, and stood on the brink of the intoxicating delight, fully enjoying it. My early education on skates had been wofully neglected; I never so fully realized this as when I stood by the edge of that pond with my feet firmly embedded in the snow on that December evening, and looked at the lights, the people, the fun. Very lean-legged men circled, whirled and skimmed before me. A very short, squinty-looking boy bore down from somewhere, and took up a position in front of me. He had a pair of skates dangling from his arm and something else not quite so large dangling from his nose. He was a queer looking boy. When he stooped he seemed to shut himself up like a telescope. His head settled down upon his shoulders, and his body came down upon his legs as though it had an intention of breaking down those valuable members of society. He evidently had something heavy on his mind. He drummed his heels on the ice before me, and looked absently at the gayety all around him. While studying him, I commenced to feel an overpowering desire to get out on the pond and distinguish myself although I had no very well defined idea of how I was going to do it. My gaze alternated between his skates and the ice for some time. I have since thought that the boy was hired by some one to take up that position, but I had no thought of the kind at that time. Such a thought then would have been worth two hundred dollars; coming when it did, it was a damage to me.

Finally, I hailed the young man, with a view of mounting his skates. He was corrupt to the core, and a twenty-five cent stamp overcame him like a summer rain. He threw down the skates at my feet, and turned his attention to the stamp. He held it up to the light; then he rubbed it between his fingers. Its genuineness satisfied him, and he put it away behind his clothes somewhere.

"Is your heels bored?" he asked.

"What do you mean by that?" I said.

"Why, for the corks on the skates," he answered, looking at me curiously.

I felt that I said something I ought not to, but I told him to put on the skates, as I had the rheumatism in my wrist.

I sat down on the snow, and he went to work. He was a long time doing it. The snow was uncomfortably moist, and my coat was too short to be of any use. I sat there long enough to have absorbed all the moisture within a yard about me. When he got through, he told me to get up on my feet. I got part ways up, and then it happened to occur to me that this was the first time I had been harnessed to two skates at once. The reflection was weightier than would seem possible, and I sat down.

"Guess you never skated for a living," remarked the boy, taking hold of my hand.

"Not that I remember," I said faintly.

I let him assist me to my feet, just as a party of young folks went skimming by. The owner of the skates was a philanthropist in his way. He pointed to the party, and said they were skating round the pond on a wager and asked me not to run over them. I had all I could do to resist a desire to start in chase of the party and run over them, but I managed to repress it. It felt so nice to be on my feet, that I told him I guessed I would start out. I was disappointed in one particular; I thought it would require an effort to start off; but it didn't.

While I was deciding between shooting across the pond like a comet, and marking out a spread eagle in the very centre of the ice, a sudden move of the left skate diverted my attention, and the next instant I was looking at the lamps through my legs, and bumping my head ferociously against the ice. This surprised me, and interested the boy. The more so, as I held in my outstretched hand a portion of the hair that a moment before adorned and protected his scalp.

"Why, what on earth did you do that for?" he said, looking at me with considerable uneasiness, and holding his hand on his head.

I didn't make any answer. I saw that I had created a sensation; besides, my head ached. He helped me up, but I noticed that he didn't show the enthusiasm he brought out on the first effort; and also, that when he got me to a perpendicular he showed an inclination to avoid me.

"I won't hurt you," I said.

"I don't want you to," he answered.

"Why don't you stay by me, then?" I asked.

"Because I ain't got much hair, and I ain't old enough to wear a wig."

It was useless to argue with him; and besides, my skates were acting a little uneasy. My knees were wabbling back and forth with increasing speed, and I didn't know but what they would become unhinged.

"What are you trying to do now, take yourself apart?" he asked.

This query exhausted my patience. I braced my knees up and moved off. I was a grain too ruffled, and I felt very damp where I didn't want to. The owner of the skates was pleased by this movement, but not quite so intoxicated as to forget his caution. I moved off about two yards; then I brought up so quick as to wrench my back; but I kept on my feet. However, that cramp in my back troubled me, and I concluded if I had to crack my spine whenever I stopped, I wouldn't stop again. I got along for a couple of rods very well, and the ice was cut up here; then I sat down to rest. I really didn't intend to rest there; but as I sat down, I thought I might as well rest. Like many amateurs, I was careless in my choice of a sitting place, otherwise I would have gone an inch farther, and avoided a small paving stone. I felt contented here; and there didn't appear to be any danger. The proprietor of the skates didn't share my satisfaction, however.

"Ain't you going any farther?" he asked.

"Not yet," I said.

"But supposing it commences to thaw?"

I couldn't answer this, and didn't want to. A little ahead of me was an old gentleman and a young lady. The young lady was on skates, and the old gentleman was helping her along. The young lady was very handsome, and I became interested in her progress; I concluded to help her.

"Come here, Mr. Hinckley, and help me up again," I said to the boy.

"My name ain't Hinckley; though I don't know what it is, my head is so sore," he said, and he pulled me up on my feet.

I had him hold me while I straightened my necktie, and then I told him to let go when I said "Ready."

I had laid back for a stunning movement, and opened my mouth to give the signal, when he abruptly let go. I made an effort to catch myself, but it was abortive. I came with force sufficient to split the pond wide open, and to send the damp part of my pants up into my throat. The young man made all haste to get me up again; he was really frightened. He said:

"I wouldn't do that again if I were you."

I assured him I would try my best to suppress any desire to do it again; but I ventured to affirm that I wouldn't try to control an inclination to knock his head off if he repeated his carelessness. That sobered him.

He hung to me this time till I was already, and when I gave the command, he let go:—and I bore down on the old gentleman and the young lady. They were pretty close to me, and I had but little distance to bear, which was just as well. I came up before them, scraping the ice with vigor.

"Learning to skate?" I remarked moving about to keep up.

"Yes, sir," she said, clinging nervously to his whiskers.

"Why don't you try it alone?" I asked.

"That is the way I learned."

"Ain't it hard?" inquired the old gentleman.

"Not at all," said I, continuing to move about to avoid falling over both of them.

"Just look at me now, and see how I do it, and then try the same way," I added placing my back to them, and preparing to do something to take away their breath.

"Are you looking?" I said with confidence, but not daring to turn around.

"O yes," they both cried.

"Then here I go," I said, and the words were no sooner uttered than verified. I felt a sudden rapid movement. I heard a rasping sound beneath me, and then right ahead. The lights gave a sudden whirl, and then disappeared—and the next minute I struck the ice a tremendous blow with the back of my head. I never had anything interest me like that. It absorbed all my attention. I was confident nobody ever had such a fall; not even our first parents, or the Niagara river. It was worse than the last fall. This consoled me. I made no inquiries for the young lady. I told the boy to come and unharness me, there was not enough variety about skating to suit my fiery nature. Besides, the owner of the pond was a poor man, and had a large family, and this was his only pond.

Democrats vs. Grangers.

When the grange movement first sprang up the democracy hailed it with a shout, as the agent which was to finally overthrow the republican party. They were almost as confident in their assertions that such would be the case, as they were when the Greeley movement started the "fusion" that was to "do for" republicanism; and every reported success of the grangers in the west was hailed as a genuine republican defeat and therefore a democratic victory. But the first principle of the grangers' creed is opposition to monopolies, particularly to a railroad monopoly; and their loudest demand, so far, has been that Congress shall do what the individual States have wholly failed to do,—regulate the freight tariffs of the railroads, so that internal commerce may be protected from unjust and ruinous exactions. The republicans, who recognize the power of Congress under the constitution to regulate commerce between the States, see nothing threatening to republicanism in this demand; but the democrats see in it another assault on their ancient and much-battered idol, "State rights," and their Congressional representatives go solid against the first real attempt of the grangers to reduce the power of the railroads The Portland Press says:

The devotion of the average democratic Congressman to the extreme doctrine of "State rights" is as sincere as in 1861 when he declared that there was no authority in the Constitution to keep a State in the Union. On other questions he will back and fill, but as a disciple of Calhoun, he never swerves from a conviction which is as deep as his nature. Monday, Congressman Smith of Ohio moved a resolution in the National House, declaring that it was within the constitutional power of Congress to so regulate commerce as to protect internal trade from unjust tolls and discriminations on the part of railroads, and that the present condition of such commerce is such as to demand a prompt exercise of this power. Now the average democrat is eagerly trying to be a granger—not that he finds delight in rural occupations, but he vainly hopes to achieve dinner through the organization. Consequently we might have expected that every democrat would have put himself on record in favor of this enunciation of the main purpose of the western farmer, but on the other hand, every one of them voted against the proposition. Their devotion to the exploded doctrine of State rights is so ingrained into their existence that they stood by it, for once forgetting expediency.

Dr. J. H. Schenck of patent medicine fame is dead.

The Holyoke warp-mill has been damaged by fire to the amount of about $30,000.

Hon. Henry B. Harrison of New Haven was nominated for governor of Connecticut by the republican State convention, and Hon. John T. Wait for lieutenant-governor.

Several cases of insubordination are reported among the prisoners in Alfred jail.

Information from Fort Laramie states that Lieutenant Robinson of the 14th infantry, and Corporal Coleman of Company K, second cavalry, were surrounded by forty or fifty Indians near the saw mill, ten miles from Fort Laramie, and murdered. Their bodies were found riddled with bullets and arrows, but not otherwise mutilated. Two companies of cavalry, under Captain Egan and Lieutenant Allison were sent in pursuit of the Indians. The Sioux are raiding in almost every direction, burning ranches, murdering ranchmen and stealing stock. Frank Appleton, who was the acting Indian agent in the absence of Agent Saville, was shot Monday night by Minneconyon, a Sioux. The same night fourteen mules were stolen from the government freighter, Charles Goreau, within three miles of the agency. At the White Clay agency the Indians have driven off the beef herders and taken charge, saying they would do their own issuing.

A raid was made by United States troops on an illicit distillery on Barren Island, near New York, and $12,000 worth of property was seized.

John Thompson, a private of the second Massachusetts regiment, who lost a leg at Ball's Bluff, and has been unsuccessful in obtaining work in New York, was found in the snow, reduced to a skeleton, a few nights since, and taken to the hospital, where he has since died from the long lack of food. The body weighed sixty pounds.

State News.

Samuel A. Hill has been arrested at Dover charged with setting fire to the barn of Mr. Roberts.

Jonathan Plummer of North Boscawen has been lying on his bed ever since the summer of 1871, when he saved a train of passenger cars from wreck by cutting away a post under a building that had sagged over the track, causing it to fall the other way, but in such a manner that it crushed him.

Andrew Brown has been appointed postmaster at Fremont.

Fifty-six citizens of Londonderry will ask the legislature to set off a narrow strip of land on the border of the river, now belonging to Manchester in what seems to be a geographical part of Londonderry.

Mr. Andrew L. Hall, a prominent business man at Lower Bartlett, was found dead in the road, close to his house, a few days ago. The cause of his death is supposed to have been the reopening of a rupture, caused by his falling from his team, and being unable to assist himself, died before he was discovered.

Meeting of Ex-Rebels.

A mass meeting was held in Baltimore on Saturday night, in response to the call of the Maryland Association of the Army and Navy of the Confederate States, in reference to the Southern Historical Society. Judge Inglis presided, and said the object was to gather evidence and facts relating to the late war, "in order that the true result should be presented—the truth, in simple justice to the martyrs of a noble cause, and in satisfaction to those who still survive and preserve the same opinions that led to the conflict." He said that nineteen thousand Marylanders fought for the rebel cause.

Mr. Teackle Wallis said: "We owe it not to the dead who struggling in oppression's wrong, were lost. We owe it not to the living, who know so well their sacrifice and desolation; but we owe it to the world to show the evils that result from so-called freedom; to show the world that no perfection can exist in a government that usurps the power of right and sacrifices every principle of manhood, truth and honor."

Wade Hampton followed, declaring that the object was to "put out that which would justify the struggle and show the motives that animated the South. By the co-operation of all who have not lost faith or hope in the cause, the end will be secured. Is this not worth struggling for? Are we willing that the hands that usurped our institutions should stigmatize us? Are we of the South ashamed of our history? No; thank God, we are not." These sentiments were all vociferously applauded.

Going to Spelling School.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Ah—um! Don't I remember all about it! It makes my pulse jump like a Porter street goat to think of a spelling school in the country with a big sleigh full of hay, and girls, a pair of slow horses, a bright moon and a foot of snow in the road.

That fair young creature that went with us. It doesn't make any difference that she went back on her word, grew up to be a hatchet-faced old maid, her voice like a file and her temper like catsup—she was fair then. "Would the fair and lovely Augustina accept of our company to a spelling school out at Duck Lake, Thursday night?" The fair Augustus would, she said, and she did. Such moon! Such an easy motion of the sleigh! Such singing in chorus! Every girl had a front-door key in her pocket, and every young man felt as if he could climb a shed forty thousand feet high to get into his own chamber window.

The fair young creature—how she pretended to shiver with cold until an arm was gently and affectionately placed around her delicate waist. Then the weather suddenly grew warmer, and she didn't shiver any more. It was a beautiful night, we observed. She said she'd noticed the same thing, and she seemed to lean over a little more, like some of of the telegraph poles on Michigan avenue. Emboldened, we observed that Bill Jones and Sarah Jones seemed very affectionate. She said it seemed so to her, but having stuck the end of a horse blanket in her eye, she wasn't prepared to make an affidavit. Somehow, after that, the conversation began to grow more and more interesting, and with that fair young creature's head on our shoulder we'd have set out to Vermont and back without a stop. She was so artless and innocent—so childlike and confiding. She told all about how her stepmother pounded her with a rolling-pin, and when we thought of a rolling-pin whacking against her fragile form and bounding over her alabaster shoulders, our hair stood on end with mad frenzy. She said she sometimes thought she'd get married to escape further persecution, and we were about to lay our hand on our heart and offer to be hers forevermore, when the sleigh stopped at the school house.

Then came the spelling down. It was Brighton against Bungtown, with the school master in favor of Bungtown. Such words as "catarrh," "turkey," "parallel," etc., soon reduced the "sides" to half a dozen, and at last we were left alone to sustain the honor of Brighton. The schoolmaster was determined that Bungtown should win, and it did when we spelled "omnibus" with a double "s." He said it wasn't right, and when Brighton insisted, he offered to uphold Bungtown with the iron poker. However, it was an offset to be consoled and sympathized with by "our girl." She positively shed tears of anger and sympathy, and she said of course there was two a's on an omnibus, one on each side, and she wasn't positive but there was one on the door behind.

By-and-by the conversation went back to stepmothers, rolling-pins, alabaster shoulders, and getting married, and she said she'd be ours. We figured up how we could keep house on $3.50 per week and have a dollar left; just how the wood-bine would trail over the door; how we'd make her step-mother die of a broken heart, and——, but you all remember.

It was a boy's dream. She discouraged me when she thought she could catch a dashing clerk, and her father set the dog on me and her brothers threatened to shoot; but as I said before, it doesn't make any difference now. When I think over the past I feel to exclaim with Walt Whitman:—"Oh, gimme back them other days!"

—That was a singular accident which happened to a mail agent in one of the Western States. Standing in the door at the side of his car, as the train rushed past a small station, a rope dangling from a crane which stood by the track swung against him, whirled about his neck, and he was jerked out in a twinkling, and landed on a neighboring coal heap. He was insured for $500 in the "Travellers" of Hartford. Yet he was not killed—his injuries were not even serious, and he was all right again in a few days. But it was the most like being hanged and having the rope break, that man ever experienced.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by selling under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for the misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

No use of taking the huge offensive, griping, drastic pills, put up in cheap wood or paste-board boxes, when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules—scarcely larger than mustard seeds—possessing as much power as any large pill, and neatly put up in little vials that preserve their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, can be had for 36 cents of all Druggists. 709

A Perilous Experiment. To leave a cough or cold to "get well of itself." The chances are that it will get worse. Meet it promptly with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar. —OF THE—

WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine Co.,

NEW YORK.

OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,

—AT THE—

WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.

1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being for progress made since the Paris Exposition of 1867, at which the only Gold Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior medal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle Industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only award of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.

(GROUP 13, SEC. 2, 2.)

"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 900,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well and tested machines daily."

"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly pearl stitch."

"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

Excursions To Portsmouth.

On the occasion of the appearance of Howard, Langrishe & Carle's "Black Crook" company here next Tuesday evening, a special train will be run from Dover, returning after the performance. Fare 40 cents for the round trip. The completion of the P. & D. R. R. affords opportunity for managers of first-class companies to secure good houses in Portsmouth. The objections heretofore made have been that the expenses were so great that no first-class "star" could afford to visit Portsmouth with a good stock company. The difficulty is now obviated. Our best citizens are always disposed to encourage entertainments worthy of patronage. We hope the new order of things will result in bringing to our city the Vokes family, Joe Jefferson, Maggie Mitchell, Sothern, Owens, Fechter, Warren, Carlotta Le Clercq, and Max Maretzek's opera. The people are weary of fifth-class shows.

Fortunate Escape.

On Thursday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, a horse drawing a sleigh containing two ladies, when near the post office took fright and ran away, the ladies having presence of mind to jump out before the animal had gathered full headway, and escaping unhurt. The horse went at furious speed around the North church into Congress street, and when opposite Mr. Tibbetts' saloon came in collision with Ex-Gov. Goodwin's team, which contained four little girls and the driver, who were all thrown out by the shock, which was severe enough to shatter the sleigh and throw both horses down. The escape of the party from serious injury or even death seemed almost impossible to the spectators of their peril, but we are happy to announce that they received no harm. The little girls displayed a courage and coolness which would do no discredit to older persons, seeming to regard the whole thing as rather a good joke than otherwise.

Libel For Demurrage.

In the U. S. District Court at Boston, on the 11th, the suit of J. B. Perry vs. S. T. Bird et al was tried. Libel for demurrage. The libellant is master of the barque Mendota of Bath, Me., chartered by defendants to convey two cargoes of coal from Cape Breton to Boston and Portsmouth. The original charter party provided for customary dispatch in unloading, and evidence was introduced tending to show that by this agreement the Mendota would have to take her turn at the wharf. The libellant claimed that he was entitled to quick despatch, as a new contract had been formed by telegram from respondents to their agents at Portsmouth, directing the vessel to be sent around to Boston to avoid delay in unloading. Decree for libellant in the sum of $482.17, or seven days' demurrage, and the balance for pilotage, etc., and interest.

The Effects of Dover Rum.

[Foster's Democrat, 10th.]

Yesterday afternoon was a time of general drunkenness around the streets of Dover. Those Portsmouth highbinders who came up here to see how Dover rum tasted and would operate on their nerves, got beat out and out. If they had only asked anybody round here about it they would have found out that it is the toughest stuff for a backhug that was ever known in the world. It is capable of throwing anybody, and no human being that ever touched it could stand on his legs but a very few minutes after he did it. These Portsmouth fellows went for it, and it went for them. Last night the station house was crammed with these disgusting bipeds of both sexes picked up by the police, and stowed away like so many hogs and dogs. Every rum shop in the city was in a full blaze of glory all day. We don't know as these Portsmouth "visitors" ever get anything to drink down there in that highly moral city. They came up here fearfully parched and thirsty and immediately went to soak. These fellows were chiefly young men and boys. There were some lewd and vicious women and girls amongst them, to make a sort of variety to the show, and in the latter part of the day and early evening shades they acted as though the devil was in them. It seems, as near as we can learn, that Portsmouth and Dover swapped drunkards and rowdies yesterday.

Laconics.

The prospect of republican success at the coming election was never better than at this time. We have heard of one democratic enthusiast who declares the democracy will have a majority in Portsmouth—but he is some 500 votes out of the way in his estimate. In every section of the State, republicans declare that they will do as well as last year, and in some counties much better. The canvass thus far shows that the people have implicit confidence in Gen. McCutchins. We think his election by the people is assured. The State committee is doing a vast deal of work, and doing it well.

The City Marshal of Dover captured seven Portsmouth raiders on Monday, and the City Marshal of Portsmouth arrested three Dover rowdies. At evenide the two chiefs of police agreed on a cessation of hostilities, an exchange of prisoners and the release of the balance on parole.

Conductor Mitchell of the Eastern Railroad had an apoplectic fit in the Revere House, Boston, Wednesday. He was much better last evening.

The portrait of Governor John Wentworth, copied by U. D. Tenney from a pastel by Copley, is on exhibition at the Congress Block book-store, and excites considerable interest.

Foster's Democrat says the chairman of the Democratic State committee has visited Dover to see how the political sledding is in Strafford county, and that there are a good many bad drifts and a number of bare spots there. The Democrat advises him to grease the runners.

Joseph Hollingshead, a young man in the employ of the Eastern Railroad, was struck by a freight train at Wenham on Tuesday evening and had his leg frightfully crushed.

Thanks to Charles Main, Esq., for a copy of the Alta California Almanac for 1874, containing valuable matter for reference.

There was a little misunderstanding on Spring Hill, Thursday morning, caused by a man throwing a bucket of slops upon a dog on the street. The elderly party belonging to the dog was incensed thereat, and when the slop-bucket man came out a second time the elderly party pitched into him, and was himself treated to a bath from the second bucket of slops. The fluid was probably warm, as its application seemed to increase the warmth of the elderly party's temper, and caused him to pursue the attack with more vigor than ever; but he was finally knocked over by a whack with the slop-bucket, and the combatants then separated in a rather discouraged condition. No bloodshed—no arrests—no cards.

A gentleman walking down Congress street on a recent morning, when the sidewalks were unusually slippery was amused by observing (in the rare intervals when he was able to observe anything beyond maintaining his own perpendicular) a lady just ahead of him, whose uncertain walk plainly expressed her knowledge she was walking on slippery places and had great need to take heed lest she fall. On arriving in front of the hair store of Mrs. M. E. Johnson, where the sidewalk was nicely sprinkled with ashes, the lady straightened herself up, breathed a sigh of relief, stepped out briskly and with a firm tread, and fervently ejaculated, "God bless Mrs. Johnson!" a benison which the gentleman thought well-deserved and in which he heartily joined. Prayers of a different kind have been offered up for the welfare of many non-sprinklers of sidewalks, during the week past.

Theodore Wells of Wells, Me., has been appointed foreman of saw-mills at the navy yard.

The Odd Fellows of Kittery are to hold a Fair in Trefethen's Hall on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Feb. 25 and 26, for the benefit of Riverside Lodge, which was recently burned, smoked and washed out of the new lodge-room in Trefethen's block. Twenty-five cents will pass one person into the Fair, where useful and ornamental articles will be offered for sale, with the usual refreshments, oysters being served each evening, at nine o'clock. A sewing machine, cuckoo clock and other articles will be disposed of by tickets, and a Webster's Unabridged Dictionary will be voted away.

Mr. George D. Shannon, who was recently removed from a position at the navy yard through the efforts of Congressman Burleigh, was surprised at his residence recently by the appearance of many of his friends, who through their spokesman, Calvin Hayes, Esq., presented him with a watch and chain valued at $100, as a token of their esteem. The company made a merry evening of it.

Business Notices.

Brilliant Success.

It is permitted to few men or companies to achieve acknowledged superiority in any important position or business. The present generation has witnessed stupendous rivalry in several branches of industry, and notably the Sewing Machine business. Among a multitude of competitors the Wheeler & Wilson Company held their way from the beginning, upon fixed and honorable principles. Long since, their leading position in America was established. Abroad, at London, in 1862, they won the highest premiums; at Paris, in 1867, they distanced eighty-two competitors, and were awarded the highest premium, the only gold medal for Sewing Machines exhibited; and lastly, amid unparalleled competition, followed the splendid triumphs at Vienna, noted in our advertising columns.

Health's Shield and Protection.

Health is universally admitted to be the most desirable of earthly blessings, yet it is jeoparded as recklessly as if it were of no value at all. Thousands who are compelled by their occupations and pursuits to breathe unwholesome air, to expose themselves to violent alternations of heat and cold, and to brave other evils inimical to health and life utterly neglect to fortify themselves against the dangers which surround them by a proper course of tonic treatment. For many years it has been a public fact, admitted even by the martinets of the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best antidote to malaria and the direst acclimating medicine in existence. In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames; while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and all kindred complaints it is confessedly without a rival.

The happiest discovery of the age. ANAKESIS, an infallible cure for PILES, a scientific combination of positive instrument and medicine, endorsed by physicians of all schools, discovered by DR. SILBNEE, a regular physician, and used successfully in thousands of cases. Sufferers who have tried everything else in vain will find instant relief and permanent cure. It is regarded by medical men as the greatest of modern discoveries, and pronounced infallible. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. Y. Register.]

Obscure Diseases, no matter how they originate, and without regard to the sex of the sufferer, are cured without danger or inconvenience by Helmbold's Extract Buchu, the great Diuretic, which acts specifically upon the Kidneys, Bladder an auxiliary organs. No other preparation possesses the fully developed merits of Helmbold's Extract. Sold in the granular Buchu, and it never fails. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent. Sold by all druggists.

SMITH'S ACADEMY
—AND—
Commercial College
FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will be taught upon principles which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 31 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

Fire Department Ordinance.

SEC. 15.—If any person shall willfully or maliciously injure any of the fire apparatus owned by the city, or any reservoir or well intended for the use of the fire department, or shall ride or drive any animal or carriage across any hose or other apparatus when at use at any fire, or at any trial of any engine, he shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and shall be required to pay all damages by him caused.

The above Section will be enforced by the Board of Engineers. 12td febs

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied from time to time by the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year, shall each such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and the same for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city team will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting a dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

Neatness And Dispatch.

San Francisco has a large number of artist-highwaymen. These "gentlemen" do not knock down and beat their victims within an inch of their lives in order to gain whatever of a portable nature may be upon their persons; neither do they draw revolvers and frighten them into submission, like their Texan brothers. Nothing of the sort. This is how they work: The victim having been selected, is approached by a well dressed person, who charges him with the commission of an offense that provokes his anger and precipitates a quarrel. A third person promptly appears on the scene, goes between the belligerents, and in the effort to separate them, deftly removes the wallet and the watch and chain from the pockets of the accused. This device may not be altogether new, but the way in which it is carried into effect bespeaks the artist, not the cold-blooded murderer. The San Franciscans are, therefore, to be congratulated in having the most chivalric, as well as the most finished, highwaymen in the United States.

—The difference between a man's being out of temper and out of money is, that when he's out of money he shows the least of it, but when he's out of temper he shows the most of it.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

—oo—

These periodicals constitute a wonderful miscellany of modern thought, research, and criticism. The cream of all European books worth reviewing is found here, and they treat of the leading events of the world in masterly articles written by men who have special knowledge of the matters treated. The American Publishers urge upon all intelligent readers in this country a liberal support of the Reprints which they have so long and so cheaply furnished, feeling sure that no expenditure for literary matter will yield so rich a return as that required for a subscription to these the

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

ISAAC B. RICH.....BUSINESS MANAGER.
LUTHER COLBY.....EDITOR.

Aided by a large corps of able writers.

THE BANNER OF LIGHT is a first-class, eight-page Family Newspaper, containing FORTY COLUMNS OF INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE READING, classed as follows:

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.—Original Novelettes of reformatory tendencies, and occasionally translations from French and German authors; Poetry, original and selected; Children's Stories for Children, etc.

REPORTS OF SPIRITUAL LECTURES—By able Trance and Normal Speakers.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS—Upon Spiritual, Philosophical and Scientific Subjects.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.—Subjects of General Interest, the Spiritual Philosophy, its phenomena, etc., Current Events, Entertaining Miscellany, Notices of New Publications, etc.

MESSAGE DEPARTMENT.—Spirit-Messages from the departed to their friends in earth-life, given through the mediumship of MRS. J. H. CONANT, which demonstrate direct intercourse between the Mundane and Super Mundane Worlds.

ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTIONS from the most talented writers in the world.

All which features render this journal a popular Family Paper, and at the same time the Harbinger of a Glorious Scientific Religion.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION, IN ADVANCE.

Three Months	75

☞ There will be no deviation from the above prices.

In remitting by mail, a Post-Office Money-Order on Boston, or a Draft on a Bank or Banking House in Boston or New York City, payable to the order of COLBY & RICH, is preferable to Bank Notes, since, should the Order or Draft be lost or stolen, it can be renewed without loss to the sender.

Subscriptions discontinued at the expiration of the time paid for.

Subscribers in Canada will add to the terms of subscription 20 cents per year, for pre-payment of American postage.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS.—Subscribers should not fail to write legibly their Post-Office Address and name of State.

Those wishing the direction of their paper changed from one town to another, must always give the name of the Town, County and State to which it has been sent.

☞ Specimen copies sent free.

Twenty-six numbers of the BANNER compose a volume. Thus we publish two volumes a year.

Patrons of the BANNER when renewing their subscriptions should be careful to always state the place to which the paper is mailed; and the same care should be exercised when a change of location is desired.

ADVERTISEMENTS published at twenty cents per line for the first, and fifteen cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Back, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hennikerand am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It ran at times perceptibly, and slight it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a few days at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Consolation.

[Lady's Journal.]

Garnet and I were sitting together on the door step. We were alone; the house was empty—so was the great old fashioned garden. So we might have been sentimental with impunity had we chosen. Two people who have made willow whistles, and fished with crooked pins together, and quarrelled over the conjugation of Latin verbs, are apt to dispense with sentiment in their intercourse; so, instead of looking fondly into each other's eyes, and exchanging cooing murmurs, we were stoning cherries. But that was not all; the prosaic occupation was enlivened by a lecture from Garnet on my shortcomings.

Garnet was a success at lecturing. She had a clear, decided contralto voice, to which you were compelled to listen in spite of yourself, while her calm, brown eyes looked you into a sense of your own guiltiness at the very moment when you had believed yourself most innocent. Still, the lectures were pleasant inflictions—at least I thought so. I stopped my work and ate cherries in a desultory manner for a few minutes, racking my brain meanwhile for something to say. This was the result:

"Don't look so wrathful, Garnet; there are bushels more in the orchard, and oxhearts always tempt me beyond resistance, miserable sinner that I am."

"Why will you be so flippant, Julian? You know I was not thinking of the cherries."

The frown deepens till there is a tiny wrinkle across her white forehead. Regarding her critically, I decide that it adds to her prettiness.

"It is your duty to marry Lily."

The accent on that word "duty" was convincing in the extreme, as she meant it to be.

The tone in which I replied was a singularly humble one for me.

"Perhaps Lily herself thinks differently. Who can tell?"

"That is nonsense," replied Garnet, dropping a handful of cherries back into the basket, that she might the better fix her attention upon my unhappy self—"nonsense and you know it. So far you have trifled with her shamefully. Rides, drives, walks, sails, etc."—briskly cataloguing my iniquities—"a whole summer given up to her after such a fashion, and now you talk coldly of going away and leaving her to forget you, if she can. Shame, Julian!"

The cherries were apples of Sodom to me, and I ate no more.

Did I love Lily? If a man does not love a girl, why should he seek her society daily, talk nonsense to her by moonlight, regardless of dampness and mosquitoes, and come nigh bankrupting himself to keep her in new music and chocolate caramels? "She is pretty," I thought, remembering her gold-tinted hair and soft, violet eyes, and dimpled smiling mouth; "and yet—"

There I stopped, not being able to penetrate the haziness of my own mind.

"You love her," said Garnet, completing my unfinished sentence.

There was no doubt in her tone, nor in her mind, either—that was evident.

"She isn't my ideal," I observed, feeling the weakness of the defence, but unable to make any other.

"And pray may I ask what your ideal is?" questioned Garnet, a little sarcastically.

"First and last, I have had a dozen," I replied, anxious, if possible, to get away from a disagreeable subject. "You were my ideal once, Garnet, but you would persist in muddying the toes of your boots, against my express wishes. Just now, the ideal woman is a tall, stately, sad-eyed person, with a mystery about her. She snubs me persistently, till one day, when I am reduced to utter despair she suddenly throws herself into my arms and gasps out a pleasing piece of information to the effect that she has loved me from the first moment she saw my face."

"I recognize her," said Garnet. "She stalks through the pages of half the novels nowadays. There is always an incumbrance, I believe, in the shape of a husband who had committed a forgery, or a heartless parent who has destined her to marry an evil minded old person with forty thousand a year, and a wig."

"Precisely. I hope in my case, that the piratical brother will be the cause of her woes. I have always had a profound respect for pirates. Do you remember how we used to wish that a benevolent one might adopt us? To come back to my ideal, that style of woman always addresses a man as 'darling,' and I am really desirous of knowing how it feels to be called 'darling,' too—that term of endearment is so peculiarly feminine, and inappropriate to such bearded and booted wretches as I."

"If your ideal woman ever does address you thus," replied Garnet, "you may be certain that, like 'The Woman in White,' she has escaped from an asylum; for persons of weak intellect—but we were talking of Lily Curtis."

"Garnet, have you taken Torquemada for your model?" I asked, wildly desperate.

"I do not know who he was," answered she. "The only historical characters I remember are Charlemagne and Jack the Giant Killer. We will remand them to their tombs till Lily is disposed of, if you have no objections."

"What are you two quarrelling about?" asked my sister Louise, as she and Lily came up the walk and seated themselves on the step below us.

"Garnet is trying to persuade me that my nose is purely Grecian, and I am modestly denying her assertion—that is all. There are some people, you know, who rise superior to flattery."

Lily held up a cluster of forget-me-nots, blue as her own bewitching eyes.

"Will you fasten them in my hair, Julian?"

I tried, blunderingly; broke the stems, crushed the flowers, and reduced Lily's golden hair to a most demoralized condition.

"What a clumsy brute I am!" I said, the task finished; to my disgust, nobody offered to contradict me, so I leaned back and sulkily contemplated the woman whose heart Garnet accused me of trying to break.

I had never before realized how lovely she was; again and again my eyes wandered over her, noting each charm—the slender, graceful figure, the tiny dimpled hands, the perfect face, the drooping masses of yellow hair. "Breathes there a man with soul so dead" as to look at her and not love her? If so I was not the man. No, I loved her; had loved her all along, and my life's happiness depended upon winning her for my wife. Blessings on Garnet for opening my eyes—for saving me from the misery which would have been mine had I lost her!

"You are going out?" said Garnet, as we met in the hall the next forenoon.

"I am going to call upon Lily; give me a host of good wishes for companions, so that my courage may not fail me. If I am refused——."

"If the sky falls!" answered Garnet, curtly.

"One word more before I go. Will you and Hugh take a house in the same block with us? I cannot exist without your lectures — golden haired seraphs never scold, you know, so I shall have none from Lily."

Garnet looked vexed; she always held Hugh Scott as too precious for idle discussion. I did not.

"Good-bye," I called, springing down the steps, and taking my way across the orchard slope. "Do not your blessings go with me, a young man on his way to atone for past misdeeds, and make an angelic woman and himself as happy as they deserve to be?"

An hour later, I sat smoking on the front porch at home, pretending to read, but in reality meditating upon the scene in which a short time before I had been one of the actors.

Suddenly a hand was laid on my shoulder and turning I saw Garnet standing beside me.

"Well, Julian?" expectantly.

"Well, Garnet?" A pause, during which I smoked busily, and tried to look impenetrable as an Indian chief, while Garnet tossed her foot impatiently, and waited for me to speak.

"My dear friend," I said, at length, laying aside my cigar, "why can't you say 'Bless you, my child?' Cold and unfeeling creature! you sent me to propose to Lily—you gave me no peace till I promised to give up my joyous freedom and shoulder the weary cares of husbandhood, and, after I have done your bidding, you contemplate me with the tranquil indifference with which one owl might look at another!"

"Here are a thousand congratulations, take them all with this clasp of the hand," answered Garnet. "I did not mean to appear indifferent, only you looked so strangely."

"I imagine that people usually look strangely after an earthquake," I returned, with calmness.

"But—you are happy, Julian?" and this time the honest brown eyes regarded me wistfully.

"Mine is a bliss too deep for words, Garnet—Lily has refused me. What an interrogation point your face is, my dear!"

"Refused you," she repeated slowly.

"Let me make the matter clear to your dull comprehension; I went to offer her a heart which was brimfull of love, pity and penitence, never doubting that she would gladly accept it. She was crocheting as usual, and listened to me with the utmost patience, only interrupting to count 'one, two, three, treble; one, two, slip;' then, when I had finished, she laid down the spider legged tidy—if it was a tidy—and said, in a voice

'Sweet as the lapse of waters at noon
O'er the mossy roots of some fallen tree,
Or song of the wind in the woods in June,
Or sound of flute o'er a moonlit night,'

'Mr. Graham, I love somebody else.'"

"Who is he," asked Garnet, eagerly.

"I do not know—I did not wish a biographical sketch of him. I have no doubt that he is a very estimable person, however, and far superior to myself 'in every quality which should adorn the mind and heart,' as obituary notices say."

"Poor boy," said Garnet compassionately, as she smoothed back the hair from my forehead.

"Don't pity me," I said, with spiteful emphasis, drawing my head away, "it is all your fault that I am a jilted man; but for your constant persecution I should never have thought of proposing to Lily—never."

"I have borne the blame of all your mishaps from the days when we played with tops and kites," answered Garnet meekly, "but this time I can forgive you readily, for I know you are unhappy and disappointed."

"Pshaw! I am nothing of the sort. I told you Lily was not my ideal; and now when I think of it I remember that I had a Lily a long time ago. She used to console me when I was in disgrace because of that beggarly old humbug Xenophon. Shall I tell you about her? It will help to divert me and I need diverting. She was a confectioner's daughter and used to sit enshrined in a bay window, with a box of marsh-mallows in her lap and the New York Ledger in her hand. So fondly did I love her that I read at her request, half of 'The Blighted Flower; or, a Maiden's Dream.' If we had not quarrelled I should have read the other half; as it is, 'A Maiden's Dream,' is wrapped in awful mystery."

"Will you ever be serious, Julian?" asked Garnet, laughing and forgetting to pity me.

"I am serious now in requesting you to desist from any further attempts at missionary work in my case," I answered; "there are other fields of usefulness for you."

"Shall I say China?" said she; "there are so many snakes and scorpions in India, to say nothing of the danger which my theology would undergo from the arguments of well-informed Brahmins."

"Neither," I replied with covert malice; "you can devote yourself to Hugh Scott; I do not know of anybody who needs amending and revising more than he. Oh, there he comes now—I'm off," and I turned to go.

"Stay, please," said Garnet in a pleading tone, but sending a sunshiny smile toward the new comer—a smile which meant "you are welcome."

"All men are born to love and be loved again," I soliloquized as I went up-stairs to prepare for a fishing excursion; "but what Garnet can see in Hugh Scott, wretched little dandy that he is?"—here I became absorbed in my search for my missing tackle, and forgot to finish my sentence.

En passant, I will remark that Hugh was a handsome fellow—modest and well bred enough to put me to shame.

I was to be gone a week, and I did not like to go without bidding Garnet good-bye, but, as I descended the stairs I heard Hugh's low, even tones through the closed door.

"Locksley Hall," I said to myself, "the poem of poems for every man who has barely escaped being an idiot."

Only the day before, I had forced Garnet to listen to an article, twenty pages in length, on the Iniquitousness of a Productive tariff. Well, if it had bored her, so much the better. I was glad of it; why should not my revenge be retrospective?

I laid my hand on the door-knob. The low murmur continued.

"Confound Hugh," I said, turning away and picking up my rod.

A week from that day I sauntered up the walk and sat down on the doorstep, this time watching the sunset intently. I watched it because the sun was going down in a subdued manner behind a bank of gray clouds, as if it were in an unhappy frame of mind.

If it had set in a blaze of glory, I should have turned my back upon it and treated it with contempt. You will gather from this confession that I had returned home in an unhappy frame of mind. I had. The fish had shown themselves utterly heartless, and like the angler in Punch, I had caught nothing but a bad cold.

Moreover, I was haunted by visions of—well, no matter—not Lily, I assure you. The twilight shadows had fallen when I heard the rustle of a woman's dress in the hall, and the next instant Garnet asked:

"It is you, Louise—is it not?"

"It is a miserable misanthrope, with a bad cold and a large amount of wretchedness," I answered through the darkness, and she seated herself beside me. "What an advantage it gives me to have known you all my life," I continued. "If you were anyone else, I should be compelled to treat you with civility, perhaps pay you a compliment or two; as it is, I can say promptly that I wish you would go in and leave me alone."

"The tender friendship which you allude to so feelingly enables me to say flatly that I shall not go in," answered Garnet. "Years ago I should have added 'this is my father's doorstep'—as it is, I will forbear. Tell me now what has gone wrong with you?"

"Nothing has gone wrong with me; but I want to hate my neighbor comfortably and without interruption, and I cannot do it when you are here to hinder me."

"Who is your neighbor?" questioned Garnet.

"Hugh Scott," I answered. "Are you satisfied now, you nineteenth century Fatima?"

"Why do you hate that inoffensive person?" she asked, in a wondering tone.

"Because I have been thinking of all the days we have spent together since we were little children, of—to quote yourself—our rides, and drives, and sails, and duets; of the long mornings when you have lectured and found fault with me, while I lay on the grass watching the sunshine brighten your hair, and the quick color come and go in your cheek; because I have lost and Hugh has won you. Now you have heard all, and are doubtless ready for my congratulations. Shall I offer them?"

"How do you know that they are needed?" Garnet asked, breaking a piece from the honeysuckle above her head.

"Because he came to propose the day that I went away. I saw it in his face; he looked just as I did when I set forth to make a simpleton of myself with Lily. By the way, Garnet, after she refused me, I asked you to keep a place by your hearthstone for me. You need not mind about it. I shall never care to come. Indeed, I think—I think I shall drown myself. Such a proceeding will insure Hugh's safety."

"If you ask him," said Garnet, "you may find him willing to join you—that is, unless he takes his rejection as serenely as you took yours. I mean when Lily——"

"Garnet, you did not!" I interrupted.

"I did," she answered; "and some day I shall be sorry for it, I have not a doubt. Poor Hugh! he is too good for me."

"He is, indeed," I assented, with cheerful readiness. "I always said so—to myself."

"It would be so distressing to have a husband who was better than one's self! There would never be any excuse for treating him impatiently; while, as for quarreling—and I must quarrel with my husband sometimes—why, I have looked forward to it for years with keenest anticipation."

"I would like to remark," said I, "that my virtues are in a latent condition, and there are excellent reasons for believing that they will always remain so."

"I am well aware of the fact," answered Garnet, a ripple of laughter in her voice.

"As for quarrelling, we have quarrelled all our lives, and you can never hope to find another man who will answer as an escape valve for your temper as well as I. Besides, Garnet, I love you."

"You omitted to mention that trifling item before," replied she. "But you loved the confectioner's daughter, and a score of other young women, to say nothing of Lily, so it is scarcely worth taking into consideration."

"I will mention another, which may have some weight with you;" I rejoined,—"you love me! What have you to say now, my darling?"

"Nothing whatever. Your impertinent assertion has put all my ideas to flight."

"But is it true?" I insisted.

"It is true, Julian," answered she.

"Garnet," I said, after a long silence, "what would have become of you had Lily not refused me? It makes me shudder to think of the misery you would have suffered."

"In that case, I should have accepted Hugh," Garnet replied. "Like yourself, I have a genius for discovering consolations."

"As if Hugh could have consoled you for the loss of me—!" I retorted with all my accustomed modesty.

Dawes at it Again.

Mr. Congressman Dawes has once more taken the economical path and has made a speech in the House which may be based on truth. The people of New Hampshire, however, will not forget that Mr. Dawes has heretofore attacked the administration in the House and retracted his statements on the stump. Either he was honest in making the exposure at first, or he was mistaken. If mistaken he is liable to be again. If not, his withdrawal of the charges does not speak well for Mr. Dawes' consistency.

Law and Liquor.

In the Supreme Judicial Court at Manchester, on Friday last, the action Henry D. Pierce vs. Hillsborough County, to recover one-half of the fine in a liquor prosecution, went to trial. Col. Pierce appeared pro se and Solicitor Wm. Barrett for the defendants. The action was based upon the following provision of the prohibitory law, being Sec. 21:

The selectmen of every town shall prosecute at the expense of the town every person guilty of a violation of any previous section of this chapter of which they can obtain reasonable proof; but this provision shall not be construed to prevent any person from making complaint, and instituting and carrying on prosecutions for such offences; and such complainant shall be entitled to one-half of every fine collected through such prosecutions.

This provision was amended by the act of 1870 as follows:

That the twenty-first section of said chapter be amended by inserting after the word "complainant," in the sixth line of said section, and before the words "shall be entitled," the following words, to wit: "Whether a town or city, by its officers, or an individual."

The action was brought by Col. Pierce, who seeks to recover one-half the fines paid by certain liquor dealers, the payment of which is resisted by the county on the ground that Col. P. was not legally the complainant in the cases. Col. Pierce, Attorney-General Clark, County Solicitor Barrett, and the County Commissioners were counsel, parties and witnesses all at once and upon all sides. When it came to the charge says the Manchester Mirror, Judge Doe ruled the ground from under the Colonel's feet, so cleanly that he went out of sight like a man dropping through a trap door.

The ruling in this case is an important one, as it has long been a vexed question what a man must do to entitle himself to receive one-half the fines in prosecutions under the liquor law.

The facts in the case on trial are these: Col. Pierce, at the January term, '73, appeared before the grand jury with a witness whom he had summoned and paid, and who testified to buying liquor of a party in Hillsboro' and who was indicted and paid the fine, one-half of which Col. Pierce received. There were also present several other witnesses who, at the request of Col. P., were summoned and paid by the State, and these testified to buying liquors of the man who was indicted through the testimony of the first witness, and also to buying it of another man. The result was that the second indictment for keeping for sale was found against this first man, and another for selling against the second. These two fines were paid and Col. Peirce claimed half, but payment to him was resisted under the advice, we understand, of Judge Sargent, on the ground that Col. P. had not, by merely requesting that solicitor to summon witnesses, become a complainant within the meaning of the law, and therefore was not entitled to any of the fines. Mr. Pierce then brought suit against the county to recover.

In his charge Judge Doe said the language of the statute was that the complainant who instituted and carried on a suit for violation of the liquor law should receive half the fines. To "carry on" evidently meant in this, as it did in other cases, to furnish the necessary witnesses, which in this case was all that was required, the Solicitor and Attorney-General being paid by the State. Furnishing one witness out of six, or merely requesting a solicitor to summon a witness, is not carrying on a suit. Any other view than this would not only be unreasonable, but dangerous, as it would permit a man to summon one man and then compel the whole city to appear as witnesses at the expense of the State, and if a fine is paid the complainant could walk up and take half of it.

The law evidently intended that if a complainant was to receive the fines he must run the risk; that is he must furnish the witnesses, and must furnish the whole of them—not one out of six, or in any other way divide the risk with the State.

Accordingly as Col. Pierce had not, from his own testimony, carried on the prosecutions by furnishing all the witnesses, he had no case, and could not recover. To this ruling exception was taken, and the question will go up to the full bench.

Supreme Judicial Court.

On Monday was tried the case of Lucy J. Lafavour vs. John H. Smith and Samuel J. Healey, which was an action of trespass upon certain real estate in Chester, formerly the property of Amos F. Morse, deceased. The plaintiff claimed under a deed from Morse, who was her brother. The defence was that the deed was given without consideration and fraudulent as to Morse's creditors; and that the defendant entered the land as a servant of the administrator of Morse's estate, who had taken possession for the payment of his debts. Verdict for defendant.

Mary Tarleton, administratrix, vs. David H. Montgomery, was an action brought by the administratrix of the estate of William Tarleton, late of Kittery, upon a mortgage on real estate owned by defendant. The defence was that the mortgage has been fully paid. Verdict for the defendant.

On Wednesday morning was tried the case of George Roberts vs. Benjamin F. Hall of Salem, which was an action to recover money collected by defendant when deputy sheriff and not accounted for to the plaintiff. Verdict for plaintiff, $382.80.

Wednesday afternoon the case of Nathaniel H. Paul and wife vs. James Walton and others, was tried: an action to recover rent for the use of a mill in Salem. Verdict for defendants.

The following additional jurors were drawn: John D. Lyman, Asa Jewell, William Lane, Nicholas Rollins, Exeter; J. Clement Weeks, Greenland; Thomas S. Nowell, Matthew T. Betton, Andrew J. Penballow, Cyrus L. Brown, Portsmouth; Ai Gilman, Benjamin F. Haley, Joseph F. Wiggin, Newmarket; Leonard W. Bradley, Gilman Harris, Philip Marden, Plaistow.

The Treasury statement called for by the House of Representatives is to the effect that the period since March shows for Boston collections by informers about $700,000. The United States informers received $152,778, and Collector Russell, Naval Officer Harriman and Surveyor Underwood about $50,000 each. The largest case reported from Boston was that of Richard Baker et al., fined $400,000 on the information of N. W. Bingham, R. M. Kimball and B. G. Jayne. On this case the informers received jointly $96,000, and each of the officials named above, $32,000. At New York it was about $3,700,000, half of which was the portion of the government.

In an iron foundry in Johnston, Pa., sixteen men were seriously burned by the capsizing of a pot of molten metal, and it is thought that one will die.

The telegraph brings the report of the wrecking of the German barque Hercules and the loss of eleven of her crew off the Irish coast.

The Italian barque Pucinella, from New York for Bristol, sunk off the Irish coast, Wednesday. Twelve of the crew were drowned.

Sheriff Warren of York county, Me., has received instructions from Gov. Dingley to enforce the liquor law strenuously. The Sheriff will give his personal attention to its enforcement.

The Grand Jury at Dover has reported seventy-nine indictments, of which fifty-nine are for violation of the liquor law. This number includes several State Prison offences, the case of George T. Wentworth, for blackmailing, being among them. No bill is found against Hill, charged with burning the barn of Mr. Roberts at Great Falls.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are quieting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

No use of taking the huge offensive, griping, drastic pills, put up in cheap wood or paste-board boxes, when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Sugar-Coated, Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules—scarcely larger than mustard seeds—possessing as much power as any large pill, and neatly put up in little vials that preserve their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, can be had for 25 cents of all Druggists. 709

SPLENDID AND UNPARALLELED TRIUMPHS

—OF THE—

WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine Co.,

NEW YORK.

OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,

—AT THE—

WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.

1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis J. seph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being for progress made since the Paris Exposition of 1867, at which the only Gold Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior medal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only award of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.

(GROUP 13, SEC. 2, 3.)

"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 2,000,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."

"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly pearl stitch."

"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prices at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

Wood Island Breakwater.

The Engineer instructed to report to the War Department what harbor works are necessary along the coast has reported to the Secretary, and among other items recommends a breakwater between Gerrish's Island and Wood Island. The site for such a breakwater is near the outer entrance to the harbor, on a rocky ridge or bar connecting the two islands, being 1330 feet at high, and 872 feet at mean low water. At extreme low tide this bar is uncovered for nearly its whole length. The officer reports that commerce would be greatly benefited by such an improvement, in the large increase of safe anchorage ground, beside affording a good harbor of refuge during southeast gales. From its proximity to the navy yard, it would also prove an advantage to vessels of war, especially as the harbor thus enlarged would be well protected by the forts in its vicinity. The amount of material required for a breakwater is estimated at about 23,000 cubic yards of riprap, and its cost at about $150,000. The site of the proposed breakwater is well known to boat excursionists in our harbor, many of whom have grounded on Wood Island bar at one time or another.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, petition of M. B. Thompson for use of South ward room for sacred concert on Sunday evening was granted. Petition from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, for their secretary to be appointed special police without pay, was granted.

The request of the Fire Engineers that some action be taken on the Chief's recommendation in his annual report that ten police officers be appointed to attend fires under the direction of the Chief Engineer, was laid on the table.

The Committee on Fire Department, to whom was referred Critchley & Whalley's application for purchase of steam boiler, reported recommending that the same be offered for sale at $125. The recommendation of the report was adopted.

The Mayor presented a letter from G. E. Kent, Mayor of Portsmouth, England, acknowledging the receipt of views of this city sent by the Board; the letter was accepted and ordered to be placed on file.

Bills to the amount of $3000 were reported by the Committee on Accounts, and ordered to be paid.

The Committe on City Lands and Buildings presented a report against the petition of John Grant. The report was accepted.

The following preamble and resolution were read:

Whereas, The Portsmouth & Dover Railroad has been built mainly by the subscriptions of the cities of Portsmouth and Dover, the City of Portsmouth having subscribed for 3000 (three thousand) shares, to the amount of three hundred thousand (300,000) dollars in said road; and whereas frequent enquiries are made relative to the cost of the road, therefore

Resolved, That a committee of two (2) with the Mayor be appointed from this board with power to act in the name and behalf of the city, whose duty it shall be to examine the records and files of the Corporation and report to the Board of Mayor and Aldermen the nature and amount of all contracts for the construction of said road and for furnishing and constructing the same, with the total cost of constructing, the amount of private subscription and payment for stock, and the amount realized by the sale of the Bonds of this City, the total indebtedness of the road, and the means in directors' hands for the payments; and said Committee are empowered at their discretion to procure certified copies of every contract or other paper and present them to the Board of Mayor and Alderman with their report.

The resolution was passed, and Ald. Wilson and Sise were appointed said Committee.

Voted, That the City Government of Dover be informed of the action taken by this Board as expressed in the foregoing resolution.

Laconics.

As long ago as 1840, Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett appeared before the legislature, backed by promise of aid to the extent of half a million dollars, petitioning for authority to allow the Eastern Railroad to run from Portsmouth to Dover, and make that connection serve the purpose of the line for Portsmouth to South Berwick. But the Dover people opposed the scheme, and nothing more was done for a decade. In 1851 the question was again openly canvassed, and a year later a survey was almost made, paid for jointly by citizens of the two cities. That survey was almost identical with that adopted for the building of the road.

Chairman Putnam, of the democratic State committee, and Mr. L. Hall, candidate for Senator, were in town Thursday, but got little encouragement from the democratic leaders. We are to have a Senator named Hall from this district, sure enough, but Jeremiah will warm Lafayette's political ear for him when it comes to polling votes.

The American Band of Rochester will furnish music for Storer Encampment, G. A. R., on Decoration Day, the Naval Band being engaged to play in Massachusetts.

By special request the colored Jubilee Singers will give one of their fine concerts of slave hymns and devotional songs in the South ward room to-morrow (Sunday) evening, commencing at 8 o'clock, the doors to be opened at 7. Admission 25 cents.

Happy Home Division, Sons of Temperance, of North Hampton, will visit Old Oaken Bucket Division, of this city, Monday evening. The North Hampton girls are as good looking as any on the coast, you know.

Ex-Mayor Morrison's portrait has been added to the collection in the city building.

Brilliant Success.

It is permitted to few men or companies to achieve acknowledged superiority in any important position or business. The present generation has witnessed stupendous rivalry in several branches of industry, and notably the Sewing Machine business. Among a multitude of competitors the Wheeler & Wilson Company held their way from the beginning, upon fixed and honorable principles. Long since, their leading position in America was established. Abroad, at London, in 1862, they won the highest premiums; at Paris, in 1867, they distanced eighty-two competitors, and were awarded the highest premium, the only gold medal for Sewing Machines exhibited; and lastly, amid unparalleled competition, followed the splendid triumphs at Vienna, noted in our advertising columns.

Health's Shield and Protection.

Health is universally admitted to be the most desirable of earthly blessings, yet it is jeoparded as recklessly as if it were of no value at all. Thousands who are compelled by their occupations and pursuits to breathe unwholesome air, to expose themselves to violent alternations of heat and cold, and to brave other evils inimical to health and life utterly neglect to fortify themselves against the dangers which surround them by a proper course of tonic treatment. For many years it has been a public fact, undenied even by the martinets of the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best antidote to malaria and the finest acclimating medicine in existence. In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames; while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and all kindred complaints it is confessedly without a rival.

The happiest discovery of the age. ANAKESIS, an infallible remedy for PILES, a scientific combination of poultice, instrument and medicine, endorsed by physicians of all schools, discovered by DR. SILSBEE, a regular physician, and used successfully in thousands of cases. Sufferers who have tried everything else in vain will find instant relief and permanent cure. It is regarded by medical men as the greatest of modern discoveries, and pronounced infallible. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Obscure Diseases, no matter how they originate, and without regard to the sex of the sufferer, are cured without danger or inconvenience by Helmbold's Extract Buchu, the great Diuretic, which acts specifically upon the Kidneys, Bladder an auxiliary organ. FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 51 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

Fire Department Ordinance.

SEC. 15.—If any person shall willfully or maliciously injure any of the fire apparatus owned by the city, or any reservoir or well intended for the use of the fire department, or shall ride or drive any animal or carriage across any hose or other apparatus when at use at any fire, or at any trial of any engine, he shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and shall be required to pay all damages by him caused.

The above Section will be enforced by the Board of Engineers. 12td feb6

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Transfers, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMORIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to correct the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A minister asked a tipsy fellow, leaning up against a fence, where he expected to go when he died. "If I can't get along any better than I do now," he said, "I shan't go anywhere."

—The operation of whitening sugar was discovered by accident. All sugar is dark until washed. Pack some brown sugar in a funnel; how is it to be washed? Clearly not by pouring water upon it; which would dissolve the crystals, but by letting it drain dry. Such used to be the process. Ten thousand loaves of sugar, in funnels, would sometimes be draining at once in a Cuban sugar house. It happened at a plantation, early one morning, that old "mammy," after feeding the poultry, left the gate of their yard open. There had been a shower, and the feet of the fowl were sticky with clay; yet they nevertheless crossed over to the sugar house, and entering at the door, went picking into the funnels and depositing moist clay on their contents. Nobody knew till then that moist clay gives off water so sparingly, that it will purify sugar without dissolving it. The hint was taken, experiments were made, and the fact clearly ascertained. It was one of the most curious and useful of chance discoveries. To this day yellow and brown sugar in the West Indies is whitened by spreading moist clay over the surface. This is called "claying the sugar."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulceration of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucborrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increased the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and wasts, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AT NO. 9 MONTGOMERY PLACE, BOSTON, Mass.

COLBY & RICH,

Publishers and Proprietors.

ISAAC B. RICH.....BUSINESS MANAGER.
LUTHER COLBY.....EDITOR.

Aided by a large corps of able writers.

THE BANNER OF LIGHT is a first-class, eight-page Family Newspaper, containing FORTY COLUMNS OF INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE READING, classed as follows:

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.—Original Novelettes of reformatory tendencies, and occasionally translations from French and German authors; Poetry, original and selected; Choice Stories for Children, etc.

REPORTS OF SPIRITUAL LECTURES—By able Trance and Normal Speakers.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS—Upon Spiritual, Philosophical and Scientific Subjects.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.—Subjects of General Interest, the Spiritual Philosophy, its phenomena, etc., Current Events, Entertaining Miscellany, Notices of New Publications, etc.

MESSAGE DEPARTMENT.—Spirit-Messages from the departed to their friends in earth-life, given through the mediumship of Mrs. J. H. CONANT, which demonstrate direct intercourse between the Mundane and Super-Mundane Worlds.

ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTIONS from the most talented writers in the world.

All which features render this journal a popular Family Paper, and at the same time the Harbinger of a Glorious Scientific Religion.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION, IN ADVANCE.

Per Year	$3.00
Six Months	1.50
Three Months	75

☞ There will be no deviation from the above prices.

In remitting by mail, a Post-Office Money-Order on Boston, or a Draft on a Bank or Banking House in Boston or New York City, payable to the order of COLBY & RICH, is preferable to Bank Notes, since, should the Order or Draft be lost or stolen, it can be renewed without loss to the sender.

Subscriptions discontinued at the expiration of the time paid for.

Subscribers in Canada will add to the terms of subscription 20 cents per year, for pre-payment of American postage.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS.—Subscribers should not fail to write legibly their Post-Office Address and name of State.

Those wishing the direction of their paper changed from one town to another, must always give the name of the Town, County and State to which it has been sent.

☞ Specimen copies sent free.

Twenty-six numbers of the BANNER compose a volume. Thus we publish two volumes a year.

Patrons of the BANNER when renewing their subscriptions should be careful to always state the place to which the paper is mailed; and the same care should be exercised when a change of location is desired.

ADVERTISEMENTS published at twenty cents per line for the first, and fifteen cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when recorded to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &C.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Bennicker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and slights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to be in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. I have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Stumbling Horses.

An officer of the British cavalry writes to a paper as follows, concerning the management of a horse when he stumbles: "The cause which led to the sad and sudden death of Bishop Wilberforce must be my apology for troubling you with this letter, having seen it stated that the accident was probably due to the fact of the horse not being sufficiently in hand. This, in my opinion, is, although a general, yet a very mistaken idea, for it has only been those horses ridden up to the hand that I have seen fall. If you tie a man's arms to his side and give him only a slight push, he will tumble down to a certainty, and as surely will any horse fall if when he stumbles his head is held up tight, by the rider attempting to keep the animal up. Just as a man finds it necessary when he stumbles to throw out his arms to keep himself from falling, a horse in the same manner, when similarly circumstanced, needs his head free to keep on his feet. It is quite a mistaken notion for any rider to imagine that by pulling the reins he can either lift his horse over a leap or upon his legs again after stumbling. A pull at the bit in a horse's mouth will certainly cause him to throw his head up, but that very action causes the shoulders and knees of the animal to sink. We have only to watch an unmounted horse stumble, to notice how easily and naturally he recovers his footing by precisely opposite aids to what ridingmasters, as a rule, teach. A horse so circumstanced drops his head and neck in order to relieve the shoulders of their weight, and when thus eased the animal can recover his foothold upon the ground; but put upon him a dump-jock and fasten his head to it with a pair of reins, and I'll guarantee, if ever he stumbles, down he must come. During an experience extending now over 30 years, I never knew a horse to fall from a mere stumble that was ridden with a loose rein, while, on the other hand, I have seldom seen a horse ridden, as it is termed, 'up to the bit,' who, if he tripped, forgot to tumble as well. The only use of the bit and reins is to guide, 'halt,' or make a horse rein back, and, when we pretend we can do more than that with these articles, we are simply attempting the impossible. If the rider's feet rested upon the ground, then by using them as a power the horse might be raised a little, but not otherwise. A baker can lift his basket, but he could not do so with himself in it."

Agassiz's Belief in the Immortality of Animals.

[Boston Globe.]

It would be idle to multiply instances of the thorough humanity and geniality of Agassiz. Everybody who knew him can tell hundreds of anecdotes illustrative of his sympathy with all forms of life, whether in the jelly-fish, the human child, the developing boy or girl, the mature man or woman. Still his conviction of the immateriality and personality of mind was something wonderful in so austere a naturalist. We happened once to please him by defining a jelly-fish as organized water. "Now look at it through the microscope" he said. "But, Agassiz, the play of organization is so wonderful that it seems to me that nothing but mind can account for it." "You are right," was his answer; "in some incomprehensible way, God Almighty has created these beings, and I cannot doubt of their immortality any more than I doubt of my own." His fealty to the rights of animals exceeded that of any great naturalist who ever preceded him. Incompetent as we are to give his due rank among the great naturalists of the world, we think he excelled every naturalist who has gone before him in striking at the soul and individuality of all animals below man. It is impossible to convey in words the peculiar feeling which Agassiz had on this matter. Doubtless this large and genial genius is now satisfied. We cannot penetrate beyond the vail.

Household Receipts.

Common lye of wood ashes will soften hard putty in a few minutes.

The fumes of a brimstone match will remove berry stains from a book or paper engraving.

Dry paint is removed by dipping a swab with a handle in a strong solution of oxalic acid. It softens at once.

In laying up furs for Summer, lay a tallow candle in on near them, and danger from worms will be obviated.

If you want a new shoe to fit as easily as an old one, put on two pairs of stockings before your measure is taken.

When clothes have acquired an unpleasant odor by being kept from the air, charcoal laid in the folds will soon remove it.

If there is rust on your flat-iron or other roughness, put some fine salt on a board, and rub it rapidly while warm, until it moves smoothly.

A single drop of the sequiped chloride of iron, put on a corn between the toes once a day with a camel's hair brush, will effect a marvelous cure.

If black dresses have been stained, boil a handful of fig leaves in a quart of water and reduce it to a pint. A sponge, dipped in this liquid and rubbed upon them, will entirely remove stains from capes, bombazines, etc.

Ten grains of oxalic acid in half a pint of water will remove all ink and fruit stains. Wet the article in hot water, and apply it to the top of the bottle, so that the liquid will reach it, then rinse it well.

If rats are about scatter powdered glass about their holes, or powdered copperas, or fill up the crevices with hard soap, or dip the rat in a cup of tar and let it go, and it will tar-plaster every hole in the house.

If a glass stopper won't move, hold the neck of the bottle before a flame or warm it by taking two turns of a string and see-saw; the heat engendered expands the neck of the bottle before a corresponding expansion reaches the stopper.

A solution of five parts of borax in one hundred of water is represented to prevent the putrefactive process in meats for a considerable time. Flesh dipped in the mixture and then dried is said to resist usual process of decomposition.

Borax, half a teaspoonful in a tea-cup of water, makes the mildest and most efficient hair and scalp cleaner in the world. Rub it into the hair and scalp with the balls of the fingers, head held over a water basin, eyes shut until the entire scalp is in a foam, then rinse with warm water.

The white of an egg is said to be a specific for fish-bones sticking in the throat. It is to be swallowed raw, and will carry down a bone easily and certainly. There is another fact touching the usefulness of eggs, which should be remembered, as it may be of value. When, as sometimes by accident, corrosive sublimate is swallowed, the white of two eggs taken will neutralize the poison, and change the effect to that of a dose of calomel.

Shampooing Cattle.

[New York Times.]

The advantages attendant upon the thorough currying and washing the hair and hide are additional beauty, a better digestion, hence greater ease of fattening and no less amount of food, and, directly and indirectly, an influence for good on the whole animal health, among which may be mentioned less liability to diarrhœa. Every stable, whether for cow or horse, should have its curry-comb and brush; to these some add the card, and there should be also a tub of water, or weak soap-suds, and a sponge. These should be used at least once in two days in warm weather, and any farmer who has never tried it will be astonished by the marked improvement in his cattle if he will only adopt this plan as an experiment even for a few days. Every one who has ever enjoyed the luxury of a skillful barber, after a long, dusty ride, can have some idea of how improved a cow or ox will feel to have his or her skin well cleansed of dust after a long, hot, summer day. The cow thus treated will yield more and better milk; the ox or work-horse, after his skin is cleansed, sleeps well and is rested; the next morning, he goes forth to his work with an elastic step, and a consciousness in every movement of health and strength.

—One who wishes the world to know what he knows about farming, says that the best way to raise strawberries is with a spoon.

—Alluding to the death of a citizen recently, the Danbury News remarks, "With the single exception of twenty-three years ago, when he took a few lessons on a violin, his life has been blameless."

—The meanest man is claimed for Nevada, by the Virginia Enterprise. A drover, who was taking a band of 500 fat sheep to Virginia City was snowed in at the Geiger Grade, where he was obliged to halt. There were a few tons of hay at the station, but when the owner thereof was asked to sell he demanded $150 per ton, just $120 more than it would bring in Virginia, five miles distant. The drover declined to pay the exorbitant price. He went to town, drove out a small band of cattle and brought the sheep to town over the trail thus made. A clear case of "vaulting ambition."

—An instance of very ingenious engineering is reported in a foreign paper. During the construction of a bridge at Kullenborg, Holland, one of the principal traverses, some four hundred and sixty-five feet in length, was placed about one inch too far on the piles. At that locality the difference between day and night was twenty-five degrees Fahrenheit. In the morning the too-far-advanced end of the traverse was securely bolted down, when during the day the heat of the sun expanded the metal so that the free extremity advanced .985 of an inch. Then at night the latter end was fastened, and the contraction caused a like movement of the opposite free extremity. This operation, twice repeated, brought the traverse into its proper position.

—A queer hog story comes from Salem, Oregon. The owner of the ferry at Buena Vista had two hogs, which mysteriously disappeared about three months ago, at which time they weighed about three hundred pounds apiece. About that time a new warehouse was built near the ferry at Buena Vista and filled with wheat, which was shipped a week ago, when the structure was removed, and under the floor were found the missing swine, alive, but not weighing near so much as when last seen. They had evidently gone under the warehouse to find wheat which leaked through the floor, and were detained there by the settling of the building. They lived on what wheat leaked through a crack, and occupied a circular place they had worn for themselves, but during all that time they must have been without water.

Outspoken.

The Nashua Telegraph narrates the following incident that occurred at Concord last June:

As a prominent member of the Legislature was on his way from the station to the State House, on an early day in the session, he was accosted by an influential railway manager and invited to his office to get a free pass for the session. The farmer—for such he was—straightened himself up, and quietly remarked: "As a member of the Legislature, I have no right to accept a free pass, and I guess I can get along without one. Good morning." The nonplussed railroad official went his way, and our sturdy, independent farmer, who was none other than Gen. McCutchins, went his.

Pea-Comb Partridge Cochins.

At the Massachusetts poultry show, last week, at Boston, three cages of Asiatic fowls were exhibited by Mr. Chas. H. Edmonds of Melrose, formerly of this city. Mr. Edmonds has bred the stock with great care for three years and has succeded in producing a Partridge Cochin with pea-comb, instead of the high single comb which is liable to freeze in winter and wither. The fowls are said to be very prolific. Orders for eggs or chickens may be addressed to Mr. Edmonds at Melrose, Mass.

The Temperance Campaign.

Reports from southern Ohio and Indiana show no abatement in the enthusiasm concerning the temperance crusade which has enlisted the leading people in the various communities. The saloon-keepers of Shelbyville, Ind., having served written notices on the ladies that they would hold them accountable for loss of business, an incorporated company with $300,000 capital was organized next day to fight the rumsellers with legal weapons. Two saloons have been closed in Murcil, Ind., and the druggists voluntarily signed a pledge not to sell liquor. The traffic is wholly suppressed in Leesburg, Ohio, and a committee has been appointed to prevent the opening of any new saloons. The saloons are closed in Cedarville and Georgetown, and the campaign is about to open in Dayton, Ohio.

At Washington Court House, Ohio, the second place where the temperance movement began, a complete victory is recorded. The last liquor seller tried to obtain terms, but the ladies were inexorable, and demanded an unconditional surrender. He finally yielded, and a meeting of thanksgiving was held.

At Athens the liquor sellers tried to hold a meeting in a church, but could not get a quorum. One druggist sent in a pledge, which was not accepted. One saloon keeper agreed to stop. The ladies spent the day in the suburbs.

The most interesting case is that of Xenia, which is the largest town in which the movement has been attempted. It is claimed that if it succeeds there, it may succeed in other large towns. A message was received from druggists stating that they had signed the pledge. Encouraged by this the ladies went to the saloons and found most of them closed. At last they surrounded one and made a protracted effort, but no capitulation was effected.

At Dayton the ladies are quietly watching for a favorable time to begin operations against liquor dealers. In the meantime they are getting ready.

A division among the people is reported at McArthur, Vinton county, and one saloon-keeper engaged music to be played while the ladies are about his place.

At Lancaster ladies are urging on the work. The saloons are all closed, but no pledges were given.

Work has begun in Canton, South Charlestown and Greenville.

At West Jefferson, in five days, two saloons out of six closed.

At Shelby, Ohio, a hundred ladies were grossly insulted on the street by a saloon-keeper.

At New Holland they were assaulted by a saloon-keeper with a poker. He was arrested.

Readables.

A brewery ice-house in Philadelphia fell on Friday, and eight men were buried in the ruins. Six were killed.

Two boys named Young and Riley were out hunting near Pinckneyville, Ill., last week, and, being under the influence of liquor, agreed to shoot at each other. Young came up to within twenty-five steps of Riley and shot him in the breast.

Hamilton, the Jersey City defaulter, whose arrest was announced, has escaped into Mexico by a liberal use of money.

Important correspondence has passed between Generals Sherman and Sheridan in regard to the Indian difficulties. The latter writes confirming the recent outrages, and General Sherman in reply authorizes him to begin active operations against the Indians.

Great destitution is reported among the people living along the route of the New Jersey Southern Railroad, as a consequence of the recent strike of the employes of the road.

Hon. John I. Redick, of Omaha, has begun suit against the Union Pacific Railway for $100 damages for causing to be published in the Omaha Herald an erroneous time-table, by following which he missed connections.

An alarm of fire about eight o'clock Saturday forenoon at Newburyport, was caused by an explosion of naphtha in the cellar of the house at the foot of Olive street, owned by Cornelius Lyon. It appears that there were some cans of naphtha in the cellar, and water during the night ran into the cellar, floating the cans and causing them to empty the naphtha, which floated upon the water. Lyon, in company with John Sweeny, made an attempt to examine the cellar with a light to see what damage was done, and opening the cellar door the gas rushed up, and coming in contact with the flame caused an explosion, which blew out a part of the end of the house. Lyon and Sweeny were both burned—the former in the face and hands; the latter received the most of the force, part of his clothing being torn from him. He is also very badly burned in his face, hands and upon some portions of his body. He is in a very critical condition, but may survive his injuries. The house is damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars.

Taylor's pantechnicon at Belgravia, London, covering an acre of ground, was burned. Loss $15,000,000. Two firemen were killed.

The Telegraph says that a gentleman living in Brunswick, Me., owns a fine dog. Two or three weeks since an old cat belonging to the same party was sick, and the gentleman was satisfied that she would die. Going out of the house he said to the dog, "Watch her." The dog did so, sitting by her until the animal died; he then seized her by the neck, dragged her through two or three rooms out into the yard, and commenced to dig a big hole in the snow bank. When the gentleman returned he found the dead pussy lying upon the snow close by the hole, and the dog busily at work enlarging it.

Those barber chaps are queer fellows. No matter whether large or small, lean or fat, tall or short, they are always strapping fellows; and however blunt, uncouth, or nonunderstandable in speech, are always fond of soft-soaping people; and however peaceable or quarrelsome always in a scrape.

It is stated as a fact susceptible of easy proof that a young man at Austin, Nevada, has made a mistake. He bought a handsome dress pattern for his intended wife and a pair of red flannel drawers for himself. He delivered the wrong bundle. Result—a broken head and a ruined frying-pan.

Stephen Mershon, of Union township, Scioto county, Ohio, was married to Mary Hall, of Nile township, in 1855. During this period Mrs. Mershon has presented her liege lord with fifteen children,—eight boys and seven girls,—thirteen of whom are living. The oldest (a boy) is eighteen years old, and the youngest is a boy, three months old. If any family can beat this, let them report and get a chromo.—otherwise Mr. and Mrs. Mershon take the premium picture.

A few days ago a gentleman residing on Porter street in Ayer, Mass., in making alterations in his house, discovered a subterranean apartment which, from all appearances, had been used as a workshop for counterfeiting money. In one of the rooms on the ground floor a small smelting furnace had been set up by a former occupant, and near the remains of the furnace was discovered a large quantity of finished counterfeit quarters and half dollars; also about a half basket full of circular pieces of similar metal all ready for stamping.

State News.

Two thousand men are employed in the construction of the extension of the Wing Railroad from the Twin Mountain House to Fabyan house, a distance of nine miles, which is to be completed by June 15.

The Boston and Maine Railroad has cut off a large number of yearly passes given in previous years, on account of freight sent over its line by business men. The rule adopted at the beginning of the year, is strictly adhered to, and the consequence is that very many business men on the line of that road seem to have less occasion to make a trip to Boston than in former years.

County Solicitor Frink has informed Rev. B. F. McDaniel, of Exeter, complainant in a recent liquor prosecution, that he does not regard him as entitled to one-half the fines for which he had applied. The solicitor bases his opinion on the recent ruling of Judge Doe.

Rev. H. M. Stone, formerly of Laconia, is the prohibition candidate for Councillor in District No. 2, in which capacity he will doubtless do his level best to defeat Mr. Foss and elect the license candidate. "O, consistency," etc.

Charles P. Wood of Hollis, who was sentenced to the State Prison for twelve years for murder, has been pardoned by the Governor and Council. He had served about two years and four months.

How Others See Us.

The following extract from a New Zealand paper of November last, reads oddly in view of recent events:

"Touching this question of an extended presidential term in France, we may remark upon the proposal which is mooted in some quarters in America, namely, that the distinguished General at the head of the United States Government, should be elected for a third presidential term. The newspapers in the confidence of the Administration repudiate having anything to do with this idea, and argue that General Grant has nothing to gain from it; but there are other leading organs of public opinion which discredit this statement and treat it as a feeler. Should the public not strongly protest against it, they conceive that the Administration will work up to the project during the present term, and thus accustom the country to the idea which, when submitted for approval, would not startle any one. There is nothing in the Constitution opposed to a third presidential term, but the practice has been, in no case to nominate any man for the Presidency more than twice. Indeed, the Father of the Republic set the example, and held that it was dangerous to the Commonwealth for any man to be elected for a third presidential term. The Administration organs state that the rumor may have originated owing to the discussion of a project, by the Cabinet, for altering the presidential term by law, making it a single term of six years, and prohibiting a second nomination. Why this change? ask the Democrats and independent Republicans. The old system has worked well. The election of a President for a second term shows that the public have confidence in him; but by the proposed law, the people would be powerless to punish a corrupt President by refusing to elect him a second time. Perhaps the example of the French Assembly, which has just forestalled the suffrages of the French people for ten years, may not be without influence in shaping the course of events in the United States. It is perfectly evident that a great political crisis is impending in the States, consequent on the corrupt influence of the Administration through its relations to those railway and banking corporations, which have latterly done so much to bring the American name into disrepute. The Administration intends to cling to power. It shelters itself under the great name of General Grant, and may, unless checked in time, seriously compromise that gallant soldier with the American people, who are as jealous of their civil rights as they are proud of their President."

The only "great political crisis" which we can see "is impending in the States," is the possible acknowledgement by the long-since dead democratic party that it is dead; and the "corrupt influence of the Administration through its relations to railway corporations" must have received a heavy blow from the recent republican vote in Congress on the question of the national regulation of commerce between the States. The comical manner in which "The Administration" and President are placed in opposition to each other show that our other-side-of-the-world cousins are not yet aware that the President is a power in the land, and held directly responsible for all the doings of "the Administratives" he appoints.

The Great Falls Rumsellers.

[Rochester Courier.]

It does certainly look as though the rum fiend had been let loose in Great Falls and had permanently made that locality his abiding place. On Thursday James A. Edgerly, Esq., took out another batch of warrants against the gin slingers, who, in revenge, just laid low until darkness had covered the earth and honest people were in bed, then they sent forth their imps on their cowardly mission where young Edgerly has an office, and bank notes, bank books, writs and all valuable papers that their thieving hands could find were consigned to the stove, and more than a thousand dollars worth of property was thus destroyed. We have no doubt but what Mr. Edgerly will keep right on in his efforts to bring the violators of the law to a sense of their unworthiness to live in a respectable community and continue their pauper-making business. Now this attempt to injure Mr. Edgerly has fallen to the wrong man, and Copeland, a red-headed six-footer, with a temper like a meat axe, is the loser, but what is his loss is the temperance people's gain, for he will take hold of the matter and push things. Edgerly's papers were all in the back office and remained unharmed, and the theory is that the imp who did the business of burning, groped in the dark, being afraid to light a lamp.

"THE DEAD ALIVE" is the title of an illustrated pamphlet published by Shepard & Gill. Wilkie Collins is the author, and the story is very commonplace. It was suggested by the narrative of the conviction of Jesse and Stephen Brown for the murder of Russell Colvin. For sale at the book-store; price 60 cts.

Health's Shield and Protection.

Health is universally admitted to be the most desirable of earthly blessings, yet it is jeopardied as recklessly as if it were of no value at all. Thousands who are compelled by their occupations and pursuits to breathe unwholesome air, to expose themselves to violent alternations of heat and cold, and to brave other evils inimical to health and life utterly neglect to fortify themselves against the dangers which surround them by a proper course of tonic treatment. For many years it has been a public fact, undoubted even by the martinets of the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best antidote to malaria and the finest acclimating medicine in existence. In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames; while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and all kindred complaints it is confessedly without a rival.

The happiest discovery of the age. ANAKESIS, an infallible cure for PILES, a scientific combination of poultice instrument and medicine, endorsed by physicians of all schools, discovered by DR. SILSBEE, a regular physician, and used successfully in thousands of cases. Sufferers who have tried everything else in vain will find instant relief and permanent cure. It is regarded by medical men as the greatest of modern discoveries, and pronounced infallible. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Obscure Diseases, no matter how they originate, and without regard to the sex of the sufferer, are cured without danger or inconvenience by Helmbold's Extract Buchu, the great Diuretic, which acts specifically upon the Kidneys, Bladder an auxiliary organ. No other preparation possesses the fully developed merits of Helmbold's Extract. It is the only genuine Buchu, and it never fails. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent. Sold by all druggists.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

No use of taking the huge offensive, griping, drastic pills, put up in cheap wood or paste-board boxes, when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Sugar Coated, Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules—scarcely larger than mustard seeds—possessing as much power as any large pill, and neatly put up in little vials that preserve their virtues unimpaired for any length of time, in any climate, can be had for 25 cents of all Druggists. 7.9

A Perilous Experiment. To leave a cough or cold to "get well of itself." The chances are that it will get worse. Meet it promptly with Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar. The remedy is palatable and prevents all danger. A few drops and the cure is complete. Crittenton's, 7 6th Avenue. Sold by all Druggists.

Pike's Toothache Drops cure in 1 minute.

Piles, Piles, Piles, Piles.

Outward applications are time and money thrown away. The only permanent cure is Dr. Harrison's Peristaltic Lozenges. They strike at the cause. We could fill this paper with cures. They are pleasant, never gripe, nor, like all pills, do they require increase of dose. For elderly persons, females and children, and all others, they are exactly suited to obviate costiveness, the prolific cause of ill health. Trial box, 30 cts. Large box, 60 cts., and mailed free for this last price.

Portsmouth Mechanic Association.

The first regular quarterly meeting of this Association since occupying their new premises was held by adjournment on Tuesday evening; and the reports of the various officers and committees showed the staunch old organization to be in a flourishing condition. The new building has cost about $11,500 all completed; and is rented for about $2400, besides affording excellent and attractive accommodations for the reading room and exchange. Nearly twenty new members were voted in at this meeting, and the roll now numbers about one hundred and seventy-five. Members enjoy the use of the reading room free, besides other privileges; and the well-supplied room is open to other citizens at the small yearly subscription of $3. All reputable mechanics in the city, especially the young, should become members. The Building Committee, consisting of President Isaiah Wilson, W. A. Vaughan, Jr., J. C. Carr, E. M. Brown, and B. M. Parker, reported through their chairman, the completion of the new block, with the cost, and other details.

The special Committee for the purpose, Messrs. Frank W. Miller and A. F. Craig, reported that the members had contributed $137 for new furnishing the reading-room, which sum had been expended for the purpose by the reading room committee. Among the pictures on the walls, we notice a spirited marine view of Portsmouth, England, the great royal naval entrepot.

The committee on the celebration dedicatory of the new hall, consisting of Isaiah Wilson, F. W. Miller, J. H. Gardiner, A. F. Craig, D. J. Vaughan, F. I. Wilson, J. Knowlton, J. C. Carr, E. M. Brown and C. H. Downs, reported through their secretary the details of the occasion. The acknowledgements and thanks of the Association were extended to the several committees; and the celebration committee desire in turn to express their obligations to all members of the Association, and subscribers to the rooms, who in any way assisted to render the dedication successful.

It is suggested to change the long, awkward and rather too comprehensive name of the Association, from that of "The Associated Manufacturers and Mechanics of New Hampshire," to the Portsmouth Mechanic Association, which many think would be an improvement.

The Magic Talisman

As brought out at the Temple this evening will draw a large attendance. Howard, Langrishe & Carle's Black Crook company, numbering forty performers, includes M'lle. Jeannette Proscher, Manchester and Jennings, the Snow Brothers, Fred Runnels, Stephen Saville, a ballet troupe, and an orchestra under the direction of Herr C. Christrup. To-morrow evening, a large excursion party from Dover will visit this city to attend, and we advise those wishing to see this spectacular entertainment to go to-night as there will be a better opportunity of securing seats.

The Mayoralty.

Messrs. Editors: Reading your item in reference to the next Mayor calls to my mind the rascally doings by which Mr. Miller, who I believe was honestly chosen at the last election, was deprived of the office. No citizens' ticket that can be run this year can defeat him, and as the opposition threaten to nominate three candidates, the indications are that he will walk over the course very easily. Citizens' tickets have proved but humbugs for republicans to compass their own defeat. CITIZEN.

Toothsome Tasting.

Pearson & Co., the famed Newburyport steam bakers, are continually experimenting with new and mysterious processes of edibles, and bring out new sweetmeats for their customers that lead all contestants. Just now, they are manufacturing and selling cocoanut biscuit, just the thing for the table that a wise housewife appreciates. They are in everybody's mouth—the cakes, not the wives—and the grocers around town have a bountiful supply. Geo. H. Abbott, on Congress street, is selling quantities of 'em, and reports that the children about town must be veritable Oliver Twists, for they incessantly ask for more until there is no void to fill.

Hayseed Sprouting.

A correspondent of the Boston Globe writing from Portsmouth has the following in regard to political affairs here and in the State generally:

It was apparent to the discerning long before the democratic convention that Mr. Weston would be the nominee, though where his especial or personal strength lies is not so clear, if, indeed, he has any. He has been three times beaten for Governor by the republicans and only got into the gubernatorial chair by the skin of his teeth through the legislature. He is a pleasant, genial man, and has won what fame he has by being elected Mayor of Manchester, and it was the hope of carrying this, our largest city, and so deciding a majority in our closely contested State, that contributed largely to the nomination both of Mr. Weston and Mr. Straw. Portsmouth and Exeter both presented prominent and fit candidates for Governor, last term and this year; but whereas, Portsmouth, for a century or two, was virtually the State, and until quite recently shaped and controlled the whole Commonwealth, nowadays old Rockingham county is of little account, and her claims and suggestions are ignored and overridden by the mushroom cities and large towns of the interior. We have heard leading politicians claim 5000 majority as probable, each for their respective candidates! This is rather wild guessing, and certainly both sides will not get the victory; but the signs in this vicinity are more favorable for the republicans than they have been for a long time before. There is, perhaps, more of the old Castilian, or hunker element among the democracy in this and other old sections of the State, than dwellers in the rest of the State can appreciate, men who have "a reason for the faith that is in them," political rather than religious, and who do not embrace or endorse the new-fangled and progressive doctrines of the leaders. Thus, Gov. Weston, who was termed by some of the republicans, His Accidency, signed the railroad absorption act, whereby any road can seize or "acquire" almost any land they desire, and one of the unterrified assures me that he will lose from seventy-five to one hundred votes in this city from this cause. On the other hand, hayseed is sprouting well, and will yield a good crop or I am mistaken. A Grange is to be formed here immediately, and others are talked of in the towns of Rye and Greenland. One has just been formed in Stratham.

Laconics.

A pair of four-year old steers raised and fatted by Mr. Samuel Langdon of this city, and sold for beef to Messrs. Lane and Brackett, were exhibited on Market Square, Saturday, and pronounced one of the handsomest yokes ever raised in the State—though as they never had a yoke on, pair would seem the more appropriate word. It was estimated that they would dress about 3000 lbs. They are fat as cubs, closely matched, and handsome as pictures. It seems almost a shame to bring such beautiful creatures to the shambles.

George Bond, an Eastern Railroad brakeman, had his hand terribly crushed while shackling cars at Newburyport.

Judge Page has purchased the residence of the late Jos. G. Sise, on State street, for $4200.

The Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, has chosen William Kennedy of this city Grand Guide.

Mr. Frank W. Miller drove his yearling colts into town ad tandem on Friday, and they behaved handsomely. A tandem team is always regarded as one requiring skill to drive, and we never before heard of colts so young hitched up in this way. The leader was a bright little black Fearnaught filly; the shaft-horse a pretty buckskin filly, both coming two years old.

At a recent meeting of the Portsmouth, Ohio, city council, the Mayor "presented two beautiful views of the city of Portsmouth, New Hampshire," and read a letter from Mayor Marvin. The clerk was instructed to have the two pictures properly framed and hung in the Council Chamber, as a memento from the mother city. Then Messrs. Searl, Ewing and Buskirk were appointed a committee to draft appropriate resolutions.

That $600 piano was awarded Saturday evening. Mr. Stephen D. Scriggins was the fortunate owner of No. 64, and gets the piano.

Col. C. P. Blunt, in charge of harbor fortifications, with his family, and Rev. J. H. Gamble and wife, have taken rooms at the Rockingham House.

The name of the person who makes the complaint will be considered confidential. Persons knowing of cases where horses are cruelly beaten, over-loaded, not properly fed or sheltered, or are worked when lame or sick, will do an act of kindness by entering complaint against the drivers or owners of such horses, at the office of the Secretary. Persons knowing of cases where cows, oxen or other farm stock, including fowls, are not properly fed or warmly sheltered can inform the secretary and the cases will be attended to at once. Cases of cruelty to any animals will be attended to as soon as the facts become known to the Secretary. Persons having any sick or disabled animal that they wish destroyed, can have it killed, at a small expense by the expert of the society, summarily.

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and conscientious gentlemen with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Great determination of blood to the internal organs of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange and disorganize, is what they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eczema, Ringworms, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from and aggravated by scrofulous disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

☞ ALL COAL WELL SCREENED. ☜

Real Hair Switches.

FOR $1.50, at M. E. JOHNSON'S HAIR MAND FACTORY, 36 Congress Street.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—Only $4,000,000 are wanted to insure the carrying out of the Centennial. There are 8,000,000 families in the United States, so it would be only half a dollar to each.

—A telegraph editor asks the Trifler whether it is better to say "a stepson murders his father," or "a son murders his stepfather,"—or "a stepson murders his stepfather." Also whether the crime is parricide, or step-parricide,—or a step from parricide. The newspaper business is perplexing.

—An irrepressible joker while touching up his oysters with pepper from the castor, observed to the waiter that "pepper was half peas." "Oh, no," said the politc attendant, "that is the best sort of pepper." "Well, I tell you it is half peas; call Mr. Mills." That gentleman came, and the joker remarked, "I always expect to get the best of everything in this house, but this pepper is half peas." "That can't be so, we take especial pains to procure it, and have it ground in our own mill." "Well, it is so, and I can prove it." "If you can I should like to have you." "Well, John, you just spell it." And the amiable proprietor retired with a sweet smile on his benevolent face.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agains, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

SPLENDID AND UNPARALLELED TRIUMPHS
—OF THE—
WHEELER & WILSON
Sewing Machine Co.,
NEW YORK.
OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,
—AT THE—
WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &C.
1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being the progress made since the Paris Exposition of 1867, at which the only Gold Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior medal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle Industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only award of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:
OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.
(GROUP 13, SEC. 2, B.)
"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 800,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete precision of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."
"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly pearl stitch."
"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."
FURTHER DISTINGUISHED HONORS,
NEW YORK, Sept. 15, 1873.
THE GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR
—OF THE—
AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK,
Was unanimously recommended by the judges of Sewing Machines for
WHEELER & WILSON'S
NEW NO. 6 SEWING MACHINE,
of being "a decided improvement over all other machines in the market," and which "marks a revolution in certain branches of industry, especially in Shoe and Harness Manufacturing."
BALTIMORE, Md., October 31, 1873.
"The MARYLAND INSTITUTE has awarded WHEELER & WILSON the GOLD MEDAL for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine. Other Sewing Machines received nothing."
SAVANNAH, November 4, 1873.
"At the GEORGIA STATE FAIR, & SILVER MEDAL, the highest and only premium for Leather Stitching, was awarded to WHEELER & WILSON for samples done on their New No. 6 Sewing Machines."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years. Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL
CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I resided at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to get better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or coughs. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried my quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

The Perils of the Ship.

[Progressive Ship Builder.]

How strange the contrast between the antediluvian ship builder and his degenerate sons; notwithstanding the bow of promise is both the seal and signet of the Ocean's obedience to the laws of the Universe, our persistent efforts to adapt the Ocean to the Ship make countless thousands meet an untimely end. * * The dangers of the deep have been the dread of mankind since the time of the deluge. To the posterity of Noah all are indebted for this libel on infinite wisdom. We seem blind to the perils of the ship, and impeach the testimony of those who live beneath the shadowed memories of the past. We hush the plaintive dirge echoed from a thousand shores, and offer a solace to desolated hearthstones—in the lullaby of water-tight compartments, life boats, and policies of insurance. We hesitate, as though we feared to inquire why the Log Book of Life—the Daily Press—has its columns darkened with disasters on the deep? Why unnumbered thousands of our race are so strangely mingled with the finny tribes of the sea? The palsying sweep of impending terror and gathering wrath hang over the ocean traveler like a solitary cloud, self-balanced in a universe of gloom. We seem to regard nature's laws as intangible abstractions, without verity, and table the game of life upon our fathers' tombs. * *

The phrase, "perils of the sea," is an antiquated expression, coming down to us from the days of open canoes and coasting navigation. It was applicable to the times of Columbus, but in our day it should be entirely ruled out. There are greater perils than those of the sea—they are

THE PERILS OF THE SHIP.

It is to them we, in the present day, at least, owe by far the greater portion of our marine disasters. That we can make the sea as safe as the dry land is entirely within the scope of science, combined with the genius of construction. It is not the province of man to hush the winds upon the ocean; but can he not pour the oil of science upon its waves and quench their power to harm?

"The dangers of the seas!" How unearthly is this sound, as it echoes from every shore. It is printed upon every charter party, and found upon every bill of lading. The dangers of the seas have been recounted to lisping infancy, and repeated by the man of hoary years, until the race of civilized man has, either in person or by proxy, wept and wondered at the voicings of the mighty deep. We pause to inquire from whence the dangers of the seas arise?

Has the briny wave lost its buoyancy? has it ever failed to furnish flotative or sustaining power, when obedience has been yielded to the laws of flotation? No. Is the track of this oceanic highway unsuited to floating fabrics of every size and of every gauge? Is the grade of this universal pathway too elevated or too much depressed for utility? No. This roadway was not built by a faithless contractor. It is in no danger from fire or flood. No raider can tear up its track. No landslide can obstruct its passage. It can not be destroyed by fire, nor decayed by the wasting hand of Time. Then why this libel on Infinitude? The ocean wave is as much the subject of law as the air we breathe. Science has mapped out the pathway across the trackless deep in the starry heavens. Every cape and promontory has its light-house, every coast its soundings, and every harbor its pilot.

Whence, then, the dangers of the seas? They can not be chargeable to fire, nor yet to collision, inasmuch as these are incidents of both land and ocean travel. If a vessel founders at sea, it is caused by a defect in the design or construction of the fabric, or in its preservation, loading, or navigation. If another is burned from having wood too near the boilers, it is not chargeable to the sea, any more than the burning of a house would be. If a ship is wrecked at the entrance of a harbor in a fog or snow-storm, it is not justly chargeable to the sea, for the reason that every navigator prefers plenty of sea-room in such contingencies.

The dangers of the seas have passed away; they belonged to an age of ignorance and superstition, such as that in which our late tonnage laws were made. It is upon the dangers of the ship we shall more particularly dwell. All the dangers incident to ocean travel may be traced to imperfect design and construction, or to improvident navigation. The age has passed when it was considered impious to encounter the perils of the sea, when men were said to run in the face of Divine Providence by venturing on the unstable element. We are not disposed to be irreverent; but as we read the history of the creation, when finished, Infinite Wisdom pronounced it good. * *

Instead of studying the laws which control the elements, and adapting the ship to these, we study British Lloyds' or the articles of underwriters, and vainly attempt to make Nature's laws bend to the provisions of human enactments. * * * The question becomes pertinent, if bad ships are to be kept in sea service so long as crews can be obtained to man them, if it would not be far more consistent to have the policy of insurance issued against the dangers of the ship, instead of those of the sea, and give the families of officers and crew a salvage on the policy. It is not satisfactory to answer that incorporated companies insure against accidents and loss of life, while underwriters cover the vessel and cargo. Has it come to this, that human life, like property, must be placed in one scale, and gold in the other, in order to determine its value by weight? * * By the mutual system of underwriting few vessels, however unseaworthy, could be condemned, nor does it now shock a sense of propriety to see vessels repaired without reference to seaworthiness; marine surveyors are not selected for their mechanical qualifications; and the United States are not the exception to this general remark. In our ignorance of the elements of Nature which we appropriate to our use, we have charged nearly all our marine disasters to the sea, and we call it dangerous, and enter a protest in every bill of lading and charter party against what we call "the dangers of the seas;" without knowing what these dangers really are, we protest against something, we really do not know what. The dangers of the seas are few; indeed, less than those of the land. The thoughts of a single hour of any intelligent, thinking, unbiased mind should suffice to convince a ship owner or underwriter that this is so. When a ship founders in the ocean, it must be clear that the same leak would have sunk her in port, at a wharf. * * If the vessel is well provided with pumps, and returns to port, she is recalked, and the same risk is repeated. Infinite Wisdom made the sea wrong, as these ship owners would say—the ship is all right! Such is the repulsive effect of our logic in regard to ships. * *

Cases are not rare in which vessels are reclassified and receive a higher rating of character, for a consideration, without being examined by the surveyor who rates them. It is not intended that these strictures shall apply to the American more than to the London, Liverpool and French Lloyds, which differ from American chiefly in their studied discriminations against foreign vessels. Mechanically considered, they are inferior to our own, while not a few of their rules were conceived in obliquity and perfected in ignorance. The whole system of survey and classification must be laid bare in detail, and a radical change take place, before confidence can be restored, without which all clamor about a revival of commerce is but an empty sound, unless we improve the conditions for obtaining an honest classification of character. * *

The scientists of England well know that the scepter of a flotative philosophy could not be retained on the shores of Albion, with iron hulls, without first setting aside the more buoyant wood constructions. To this end the British Lloyds' commission was resolved into a committee of the whole, with instructions to inaugurate a commercial policy which should be national. It was thought better that England should stultify herself than that the palm of supremacy should be wrested from her by "wooden walls"—and J. Scott Russell was honored with a commission to perform the funeral rites and write the orbituary notice of wooden ships. The more credulous of her unsuspecting cousins, believing her sincere, accepted the dogma; while the few who combined cause with effect believed that commercial life and truth would at a proper time be competent to show that wooden ships, although entombed by foreign policy and domestic strife, were not dead, but sleeping. Not a few of the ship owners of the Old World, having in their own experience proved the economy of wood over iron ships, have begun to look about, at the time of this writing, if perchance they might be able to obtain them, now that so large a number of the operative mechanics in wood constructions since the late war have sought other channels of employment. The colonists were exultant at the news that the mother country, after her ripe experience, preferred wood to iron ships, because of their being more profitable. If more profitable in England, why not in the United States? Ship brokers have labored assiduously to show that the "cheap iron ship" was the coming vessel for the world's commerce, but the subsequent fearful increase in the number of missing iron vessels, together with Mr. Plimsoll's exposures in the British Parliament, have shown the absurdity of such pretense. To the question, "What becomes of unseaworthy merchant ships?" we reply: They founder at sea!—unless stranded before the completion of their last voyage. But wooden ships, like those of iron, are too frequently marked rotten or sound—seaworthy or otherwise—according to the interests involved, or the price paid for the survey. * * *

[Long ago, at a time when one set of politicians, in and out of Congress, were abusing the republican party for having by a prohibitory tariff destroyed American shipbuilding, and another set,—equally as well posted in nautical matters,—were placing all the blame against the war and the rebel cruisers, this paper maintained that neither war nor tariff had done all the mischief, but that American wooden ships had been crowded off the ocean by British iron ships, a fictitious and wholly unmerited value having been given to the latter by the unjust discrimination of the British Lloyds; and that all that was needed to secure a revival of wooden shipbuilding was a just system of classifying, the average American wooden ship being a better vessel in every respect than the best iron ship yet built. Consequently it is with peculiar satisfaction we read the opinions of such an acknowledged authority in these matters as Mr. Griffiths, the author of "The Progressive Ship Builder."—Eds. Chronicle.]

The increasing efforts of England to decry wood and force iron vessels upon the world have culminated in the United States. The passenger, mail, and freighting transit for the North Atlantic at the time of this writing is in the hands of British companies, who know no naval architects or ship builders other than those recognized as British engineers; these tell us through their journals that iron is better than wood, as a material for the construction of ships, and that the greater the length, within certain limits, the greater the speed attainable, with enlarged accommodations and comforts for passengers. The result has been that the scientists, engineers, and capitalists of England have constructed a series of trade-marked lines of single-shelled steamers, quite a number of which are over 400 feet long, being 11 times their breadth, and make their passage with a roll of 30 to 54 degrees, in from 7 1-2 to 11 days, with no assurance that local attraction may not at any time derange their compasses, particularly when fogs prevail, and become the immediate cause of danger, if not of shipwreck. Looking from those giddy heights of attainment in perfected science developed in the hulls of these iron steamers, to those of British engineering in the machinery which propels them, we see the same egotistical bombast so characteristic of those who now obstruct the progress of genius with incongruous navigable fabrics. * *

Some of those who are compelled to endure the hardships of an Atlantic voyage, and have to pay for the privilege, remember that over 20 years ago more than 400 miles a day were steamed without the aid of sail on the Atlantic, with a roll not exceeding 10 degrees in a wooden steamer less than 250 feet long. Nor have the sailing fleet of Liverpool packets been forgotten, which 40 years ago made their passages in from 12 to 20 days with even less roll. Passengers could take their meals without having the contents of a plate of soup in their lap, or being rolled out of their berth. The roll of these vessels was easy and their decks comparatively dry. These ships were from 600 to 900 tons by the old law of measure, and would have been somewhat larger by the new law. We call to mind the "Independence," one of whose sailing days was March 5th. The ship annually took out the President's messages, and on one of her passages made the run from land to land in nine days. Their passages were made with great regularity in from 12 to 20 days. The "Pacific" made a passage in 12 days, and the ship "Oliver Ellsworth" made the passage from New York to Liverpool, some 50 years ago, in 13 days. In noting the status of the two past decades, and comparing the improvements made in home construction since the war of 1861, we are reminded that since the introduction of iron vessels for Atlantic transit, in safety, speed, and sea qualities, we have been moved backward, like the sign shadow on the dial-plate of Ahaz.

The Temperance war.

Two hundred women met at the Methodist church in Jeffersonville, Ind., Saturday, and after preliminary arrangements marched quietly to the most prominent saloons. At the first saloons they were refused admittance, and services were held on the pavement. At two other saloons visited they were invited in, and the proprietors agreed to quit the business if bought out. An immense crowd congregated, and drinking continued during the services.

One hundred and fifty postal cards were mailed through the Covington, Ky., post-office, on Saturday, to saloon keepers, which read as follows:

Dear Sir:—You are requested and entreated to abandon the sale of intoxicating liquors for your own welfare and that of humanity. Remember it is degrading to yourself and spreads vice and poverty among us. If you do not do this, we will unite our prayers and visit you and every saloon in a body, fervently pleading until our object is attained.

THE LADIES' COMMITTEE ON TEMPERANCE.

The sale of liquors in Covington is licensed by the city and State. Despatches from the various parts of southwestern Ohio report about eighty of 140 places where liquor is sold have been closed since the beginning of the temperance movement. These reports come from fourteen towns and villages at Logan, Leesburg, New Vienna, Washington and Blancaster. A complete victory has been gained. Muncie, Ind., reports eight of eleven places. The average time of the movement in these places is less than two weeks.

The temperance movement is progressing in Ripley, Ohio; one or two dealers who were pledged to sell no more liquor have undertaken to renew their old business quietly. The ladies renewed their efforts with these, although new suburban saloons are now receiving most attention. A vigilant eye is kept on all dealers who have surrendered.

The women's movement is under headway in Brooklyn, and a committee was appointed to importune the legislature for amendments to the excise law. The superintendent of the South Side Long Island Railroad has been requested to issue orders refusing to receive as freight any intoxicating liquors.

A Gun That Kicked.

Lawyer Copeland reports his loss less than was at first supposed. He thinks it no great pecuniary loss, as his valuable papers and notes were never kept among the papers destroyed. A few notes, the same as worthless, and several papers valuable for daily reference, are missing, though of no very great pecuniary value. He thinks the outrage was committed by some of the liquor sellers who had been prosecuted by Mr. Edgerly. Mr. Copeland wishes us to publish the fact that he shall commence war against the men engaged in the traffic in Great Falls, though he has never taken any part in the prosecutions heretofore. He says he thinks it his duty now, to make an effort to enforce the law and drive the traffic from our midst, and he shall do all in his power to suppress the unlawful business. He thinks he has been outrageously molested by the dealers. Mr. Copeland can enforce the law; so can any man, but will it produce the desired effect? Men are more easily coaxed than driven. Ever since the year 1690, it seems that men have been trying to stop the sale of intoxicating drinks, and what is the result?

Why not coax a little? Do as they are doing in Ohio. There they are organizing little praying bands, composed of ladies in the community. They visit the saloons and hold prayer meetings, and in many places they are meeting with surprising results. Why not try this kind of warfare in Great Falls? Not a liquor seller in this village could hold out long in the nefarious business with such influences around him. The ladies in Ohio who are conducting the prayer-meeting warfare against the whiskey sellers, show the sagacity of the Scriptural serpent. A few men still bid them defiance and refuse to shut their doors to customers or open them to missionaries. To conquer these last strongholds of Satan, the teetotalers have had a 'tabernacle' built. It is a small house on wheels, comfortably warmed and lighted. This they pitch before the enemy's doorway, and sing and pray within its walls ad lib. At night, when thirsty mortals try to skulk stealthily into the saloons, the rays of a powerful reflector detect them. They are personally appealed to, and if they still enter, are made the objects of special prayers, which delivered in fervent tones, ring through and through the bar-room. The tabernacle remains until midnight and reappears bright and early next morning. No man has yet been found who can resist it for three days.

Miss Emma Lowd of Manchester fell on the ice last week and fractured an arm.

Judge Isaac W. Smith has taken the oath of office.

The store of Twitchell & Page at Milan was entirely destroyed by fire, on Thursday, and only part of their goods were saved. There is $2000 insurance on all, which will nearly cover the loss.

The case of Jordan v. Town of Somersworth was concluded in the Supreme Judicial Court at Dover on Thursday night. It was an action to recover damages from said town for injuries sustained by a young lady falling upon a slippery sidewalk. Plaintiff was awarded $350.

The Nashua Telegraph says it learns from good authority that Evans, the Northwood murderer, has made a confession, to be published after his execution, that is likely to startle the community.

Mobile, Ala., is in a municipal fix. After the recent election some doubt appears to have risen as to who was elected mayor, and the question was referred to a court in Montgomery county, which decided in favor of the republican candidate. The democrats now repudiate this decision, asserting that the court has no jurisdiction in the premises. A large meeting has been held, at which resolutions were adopted pledging all present to refuse to pay all city taxes or to accept city scrip as long as what they term the usurpation continues.

Mr. Small of New Hampshire addressed the House, Saturday afternoon, in opposition to the free banking bill reported by the Banking and Currency Committee. He believes that the removal of the limit to the amount of national bank note circulation would be simply the transference of that power from the Government to the speculators. So dangerous a proposition in his opinion has rarely been made in Congress. He favors some means for making the currency elastic, but thinks that the means proposed by the committee is dangerous and wrong. He predicted an era of speculation and general bankruptcy if the bill should become a law.

Gov. Dingley has surprised Maine with the first veto message in fifteen years, and the Saco Independent mentions him for U. S. Senator. A good nomination.

Lawrence Norton was fatally stabbed in an affray at Boston Highlands shortly after midnight on Saturday evening. Several parties have been arrested on suspicion.

The Montana legislature has voted to appropriate $5000 toward the centennial exhibition.

In Hobokon, N. J., a constable who had shot and seriously injured a man was set upon by those standing around and kicked so severely that his injuries will probably prove fatal.

Advices from Spain announce that the national troops have defeated 2000 Carlists before Tolosa, and revictualled the city.

A miner named Neil McBride was murdered in Beaver Meadow, Pa., on Saturday evening.

John A. Boppe, a heavy brewer of lager in Newark, N. J., has abandoned the business. His lager has been famous and it has brought him half a million of money. The abandonment of the business by Mr. Boppe has caused much speculation among his German acquaintances, and various reasons were given for the resolution to which Mr. Boppe has come. Among other reasons alleged was that of the influence of a revival of religion just now going on in Newark. But Mr. Boppe says his action is not the result of religious excitement, but of conviction of duty. Three years since he stopped drinking beer or any other liquor, and reflection has convinced him it was hurtful for others and he ought not to make it, and so he has stopped, and he will make no more nor allow the building to be used for a brewery.

A whole family in Chicago were found on Saturday under the influence, apparently, of some powerful poison, from which two had died and the rest seemed in a dying condition. No explanation of the affair has yet transpired.

Minneapolis, Minnesota.

If the census taker of 1850 did visit Minneapolis, his entire work was to write the name of J. H. Stevens, then the only inhabitant, who still lives there and still is not an old man. Now the city has 30,000 inhabitants, and is as handsome a city as the United States can boast of. There are thirty-five churches, six of which have been built during the past year. There are ten fine large brick or stone school houses in the city, the State University, Macalester college, the Scandinavian Lutheran seminary, and Hamilton university, the Methodist college, beside a female seminary, and many private schools. There are ten banks with a capital of $925,000; six railroads, delivery and street cars, run by steam dummies, the company having a capital of $250,000; sixteen newspapers and periodicals printed in the city show the intellectual demands; there are eighteen large lumber mills, which in 1872, made 167,918,814 feet of lumber, and 99,235,750 shingles, not to mention laths, pickets, etc. Sixteen flour mills require four freight-trains per day, of ten cars each, to draw off their products.

One of these mills alone (the largest in the United States) has forty run of stones, and has a capacity of 1,500 barrels of flour per day. There are two large iron works, two immense plow factories, one reaper factory, four furniture factories, seven barrel factories, nine boot and shoe manufactories, the largest with a capital of $100,000, a pork packing house, which last year packed 5,380 hogs, one cotton mill, which in 1872 made 241,000 grain bags, 40,000 yards of ducking and 200 tents and wagon covers, two large woolen mills, one of which made last year, besides its cassimeres and flannels, 50,000 blankets, the finest in the market,—all these beside its many small manufacturing establishments.

During the past year there has been expended in new buildings $1,687,836, and in streets, bridges, street cars, and such improvements $1,096,664, making a grand total of $2,784,500 for one year's improvements, and the factories of the city have turned off work to the enormous amount of $13,859,689, and its commercial business for the year aggregated $12,521,200, in sales. The business blocks and factories are built mostly of blue magnesia limestone, but some of brick.

This is a pretty fair showing from one log cabin and a bare prairie only twenty-three years ago. The citizens never point back two hundred years and say "what a people our grandfathers were," but their works say "our fathers taught us, by precept, to push forward and not let their works sink back into the ground." "Let every ten years find that we have advanced and not receded." TOWN TALK.

Health's Shield and Protection.

Health is universally admitted to be the most desirable of earthly blessings, yet it is jeoparded as recklessly as if it were of no value at all. Thousands who are compelled by their occupations and pursuits to breathe unwholesome air, to expose themselves to violent alternations of heat and cold, and to brave other evils inimical to health and life utterly neglect to fortify themselves against the dangers which surround them by a proper course of tonic treatment. For many years it has been a public fact, undenied even by the martinets of the medical profession, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best antidote to malaria and the finest acclimating medicine in existence. In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames; while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and all kindred complaints it is confessedly without a rival.

The happiest discovery of the age. ANAKESIS, an infallible cure for PILES, a scientific combination of poultice instrument and medicine, endorsed by physicians of all schools, discovered by DR. SILSBEE, a regular physician, and used successfully in thousands of cases. Sufferers who have tried everything else in vain will find instant relief and permanent cure. It is regarded by medical men as the greatest of modern discoveries, and pronounced infallible. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Obscure Diseases, no matter how they originate, and without regard to the sex of the sufferer, are cured without danger or inconvenience by Helmbold's Extract Buchu, the great Diuretic, which acts specifically upon the Kidneys, Bladder an auxiliary organ. No other preparation possesses the fully developed merits of Helmbold's Extract. It is the only genuine Buchu, and it never fails. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent. Sold by all druggists.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

Local Matters.

Sad Accident.

About ten o'clock, Monday morning, as Engineer Hawkes was running the shifting engine "Othello" across Green street, he was startled at seeing a man roll from between the wheels. Stopping the engine, it was found that the injured person was Joseph D. Pillow, Esq. A minute previous Mr. Pillow had been engaged in conversation with Mr. Wm. R. Martin, and another person who saw the accident says he dropped his hat and was stooping to recover it when the engine struck him, after leaving Mr. Martin. On being taken to the waiting room at the depot, it is said that on being asked if he was badly hurt Mr. Pillow replied "Yes." A carriage was brought, but the unfortunate man died before reaching home, living about forty-five minutes after the accident. His right arm was broken at the elbow and near the shoulder, and the ribs and breast bone were also broken. His head and face were badly bruised. There was also a bruise near the right knee. The physicians are of the opinion that the latter injury was received from the engine wheels, but that he was not run over, death resulting from the shock he received when struck and from bruises while under the engine. Mr. Hawkes says the engine bell was ringing from the depot to the scene of the accident and he saw no one on the track, although he was at his post watching. Mr. Pillow undoubtedly fell on the track on the left of the engine. There was no flagman at the Green street crossing, which is fully as dangerous as that of Vaughan street. Had there been one, the accident might not have happened.

Mr. Pillow has been quite unwell for some months, but appeared unusually active, Monday morning. A feeling of gloom spread over the community on learning of his death, and the bereaved family (a wife and two daughters) have the heartfelt sympathies of all. Mr. Pillow was a man of singularly simple habits, was noted for his integrity and respected for his traits of character. He held the position of Inspector at the custom-house for twelve years, having been appointed May 19th, 1861. He was one of the selectmen of the town of Portsmouth in 1849, the year previous to its becoming a city, and at the time of his death, was Surveyor of this port. He was also a Director of the Howard Benevolent Society.

Coroner Rider has summoned as a jury of inquest, Messrs. William Conn, Ashela F. Thurston and William A. Ashe. The inquest will be held at the council room at three o'clock, Wednesday afternoon.

The Colored Jubilee Singers

Gave one of their unique concerts at the South ward room on Sunday evening. The Hall was well filled, every available seat being taken, while about a dozen chairs kindly loaned by a near neighbor were found useful to late comers. The audience, altho' a mixed one, was very orderly and appeared well pleased with the entertainment. The singing was as good as usual, which is saying enough for this excellent troupe. Mr. Thompson, the able and gentlemanly leader, made a brief recapitulation of the doings of the class, (as he terms the singers,) and stated that they propose to continue their efforts in concert-giving until they have obtained funds sufficient to build such a church as will be an honor to the city and a credit to its colored population. Mr. Thompson asked the sympathy and patronage of the people of Portsmouth in behalf of the work in which he and his co-workers are engaged. He is to have a benefit at the Temple next Sabbath evening, and as the tickets are placed at the low price of 25 cents to all parts of the hall, he will, without doubt, get an overflowing house. This benefit concert for Prof. Thompson is given by the members of his class as a partial remuneration for the labor he has bestowed upon them in their musical instruction.

"The Magic Talisman,"

Or something as attracting, drew a large audience last evening at the Temple. The scenery is new and the costumes rich; the stage effects and transformation scenes are novel, the actors display familiarity in their parts, the ballet is equal to anything in that line ever seen in Portsmouth, and the music is fine. The management understand the difficult business of placing before the public a most attractive entertainment, and (as a still greater crowd will be in attendence this evening,) will doubtless carry away well filled pocket-books. The special train for the theatre, from Dover, will arrive at seven o'clock.

A Change.

Two years ago, had any one predicted that in a short time none of the occupants of positions at the custom house would be found in office, they would not have been believed, and would have been met with the answer that "Few die and none resign." Within that time, a deputy collector and an inspector have died suddenly, two inspectors, a collector and surveyor have resigned, and a surveyor has been accident ally killed. We believe that the janitor of the building is the only one remaining who held a position there two years ago.

"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp."

Twenty-two tramps were furnished with lodgings in the police station, Sunday night; and almost every night a number of these vagabonds bestow their patronage on that institution. Occasionally there is a deserving person among them,—some honest but unfortunate laboring man who has failed to procure work, and is thankful for the biscuit and rude bed which will help his scanty treasury to hold out until he can find employment,—but the great majority are worthless fellows who are "too lazy to work, too cowardly to steal," and who travel from place to place, begging food at private houses by day and lodging in police stations at night, or applying to City or Town authorities for undeserved relief. The police have little difficulty in picking out the unfortunate laboring men from the professional tramps and loafers; the former are invariably grateful for the simple fare they receive, and never growl that their beds are hard or their food coarse; while the tramping loafers are often exquisitely dainty, and think a city or town that offers to their valuable selves only biscuit and fish is a mighty poor place to visit. One of the latter gentry was very indignant, Sunday night, at not receiving "something decent to eat," though the biscuit furnished by the city is excellent and the fish the best that can be procured; and such instances of a loafer's gratitude occur almost daily. We suggest that a place be provided for such fellows where they can pay for their food and lodging by cracking stone or doing some other labor for an hour or two, believing such a plan would tend to divert their unprofitable patronage to some other locality.

Laconics.

When Hon. Jonathan Dearborn was Mayor, in 1867, the Aldermanic Board voted to require the erection of a gate at the Vaughan and Green street crossings, and Mayor Dearborn went so far as to locate the posts, but citizens living near circulated a petition asking a reconsideration of the vote, which was done, against the wishes of the Mayor.

A friend suggests that the present short supply of water is purposely occasioned by the Aqueduct company, to furnish an additional inducement to the citizens to vote in favor of the purchase by the city of the company's property at the coming election. We think our friend must be mistaken, for the agonizing memories of former sufferings will certainly be found sufficient to make a large majority vote in favor of anything which promises possible relief in the future, without the addition of any new sorrows; still, we cannot give any other reason why there should be so little water in the aqueduct pipes when so much is running to waste on the surface.

The last lecture in the S. P. C. A. lyceum course will be given this (Tuesday) evening in the Court street Christian chapel, by Rev. Warren H. Cudworth, D. D., of Boston. Subject, "In the Dark." Lecture to commence at quarter before 8 o'clock.

This evening for the benefit of the Sabbath school, Rev. Geo. W. Christie will lecture at the Congregational church at Kittery Point, on "Scottish life and scenes" familiar to him in boyhood, and as seen by him in his recent tour in Scotland.

Next Friday evening the colored Jubilee Singers of Portsmouth, under Mr. M. B. Thompson, their Director, will give one of their noted and popular concerts, at Kittery Point. singing from "their very best selections"—the proceeds to be appropriated to the laudable object of aiding them in their efforts to build a church for themselves and associates in Portsmouth. We hope they will have a full house and an appreciative audience.

The smelt fishers on Great Bay each have a hole in the ice, which the fisher cuts at the beginning of the season, and from which the young ice is daily removed. The right of each fisherman to his established hole is sacredly observed. Recently a veteran fisher, of more than three-score years and ten, was found at a hole claimed by another liner. "This is my hole," said the younger fisher. "No it is not," said the veteran. "I cut it early in the winter," followed the younger. "I can't help it," said the old one; "I cut it first." "When was that, pray?" inquired the junior. "I cut it last year!" was the unanswerable rejoinder.

The Eastern Railroad will hereafter run an ice train from North Beverly to East Boston.

—The teacher of an infant school had her attention called to one little fellow who was listening to what she said. She had been teaching her class the elements of English history, and wishing to see if he knew what she was talking about, she suddenly asked, "Johnny, who killed King Rufus?" With a surprised look he replied, "Why, I didn't know he was dead!"

Commercial College

FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the ocasion of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 51 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

Fire Department Ordinance.

SEC. 15.—If any person shall willfully or maliciously injure any of the fire apparatus owned by the city, or any reservoir or well intended for the use of the fire department, or shall ride or drive any animal or carriage across any hose or other apparatus when at use at any fire, or at any trial of any engine, he shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and shall be required to pay all damages he may occasion.

The above Section will be enforced by the Board of Engineers. 12td feb6

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alterratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health, and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Old Time Chronicles No. 105.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

One old deed has come to hand of late, that by some means was among papers left by Gov. Weare of Hampton Falls. It was of land in Hampton, deeded by John Crosse of Ipswich, Mass., to Roger Shaw of Cambridge, Mass. We have seen several early deeds, commencing thus: "Know all christian people," probably those not to know were the Indians. This commences, "Know all faithful people in Christ." Who or what class were left and in this, is not readily determined.

The consideration of this is one hundred and one pounds, sixteen shillings. The land conveyed is two hundred and thirty-nine and one half acres, or upwards. Parcels are named, as forty rods of common near the meeting house; fourteen acres of upland and swamp near the house; the buildings; thirty-seven and one half acres of meadow; one hundred and one acres of upland and swamp with pine plain; and four score acres of salt marsh, or more. It is dated Nov. 15, 1647. Richard Salstonall did the writing. It was delivered in the presence of John Whitingham and John Vicker. The last, in signing, made his mark. From the description of this land, I have no doubt it was in the vicinity of what is now the center in Hampton, particularly about where the Academy now stands, and extending off in other directions. Very likely, too, Roger Shaw, the purchaser, settled on the land. Roger Shaw, probably the same, was chosen Deputy to the Massachusetts General Court, but four years later, from this town, and was re-elected in 1652 and '53. The name Shaw has been in town long, perhaps ever since this purchase, when the town had been settled but nine years. Two hundred and twenty-six years have passed since.

—There is a man in Idaho who recently found the truth of the old saying. "There's many a slip," etc. He was a man against whom no adverse charge could be urged, except having lived single too long to engage in a little game of matrimony with a young and handsome rival. The stake was a buxom lass of nineteen, and although the hero "put up" broad acres and horned beasts innumerable, and "went" a rich quartz mine and a forty-stamp mill "better," his opponent "called" him on a full hand of youth and good looks, and took down the "pot." Delay is always dangerous.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

ISAAC B. RICH.....BUSINESS MANAGER.
LUTHER COLBY.....EDITOR.
Aided by a large corps of able writers.
THE BANNER OF LIGHT is a first-class, eight-page Family Newspaper, containing FORTY COLUMNS OF INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE READING, classed as follows:
LITERARY DEPARTMENT.—Original Novelettes of reformatory tendencies, and occasionally translations from French and German authors; Poetry, original and selected; Choice Stories for Children, etc.
REPORTS OF SPIRITUAL LECTURES—By able Trance and Normal Speakers.
ORIGINAL ESSAYS—Upon Spiritual, Philosophical and Scientific Subjects.
EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.—Subjects of General Interest, the Spiritual Philosophy, its phenomena, etc., Current Events, Entertaining Miscellany, Notices of New Publications, etc.
MESSAGE DEPARTMENT.—Spirit-Messages from the departed to their friends in earth-life, given through the mediumship of MRS. J. H. CONANT, which demonstrate direct intercourse between the Mundane and Super-Mundane Worlds.
ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTIONS from the most talented writers in the world.
All which features render this journal a popular Family Paper, and at the same time the Harbinger of a Glorious Scientific Religion.

☞ There will be no deviation from the above prices.
In remiting by mail, a Post-Office Money-Order on Boston, or a Draft on a Bank or Banking House in Boston or New York City, payable to the order of COLBY & RICH, is preferable to Bank Notes, since, should the Order or Draft be lost or stolen, it can be renewed without loss to the sender.
Subscriptions discontinued at the expiration of the time paid for.
Subscribers in Canada will add to the terms of subscription 20 cents per year, for pre-payment of American postage.
POST-OFFICE ADDRESS.—Subscribers should not fail to write legibly their Post-Office Address and name of State.
Those wishing the direction of their paper changed from one town to another, must always give the name of the Town, County and State to which it has been sent.
☞ Specimen copies sent free.
Twenty-six numbers of the BANNER compose a volume. Thus we publish two volumes a year.
Patrons of the BANNER when renewing their subscriptions should be careful to always state the place to which the paper is mailed; and the same care should be exercised when a change of location is desired.
ADVERTISEMENTS published at twenty cents per line for the first, and fifteen cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!
And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all
LUNG COMPLAINTS.
This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.
CONSUMPTION
CURED
By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.
Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry
Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,
And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

TRIUMPHS

—OF THE—

WHEELER & WILSON

Sewing Machine Co.,

NEW YORK.

OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,

—AT THE—

WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.

1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded by their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being for progress made since the Paris Exposition of 1867, at which the only Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior medal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle Industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only award of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufactures, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.

(GROUP 13, SEC. 2, B.)

"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 900,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the year by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."

"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly plait-like stitch."

"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

FURTHER DISTINGUISHED HONORS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15, 1873.

THE GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR

—OF THE—

AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK,

Was unanimously recommended by the judges of Sewing Machines for

WHEELER & WILSON'S

NEW NO. 6 SEWING MACHINE,

of being "a decided improvement over all other machines in the market," and which "must revolutionize certain branches of industry, especially in Shoe and Harness Manufacturing."

BALTIMORE, Md., October 31, 1873.

"The MARYLAND INSTITUTE has awarded WHEELER & WILSON THE GOLD MEDAL for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine. Other Sewing Machines received nothing."

SAVANNAH, November 4, 1873.

"At the GEORGIA STATE FAIR, A SILVER MEDAL, the highest and only premium for Leather Stitching, was awarded to WHEELER & WILSON for samples done on their New No. 6 Sewing Machines."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL

CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh for twelve years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period; would sometimes fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. Had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or coughs. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,

No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. THE CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

EPISCOPACY vs. PURITANISM.

Rev. James De Normandie's Historical Sketches. No. 6.

THE MINISTRY OF REV. JOSHUA MOODEY; HIS CONNECTION WITH THE FIRST CHURCH IN BOSTON; HIS CHARACTER; THE CONTRIBUTION OF PORTSMOUTH TO HARVARD COLLEGE.

In our last discourse we brought the history of our parish down to the gathering of a body of communicants in the year 1671. The primary and general use of the word church is a building consecrated to the worship of the Lord. The word, which in the New Testament is translated "church," means an assembly, and afterwards the place of assembly,—so that "church" came to signify also the general body of worshippers, the congregation, all Christians. Still another general use of the word is to denote ecclesiastical usage or authority in contradistinction to civil. In England the word church is by custom confined to the places of worship belonging to the National or Established Church, the houses of Dissenters being called meeting houses or chapels, a distinction which is not popular in this country. There has been, however, a use of the word church quite general in all matters of religion, and in all records of parishes by which "church" is restricted to the body of communicants in a parish,—but in popular usage this distinction is no longer observed. Everybody speaks of the Baptist Church, or the Methodist Church, or Unitarian Church, or so of any of the sects, meaning the house of worship. It was not so among the Puritans; their place of worship was by them, with intense bigotry and satisfaction, named the meeting house, their communicants were "the church;" So, after Moodey had been settled about twelve years over the parish of Portsmouth, and the congregation had filled and overflowed the Old South Meeting House, measures were taken for the formation of a church and the observance of the Christian ordinances. The history of the matter is still plainly preserved in Mr. Moodey's own handwriting, and is as follows:

PORTSMOUTH, N. E., Anno 1671.

After many serious endeavors which had been used by ye then minister of ye place (since the pastor of ye church there) in public, & by severall of ye Inhabitants in Private, ye Lord (without whose presence & blessing man builds but in vain) was pleased at length to lay ye Foundation of an House for himself in this place, of ye beginning & progress whereof here follows a brief but true account:

In ye winter time of ye foregoing year (viz., 1670) there were severall meetings together of the minister with severall of ye Inhabitants (who were members of other congregations in ye country, & by Providence settled Inhabitants in Portsmouth) to discourse & confer about ye greate worke and necessary Duty of entering into Church Fellowship, that themselves might enjoy all ye ordinances of ye Lord's House & theyr little ones also might bee laid near God's altars & brought up under ye Instruction & Discipline of his House. Nor could they that were members of other churches any longer satisfy themselves to live without ye enjoyment of those edifying & strengthening ordinances that theyr soules had in some measure formerly tasted ye good of, though now for some yeares been kept from. Others also well affected to ye worke, professed theyr longings after those fatt & marrowed things in God's house, & theyr readiness to joyne with them in helping to build if they should be found fitt for ye same. Hereupon severall assembled in private and sought ye Lord by fasting & prayer yt hee would discover to us a right way (there being many feares & discouragements before us) for ourselves and little ones (Ezra 8, 21, 22, 23) & wee hope wee may say hee was entreated of us, as ye Event hath in some measure (blessed bee his name) made manifest."

Then follows an account of private meetings, which were continued several days, to discuss the subject and arrange the conditions of church membership; meetings of inquiry as to relations of one to another, so that they could freely unite in the same society; of consent to several sermons delivered by Mr. Moodey upon the subject, in the latter part of 1670 and beginning of 1671; of a committee appointed to "acquaint the civil authority" of their purpose; of an invitation sent to other churches; of their attendance with the civil authority; of a sermon by the pastor; of the ordination of the pastor by several of the elders and of the ordination of a deacon by imposition of hands and prayer.

The nine persons who were embodied and formed the first communicants were Joshua Moody, Mr. John Cutt, Mr. Richard Cutt, Colonel Elias Stillman, Mr. R. Martyn, Samuel Haines, Captain James Pendleton, Mr. John Fletcher and Mr. John Tucker. So widely were they scattered that Stillman was from Newcastle and Haines from Great Bay at Greenland.

Mr. John Cutt, the first president of the province of New Hampshire, died in 1681, and in 1682 Ed. Cranfield was appointed lieutenant-governor and commander-in-chief of the province. "Whereas our colony of the Mass. (alias Mass. Bay) within our dominion of New England, in America hath taken upon themselves to exercise a government and jurisdiction over the inhabitants & planters in the towns of Portsmouth, Hampton, Dover, Exeter & all other ye towns & lands in our province of New Hampshire lying & extending itself from three miles northward of the Merrimack River unto the province of Maine, not having any legal right or authority so to do, which said jurisdiction & all further exercise thereof we have thought fit by the advice of our privy council to inhibit and restrain for the future," etc., etc. * * * "Now know ye, that we reposing especial trust and confidence in the prudence, courage and loyalty of you, the said Ed. Cranfield, Esq., out of our especial grace certain knowledge, mere motion have thought fit to constitute and appoint you our Lieutenant Governor and Commander-in chief, of all that part of our province of New Hampshire," etc. His commissioner has also these words: "And above all things, we do, by these presents, will, require and command you to take all possible care for the discountenance of vice & encouragement of virtue & good living, that by such example the infidels may be incited, & desire to partake of the Christian religion, & for the greater ease & satisfaction of our said loving subjects, in matters of religion, we do hereby will, require and command that liberty of conscience shall be allowed unto all Protestants, & that such especially as shall be conformable to the rites of the Church of England, shall particularly be countenanced & encouraged."

It seems from the language of the commission that one of the principal objects of Cranfield's appointment was to settle a serious difficulty which had arisen in the colony in regard to the claims of the heirs of John Mason, the original proprietor. His descendants, under the lead of Robert Mason, one of Cranfield's council, came to reassert their right to most of the land here, which had been greatly improved and the titles to which having been derived from the government of Mass. Bay, the judges of England had set aside. The most serious disturbances the colony had yet known now began. Cranfield's residence was at Great Island, now Newcastle, where a number of the leading colonists lived. Of course Cranfield and Mason became at once objects of bitter hostility to all the settlers, who, without any, or no good titles, began to fear the loss of their possessions. The Home Government had decided that, on account of great expenses which the ancestry of this Robert Mason had incurred upon their grant of land at the Piscataqua, until they were molested and finally driven out, he had a just claim upon the estates here. Mason agreed with the House Government to demand nothing for the time past, nor molest any one in the time to come, provided the tenants would pay him sixpence to the pound on a just and true yearly value of all their estates. If no settlement could be made upon these terms, the cases were to be sent to England for decision.

It is easy to see the tumult into which the colony was thrown, it being determined almost unanimously that the claims of Mason should not be satisfied. Each House became the seat of a secret conspiracy. All conversation was about the claims of Mason, and the unpopular governor at Great Island. The result of it was that Cranfield could not settle the difficulties, adjust the claims, or resist the wide-spread opposition, nor, as has generally been supposed, could he obtain any personal advantages from the office. Complaints were made against him, and listened to by the Government, that he had himself attempted to settle cases which ought to have been sent to England, and he left the province in 1685.

Whether it was because Cranfield was sincerely desirous to favor the Established Church, whether he used this plea to cover up plans for self aggrandizement, or whether it was because the Rev. Mr. Moodey as one of the most influential men of the settlement was in the way of his success, Governor Cranfield soon came to an open rupture with Mr. Moodey. A ministry of twenty-four years at the time Governor Cranfield came, steadily increasing in favor and influence, had given to Mr. Moodey a sway in all local as well as parish matters, which could not easily or safely be disputed,—and that Mr. Moodey was not unwilling to use it appears from a letter of one Chamberlain, secretary of the province, and justice of the peace, wherein it was stated that Mr. Moodey was "archbishop and chief-justice too." The occasion for an open rupture between the head of the State and the head of the church came in 1684. In that year one of the leading characters of Great Island, George Jaffrey, a constable and a prominent merchant, was brought before the court for some evasion or infringement of the revenue laws, but for some reason legal proceedings against him were stayed and he seemed about to escape. Mr. Jaffrey, was, however, a member of the church, worshipping at the Old South, and it came to the ears of Mr. Moodey that there had been some false swearing in the matter, and when the State let Mr. Jaffrey go, the church took him up. Mr. Moodey brought him before the church for discipline, against the command of the governor, and in the end obtained from him an open confession of his wrong, a confession so sincere that instead of provoking him, it led Mr. Jaffrey to be afterwards an active, useful and leading man in the church. Thereupon, a short time after, Governor Cranfield issued an order that after the 1st of January ensuing all the ministers within the province should admit all persons of suitable years, not vicious or scandalous in their lives, to the blessed sacrament of the Lord's Supper and their children unto baptism,—and if any persons desired the sacrament, or their children to be baptized according to the liturgy of the Church of England, it be done under penalty of imprisonment of the clergyman refusing, and the loss of all the profit of his spiritual benefices. This was in accordance with a statute of Queen Elizabeth, but it was also in conflict with a later statute granting liberty of conscience to all Protestants, a provision plainly made, as we have seen, in Cranfield's commission and also in conflict with a provision of the Church which did not permit one not in holy orders to administer its sacrament, and Mr. Moodey had not been ordained according to the Church of England ritual. In spite of all this, the arbitary and enraged governor sent word to Mr. Moodey soon after that on a following-named Sunday he should attend worship at his church and receive the sacrament according to the service of the Established Church. The order reads like the reported command of one of our colonels in the late war ordering out a battalion of men to be baptized, so as not to be surpassed by a revival in another regiment. The governor sent also to Rev. Seaborn Cotton of Hampton, saying that when he had prepared his soul he would come and demand the sacrament of him, as he had done at Portsmouth. Whether the governor ever prepared his soul is not a matter of history, but, without waiting for that, the minister of Hampton at once fled to Boston. It was not so with the more courageous ministers of our parish. Mr. Moodey refused to obey the governor, saying, "I told the marshal I durst not, could not, should not do it." Whereupon complaint was made against him of violating the statute of Queen Elizabeth, "That the said Joshua Moodey, being the present minister of the town of Portsmouth, in the province of New Hampshire, . . . by the duty of his place is by Laws & Statutes of the said realm of England, required and commanded to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper in such manner and form as is set forth in the Book of Common Prayer, and administration of sacraments and other rites and ceremonies in the Church of England, and shall use no other manner or form than is mentioned and set forth in the said book. Whereas, the said Joshua Moodey, in contempt of the said laws and statutes hath wilfully and obstinately refused to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper according to the manner and form set forth in the said Book of Common Prayer, unto the Hon. Edward Cranfield, Governor of his Majesty in the province of New Hampshire, and others of his Majesty's comcil of the said province, and doth wilfully and obstinately use some other form than is by the said statutes ordained, therefore, etc., doth pray that the said Joshua Moodey being thereof convicted according to the Law, may suffer such penalties as by the said statutes are made and provided." In another information against Mr. Moodey praying for judgment against him, that he might suffer the penalties of the statute, we find the expression "the said Moodey having for many years had the appearance and reputation of a minister of God's Word."

It seems that the justices were divided in their opinion, two holding that he was not liable to the penalty on account of the liberty of conscience granted to all Protestants here, and four holding that he was. Mr. Moodey himself at the quarter session the 5th of February, 1684, upon examination pleaded his "not being ordained, having no maintenance according to the statute, and, therefore, not obliged to do that work which the statute required. Besides these statutes were not made for these places; the known end of their removal hither being that they might enjoy liberty in these foreign plantations which they could not have by virtue of the statutes at home, but were allowed to have here especially, our commission granting liberty of conscience." But it was all to no purpose, for the governor had determined upon his imprisonment, and to the prison at Great Island Mr. Moodey went.

There is preserved a letter of one William Vaughan, who was imprisoned about the same time, containing a journal with comments on current events. He writes, "Above all, our minister lies in prison, and a famine of the Word of God is coming upon us. No public worship, no preaching of the Word. What ignorance, profaneness and misery must needs ensue!" Under date of February 10, 1684, "The Sabbath is come but no preaching at the Bank, nor any allowed to come to us. Motions have been made that Mr. Moodey may go up and preach on the Lord's day, though he came down to prison at night, or that neighbor ministers might be permitted to come and preach; or that the people might come down to the prison and hear, as many as could. But nothing will do; an unparalleled example amongst Christians to have a minister put out, and no other way found to supply his place by one means or other.

Good Mrs. Martin was buried, not being able to live above one Sabbath after the shutting up of the doors of the sanctuary." How many would die for that reason now? Mr. Martyn, one of the first seven members of the church, was also imprisoned, and this journal is authority for the remark that the governor said to him, "I want money and will have it;" but, said Martyn, "I have none;" then said the governor, "I will take your house," adding that Martyn was a church member and that he would watch him and all such, and be sure to pay them off if he could catch them.

In April, after they had been "nine Lord's days without a sermon," Mason, in absence of Cranfield, gave leave for any minister to come and preach at the Bank, whereupon Rev. Samuel Phillips of Rowley came for two Sundays, the 13th and 20th of April. We find this item under date of September 12: "Mr. Joshua Moodey being about to take a journey out of the province, was forced to give a recognissance of £200 to return in three weeks if alive and well."

Mr. Moodey underwent imprisonment with a courageous spirit, and writes during his confinement, "I told the court that I should go to prison with more peace than they sent me thither, and particularly applied myself to Roby, a church member. I told him that I had done nothing but what he was by solemn covenant engaged to maintain, and wished him to provide against the day when these things should be overhauled. * * * But, blessed be God for Jesus Christ, I am quiet and at peace. Though I have many things that are a matter of repentance and shame to me, yet in this matter I am abundantly satisfied in my lot and hope shall be a gainer, and that the cause of Christ will gain by my sufferings! Truly, methinks, I find it a hard matter to suffer in a right manner. Something of stoutness of spirit, some other sinister ends are apt to creep in and spoil suffering work. The Lord grant that I may have grace so to carry it as not to lose aught that I have done, and do now suffer! I beg your hearty prayers for me, that with integrity and sincerity I may cheerfully and patiently bear my cross till the Lord shall give me a discharge!"

There is another letter dated, "From the prison 27th, 1st mo., 1684," i. e., March 27, 1684, in which he writes to Rev. Mr. Phillips of Rowley urging him to come to Portsmouth and preach—"Oh, consider that my poor flock have fasted about forty days, and must now be an hungred! Have pity upon them! have pity upon them, O thou, my friend! And when you have taken your turn we shall hope for some other. You will thereby not only visit me in prison, but feed a great multitude of the hungry and thirsty little ones of Christ, which will be well accounted for at that day. Pray come early enough in the week to give notice to the people. (I do also in behalf of my dear and tender wife thank you for yours to her.) Now pray for me, that I may have an humble heart and that my whole soul, body and spirit may be sanctified and kept blameless to that day."

Mr. Moodey was once allowed to leave the prison, to make a short visit to his family. He was released after thirteen weeks' imprisonment, under a strict charge to preach no more within the province, on penalty of further imprisonment; whereupon he removed to Boston, and was at once called to be assistant minister with Rev. John Allen, at the First Church. He occupied a prominent place, and was held in the highest regard during the eight years of his ministry. Mr. Moodey seems to have followed the course of the justices who condemned him with a keen vision, and he interpreted the disasters which befel them as a divine retribution for his imprisonment. In the church records he writes to them as follows: "Not long after Green repented and made his acknowledgements to the pastor, who frankly forgave him. Roby was excommunicated out of Hampton Church as a common drunkard, and died excommunicated, and was by his friends thrown into a hole near his house, for fear of an arrest of his carcass. Barefoot fell into a languishing distemper, whereof he died. Coffin was taken by the Indians at Cocheco, 1689—his house and mill burnt, himself not being slain, but dismissed. The Lord give him repentance, though no signs of it have yet appeared."

While Mr. Moodey was at Boston he became a Fellow of Harvard College, and upon the death of Rev. John Rogers, the president, the distinguished honor of that office was offered to him, but declined.

It had doubtless been greatly owing to Mr. Moodey's interest in educational matters that in May, 1669, the inhabitants of Portsmouth sent to the General Court of Massachusetts the following address, to which Mr. Moodey's name was appended:

To the much Hon'd the General Court of the Mass., assembled at Boston, 20 May, 1669—the humble address of the inhabitants of the town of Portsmouth humbly showeth, that seeing by your means (under God) we enjoy much peace and quietness and very worthy deeds are done to us by the favorable aspect of the Government of this colony upon us, we accept it always, and in all places with all thankfulness. And though we have articled with yourselves for exemption from publique charges, yet we never articled with God and our own consciences for exemption from gratitude, which to demonstrate, while we were studying, the loud groans of the sinking colledge in its present low estate came to our ears. The relieving of which we account a good work for the house of our God, and needful for the perpetuating of knowledge both religious and civil, among us and our posterity after us, and therefore grateful to yourselves whose care and studdy is to seek the welfare of our Israell. The premises considered we have made a collection in our town of £60 per annum (and hope to make it more) which said sum is to be paid annually for these seven years ensuing, to be improved at the discretion of the Hon'd Overseers of the Colledge for the behoof of the same and the advancement of good literature there, hoping withal that the example of ourselves (which have been accounted no people), [this shows the common and false reputation of the settlement here] will provoke the rest of the country to jealousy (we mean an holy emulation to appear in so good a work), and that this hon'd court will in their wisdom see meet vigorously to act for diverting the sad omen to poor New England; if a colledge begun and comfortably upheld while we were little should, since now we are grown great, especially after so large and profitable an harvest, that this country and other places have reaped from the same. Your acceptance of our good meaning herein will further oblidge us to endeavour the approving ourselves to be your thankful and humble servants,

JOHN CUTT,
RICHARD CUTT,
JOSHUA MOODEY.

in the name and behalf of the rest of the subscribers in the towne of Portsmouth.

This address from the inhabitants of the towne of Portsmouth was presented by Mr. Richard Cutt, and Mr. Joshua Moodey 20 May, 1669, and gratefully accepted of; and the governor, in the name of the whole met together, returned them the thanks of the court for their pains and liberal gift to the college therein. EDWARD RAWSON, Secty.

The town of Portsmouth had then become the richest town, and the occasion of the subscription was a general collection for the purpose of erecting a new brick building at Harvard College. Dover gave thirty-two and Exeter ten pounds for the same purpose. This interest in Harvard College, and the recollection that, besides the election of Mr. Moodey to its presidency, Dr. Langdon of the North Parish was also called to the same office at a later period, Dr. Peabody of the South Parish fulfilling the same duties temporarily at a still later period, and that Dr. Styles of the North Parish was called to the same office at Yale College, show how greatly the strength and substantial character of our parishes were due to their appreciation of and demand for an able, cultivated and learned ministry, and how greatly the congregations have departed from so general and deep an interest in true scholarship.

But the one thing for which Mr. Moodey deserves the highest credit, and which shows a mind enlightened and liberal beyond the current opinions of his day, is the part he took in the witchcraft delusion, a delusion which, as we shall see at another time, found hardly any spread or reception in our settlement.

While he was settled over the First Church in Boston, Salem was very much excited on the subject, and Philip English, an eminent merchant of Salem, with his wife, was sent to the Boston Jail, by reason that the one in Salem was crowded with the victims of the terrible persecution. Mr. Moodey took an early occasion to call upon them, and invite them to his church (they having the liberty of the town by day, on condition of returning to the jail at night), and preached from the text, "When they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another," in which he justified every attempt to escape from the forms of justice, when justice was violated in them. After service he visited the prisons and advised them to flee, and offered himself to assist Mrs. English to escape. After much reasoning he induced them to go, and had provided, with the consent of the governor, for their escape from the prison at midnight. They reached New York and remained till the danger was over, and yet so universally was witchcraft believed in even by many of the best, that Mr. Moodey was severely denounced for opposing it.

The long ministry of Mr. Moodey over the parish at Portsmouth created an attachment which is revealed by words of tenderest sympathy while he was ministering to the First Church at Boston. He writes that during his residence there, "The church were often visited by the pastor, and kept up their private meetings, and so held together, though some removed and others were taken away by death."

In a letter to Increase Mather, then in England, he writes, "If you can in all your opportunities of waiting on his majesty, find a season to thrust in a happy word for poor New Hampshire, who are under lamentable circumstances. Mason is dead, but his sons survive, and possibly may be worse than hee. You know how the poor people have been unreasonably harassed, and to raise one family on the ruins of half-a-dozen considerable townes looks hard. 'T is my affection for my people that hath drawn this fruit from me. I leave it for your consideration, and pray for God's presence to be with you." And again he writes, "If something could be done for the poor province of New Hampshire and Maine it would be a good work."

Of Mr. Moodey's ministry in Boston, the present pastor of the First Church writes me that the records are very meagre, but under date (11) (3) 84, or 3 May, 1684, there is this:

"Brethren, the providence of god haveing brought Mr. Moodey into the Towne under such circumstances as you know, whether you be willingy yt, in ye name of the Church he be Desired During his abode and Residence here to be constantly helpfull to our Teacher in preaching of ye word of God amonge us.

The pastor is called the Teacher. Wiswall was ruling elder. After the above vote is the following, not preserving the old spelling:

The providence of God having cast Rev. Mr. Moodey among us by shutting ye door of Libertie for his ministry in his own church at Portsmouth, wee doe earnestly desire that he would constantly exercise ye ministrie with one Teacher among us until he hath free and open libertie to return to them again, which we express as an explanation of our former vote, and of our mind therein. Voted unanimously, as attests

JAMES ALLEN.
JOHN WISWALL.

Under date of September 24, 1690, there is this record:

At a church meeting at ye Teacher's House.

Voted, That the Teacher & Mayor Hutchinson, Mr. Isaac Addington, & Capt. Pen Townsend doe signifie to ye Rev. Mr. Joshua Moodey ye desire further to proceed with him and therefore to know whether he consent to it and be free for it from any other obligation otherwise or can suggest what they may regularly doe that he may. And July 22, '91, there is a vote about "Ye rent of Mr. Moodey's house for ye time past."

The year after Governor Cranfield drove Mr. Moodey to Boston he was himself removed from his office here, and though the opportunity was offered, and Mr. Moodey constantly expressed the deepest interest in the parish here, it was not till 1693 that he returned. The explanation is very easy and satisfactory, if only we keep in mind the Episcopal element, which has been so steadily ignored, and which must have been brought to the surface, and probably was more important and influential than it had been since the ministry of Gibson.

The want of harmony in the parish was doubtless such as to make him question the usefulness of his ministry, although never without the cordial, earnest support of a large portion of the parish. In July, 1688, Mr. Moodey wrote to Mather upon the subject, "I need exceedingly your advice about going to Portsmouth, which is vehemently urged by my church and people, and the next week we are to take counsell about it. The Church is dear to mee, and I could bee glad to bee with them, but the circumstances of my removing hence and being there are tremendous to mee. Pray for me daily."

At length he resumed his pastorate here, and continued it for some years, when a dangerous illness seizing him, from his wearying labors, he went to Boston for medical advice, and died there on Sunday, July 4, 1697. His funeral sermon was preached by Cotton Mather, from the text "Looking steadfastly on him they saw his face, as it had been the face of an angel," in which, for all the virtues and gifts of a clergyman, he is placed among the foremost of his day. "The Church of Portsmouth," he says "(a part of the country that very much owed his life unto him,) crys out of a deadly wound in his death."

That Mr. Moodey had an impressive manner, which left an influence upon his hearers, I should judge from a trifling incident. During the time of the rebellion under Cranfield, one Waldron, talking by the road with another of the subject, said he had been thinking of a sermon he heard that Mr. Moodey preached at Dover, and his text was, "In the time of adversity, consider." That he hesitated not to bring all the influences of religion upon the politics of his day, may be judged from the disposition, during the Corbet conspiracy of one who testified Corbet had said Mr. Moodey's prayers were "but babblings," but withal he must be regarded as a man of distinguished abilities, unresting industry, fervent piety, and during a long ministry, in a difficult field, resolute in his sense of right, full of kindness and sympathy, foremost in every good work, devoted to his parish and faithful unto the end.

The Boston Collectorship.

Some of the Massachusetts Congressmen are much excited because Mr. William A. Simmons has been appointed Collector of the port of Boston vice Hon. Thomas Russell, resigned. A few newspapers join in the fray and denounce the appointment as an unfit one. The secret of their opposition, however, seems to be that Mr. Simmons is a Butler man and was aided by Gen. Butler in getting the position. To unprejudiced outsiders, the alacrity with which a few Massachusetts journalists show their irritability when political moves are made that do not please them is ridiculously amusing. We do not known Simmons—we do not care for Simmons—but we remember that Simmons has been the butt of anti-Butler denunciation, that he has been faithful to his convictions and that his foes are the aristocratic silk stockings of Massachusetts politics. Gen. Butler's faithfulness to his friends is an example which his enemies might successfully profit by.

Franklin B. Evans

Was hanged in the yard of the State Prison at Concord at seven minutes after eleven o'clock, Tuesday morning. He retired to his cell at midnight of Monday, slept until five o'clock and then ate heartily. His son and daughter bade him adieu at half-past ten, after an interview of two hours and a half. A few minutes before eleven he marched to the gallows with Sheriff Odlin, two deputies and a clergyman. At one minute after eleven the noose was adjusted and in six minutes the trap fell. His pulse beat fourteen minutes, but his neck was broken.

Evans' Confession.

I, Franklin B. Evans, now under sentence of death for the murder of Georgianna Lovering, and knowing I must soon pass into the presence of my Maker and Judge, and knowing that "He who covereth his sins cannot prosper, but who so confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy," do make the following statements and confessions as to all my knowledge of that terrible affair; and all I say I affirm as a dying man is strictly true.

As to the family to which Georgianna belonged, it consisted of Mr. Sylvester Day and wife Deborah, their daughter Susan, who had been married to a Mr. Lovering, who had died, and their daughter Georgianna. I am a brother of Mrs. Day, and was occasionally with the family, working for different persons in the neighborhood for some time. The family was much given to intemperance, especially Mr. Day, who was often drunk and abusive. His wife (my sister) is a good woman. Mrs. Lovering was very loose in her morals. Georgianna sometimes drank, and was lewd in conversation, often telling me of her shameful intercourse with three young men. She repeatedly urged me to have intercourse. A few times I complied, but more frequently refused. She would often take advantage of circumstances to expose her person, and in other ways to tempt me to a compliance with her wishes, and was much enraged when I refused. I also confess that several times I had intercourse with Susan and a woman named Nichols, giving them money and other presents. They would at times join Georgianna in threatening to expose me, and get me imprisoned. I had for many years practiced as a doctor. Wishing to qualify myself for further practice I bought, at a cost of $2.50, a treatise on female diseases, and largely treating on child bearing and midwifery, illustrated with drawings describing the organs of the female system. Unfortunately, Georgianna and her mother got possession of the book, but I soon recovered it. Georgianna insisted on having and further perusing it. I declined, and she threatened to have me arrested and sent to the State Prison for an alleged outrage. She had often done this before, and now renewed her threats in much anger.

My fears were much increased from an event which occurred some six weeks before this. I altered a one dollar bill to ten dollars, and succeeded in passing it without detection. While I was at work on this Georgianna came suddenly into the room and detected me. She then threatened to expose me. Thus I found myself completely in her power. Believing she would make good her threatening, my mind was much agitated and tormented. In this state of mind, about one month before her death, I first thought of putting her out of the way. I often rejected the thought; but some renewal of her threats would bring it back. For some days before the murder I seemed to be attended continually by one, who seemed to bear a human form, urging me on to the deed.

At length I became fixed in my purpose of compelling her to exonerate me or to take her life. In order to bring this about, I told her I would give her the book if she would meet me in the woods at a certain place named, at some distance from her home. She assented; and on the morning of the fatal day I left Mr. Day's, telling the family I was going to Mr. Hill's, or perhaps to Mr. Roberts', some few miles off. I arrived at the place, near some large rocks, some time before she did. When she came I talked with her for some time, reminding her of several valuable presents I had given her, and trying to persuade her to do something to make me secure. It was of no avail; she persistently refused. Knowing I was completely in her power, and that I would most likely be sent to the State Prison on one or both of her complaints, I seized her by the throat. She struggled but for a short time and was dead. I carried her body a long distance toward the swamp, and when within a few rods of the place where I buried her, I separated the parts found afterward. I did this to gain some knowledge of the human system that might be of use to me as a doctor. My fears of her putting her threats into execution were, however, the sole reason I had. I should have left the place but for the reason that I could not then collect some money which was due me.

My feelings after the deed was done were dreadful beyond description. I would have given worlds, had I possessed them, to have recalled that hour. No one can imagine the struggle in my mind before coming to the concluson to make this confession. I have not done it with the least hope of pardon or commutation. My doom is fixed. By the law of God and man I am justly condemned to die, but if it be possible that so great a sinner as I am can find mercy at the hand of God; if my prayer, "deliver me from blood guiltiness, oh God," can procure pardon, it is all I can hope for. And I can only look for this when I know "His grace aboundeth to the chief of sinners." It has greatly relieved my mind that I have at last fully and truthfully confessed the whole I know concerning this wicked transaction, and I much regret that I have not done it sooner.

Last Saturday, he wrote the following account of his attempt to swindle the Travellers Insurance Co.:

In the month of August, 1870, I was a poor man and thought of a plan whereby I could obtain some money. Together with Elias Evans I planned to obtain an accident insurance on my life, the insurance to be for his benefit. Elias Evans is my brother-in-law, he having married my sister, and lives in Derry, N. H. Having decided upon our plan of operation for defrauding your company, I went to Hampton Beach and made arrangements for board at the Granite House there. This was on the afternoon of the 24th of August. That evening I went out of the hotel, saying to the hotel clerk I was going in bathing. I did not go into the water all. I took off my clothing, leaving it all on the beach, and put on another suit which I had provided for the purpose. I left my clothes lying on the beach at about ten o'clock that night. The day after I left the Beach, while walking in the road near Raymond, Lawyer Bartlett came along and took me in his carriage and carried me a few rods, when I got out at a cider-mill where some new cider was being made. I went up to northern Vermont. Elias did not know where I was going, for when I left him I told him it was better he shouldn't know where I was going, so that when he was inquired of about it he would not have to lie about it. I got tired staying off up in Vermont, hiding up. I concluded to return to Derry, and did so in about four weeks after I left the beach. I was hid in Elias' barn for a while. While I was in the barn I learned from Elias that an agent of your company had been there to see Elias. He did not believe I was drowned, and he would not pay the $1500 to Elias. Elias and I had arranged that if the money was paid he was to have $500 and I was to have $1000. I owed Elias a small sum of money—some $10 to $50—although if he had allowed me compensation for work I had done for him, I would owe him nothing. I feel that I have done wrong in this matter and want you to forgive me. FRANKLIN B. EVANS.

Witness—J. C. Pillsbury, warden.

Evans seemed very much elated over the fact that he had sold his body to the surgeons for fifty dollars. The money he gave to his son and daughter. "Pretty good thing, wasn't it?" said Evans. "Got fifty dollars for it! Good price, wasn't it?" A portion of the confession is omitted, as it implicates others.

The Rascal Caught.

On Tuesday, James Woods was arranged before Judge Page for cutting the hose of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co. No. 3, on the night of Jan. 14th, at the time of the fire in the Came building on High street. Judge Page held him in the sum of $300 to appear at the April term of the S. J. Court in Exeter.

Laconics.

E. Underhill & Co., successors to Mr. J. T. Larrabee, have opened a harness manufactory in the building on Congress street formerly occupied by Mr. John S. Tilton, over W. Freeman's oyster rooms. See advertisement.

On Tuesday evening an inmate of the alms house fell down stairs with a pitcher in her hand. The pitcher was broken and a piece forced into the woman's arm, cutting off some of the large blood vessels. Dr. Norton, the city physician, was called and took up the severed blood vessels.

We understand that the assemblies conducted by Messrs. Cunningham, Locke and Page, the committee chosen for that purpose, will close next Tuesday evening with a masquerade at Congress Hall.

Old Boreas must have felt sad when he returned, Tuesday, found the sleighing gone and had nothing to blow about.

The opening of the P. & D. R. R. is already having a good effect, as it leads the citizens of Dover and Portsmouth to an interchange of courtesies—and a nearer and more intimate acquaintance is beneficial to both places.

When they get that breakwater built between Wood and Gerrish's island, chowder parties will be obliged to go outside of Whalesback to reach the latter place.

Readables.

The swearing in of new Senators from Mississippi and Kansas on Thursday now leaves only one vacancy in the Senate—that from Louisiana.

Governor Furnas of Nebraska has demanded 2000 stand of arms of the President to meet the emergencies of Indian raids in his State. He has been twenty years among the Indians on the frontier, commanded a brigade of Indians during the rebellion, and emphatically opposes the system of petting and feeding them, and he is confident that if the Indians feel certain that they will be compelled to obey the agents of the government there will be no trouble.

In the German Reichstag, Monday, General Von Moltke in the speech in support of the new military, said: "What we acquired in six months we must protect by force of arms for half a century to come. France, notwithstanding a majority of her people are convinced of the necessity of peace, is imitating our army organization."

The President has ordered that the court of inquiry in General Howard's case shall be composed of Generals Sherman, McDowell, Pope, Meigs and Holt, and Major A. B. Gardner, judge advocate.

Two brothers named Sturtevant, and Miss Buckley, their housekeeper, were murdered on Sunday at Halifax, Mass.

The exports from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore for the month of January amounted to the value of $31,5.6,-455, a gain of 25 per cent. from last year.

The funny fellows of the Boston Advertiser declare that the nomination of Supervisor Simmons to be Collector of Boston is repugnant to the "great majority of republicans who have no axes to grind;" yet the Advertiser acknowledges the new Collector to have been a "diligent and laborious Treasury agent and revenue officer!"

Rumors of another case of the Evans variety, the result however not being fatal, are current about town. A little girl of eight years is said to be the victim, and a town in York county, Me., the locality.

The N. Y. Graphic says: Mr. Dawes' speech is attracting a good deal of attention throughout the country, and would no doubt impress the community much more than it does if Mr. Dawes' own record was free from ambiguity. The fact that this Massachusetts Congressman votes for nearly all the objectionable measures that he denounces, that he was mixed up discreditably in the Credit Mobilier business, detracts a great deal from his economical suggestions. The country looks with a very natural suspicion upon statesmen who makes ad captandum speeches in favor of economy and then vote for all manner of objectionable schemes at the closing hours of the session.

The last night of Evans' existence was spent with a Methodist clergyman. If he succeeded in praying the murderer into heaven, would the clergyman like for his little daughter (if he has any) to go there too? If he didn't succeed in changing God's mind, wasn't it all a waste of time?

Stratham folks imagine that a wild cat or some fierce animal is roaming around its precincts. Noises and track induce them to think thus.

Rev. James Marshall, late of Brooklyn, has accepted a call to the Congregational church in Acworth at a salary of $1000 and a parsonage.

Miss Mary Luey of Columbia was found dead in her bed on the morning of the 5th. She retired in her usual health, as far as was known, though she had been previously troubled with heart disease.

Porter H. Brown, employed on a Stratham farm, cut and split three and a half cords of white oak wood in five hours, lately. Though but twenty-seven years of age, and weighing less than 130 pounds, he can easily lift an anchor weighing 750 pounds.

Recently, a child of Chas. Basset, a resident of South Auburn Street, Nashua, bumped its head and cried until its parents became alarmed and sent in great haste for Dr. E. B. Hammond. The doctor hurried thither at the top of the speed of the messenger's horse, but the child, eighteen months old, died before he reached the house, having actually cried itself to death. The Telegraph says the doctor has had numerous cases of the kind in his practice, but this is the first that he has known to prove fatal.

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dyspeptic does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only way to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most proper preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and searching vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for lassitude, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. All Doctors prescribe it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever utilized and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

Fire Department Ordinance.

SEC. 15.—If any person shall willfully or maliciously injure any of the fire apparatus owned by the city, or any reservoir or well intended for the use of the fire department, or shall ride or drive any animal or carriage across any hose or other apparatus when at use at any fire, or at any trial of any engine, he shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and shall be required to pay all damages by him caused.

The above Section will be enforced by the Board of Engineers. 12td feb6

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organ, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Scrofulous and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucborrhea arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility, which their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 26 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Those wishing the direction of their paper changed from one town to another, must always give the name of the Town, County and State to which it has been sent.

☞ Specimen copies sent free.

Twenty-six numbers of the BANNER compose a volume. Thus we publish two volumes a year.

Patrons of the BANNER when renewing their subscriptions should be careful to always state the place to which the paper is mailed; and the same care should be exercised when a change of location is desired.

ADVERTISEMENTS published at twenty cents per line for the first, and fifteen cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST.....$10.75
RED JACKET.....12.00
GENUINE.....9.25
A.....10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY.....10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store.)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

TRIUMPHS

—OF THE—

WHEELER & WILSON

Sewing Machine Co.,

NEW YORK.

OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,

—AT THE—

WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.

1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being for progress made since the Exposition of 1867, at which the only Gold Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior medal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Work, the only award of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quality and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.

(GROUP 15, SEC. 4, B.)

"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 800,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."

"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly pearl stitch."

"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

FURTHER DISTINGUISHED HONORS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15, 1873.

THE GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR

—OF THE—

AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK,

Was unanimously recommended by the judges of Sewing-Machines for

WHEELER & WILSON'S

NEW NO. 6 SEWING MACHINE,

of being "a decided improvement over all other machines in the market," and which "must revolutionize certain branches of industry, especially in shoe and Harness Manufacturing."

BALTIMORE, Md., October 31, 1873.

"The MARYLAND INSTITUTE has awarded WHEELER & WILSON the GOLD MEDAL for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine. Other Sewing Machines received nothing."

SAVANNAH, November 4, 1873.

"At the GEORGIA STATE FAIR, a SILVER MEDAL, the highest and only premium for Leather Stitching, was awarded to WHEELER & WILSON for samples done on their New No. 6 Sewing Machines."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years. Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangulings, Pains in Head, Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL

CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.: I reside at Manchester, N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; I had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and loins, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Evans' Confession.

I, Franklin B. Evans, now under sentence of death for the murder of Georgianna Lovering, and knowing I must soon pass into the presence of my Maker and Judge, and knowing that "He who covereth his sins cannot prosper, but who so confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy," do make the following statements and confessions as to all my knowledge of that terrible affair; and all I say I affirm as a dying man is strictly true.

As to the family to which Georgianna belonged, it consisted of Mr. Sylvester Day and wife Deborah, their daughter Susan, who had been married to a Mr. Lovering, who had died, and their daughter Georgianna. I am a brother of Mrs. Day, and was occasionally with the family, working for different persons in the neighborhood for some time. The family was much given to intemperance, especially Mr. Day, who was often drunk and abusive. His wife (my sister) is a good woman. Mrs. Lovering was very loose in her morals. Georgianna sometimes drank, and was lewd in conversation, often telling me of her shameful intercourse with three young men. She repeatedly urged me to have intercourse. A few times I complied, but more frequently refused. She would often take advantage of circumstances to expose her person, and in other ways to tempt me to a compliance with her wishes, and was much enraged when I refused. I also confess that several times I had intercourse with Susan and a woman named Nichols, giving them money and other presents. They would at times join Georgianna in threatening to expose me, and get me imprisoned. I had for many years practiced as a doctor. Wishing to qualify myself for further practice I bought, at a cost of $2.50, a treatise on female diseases, and largely treating on child bearing and midwifery, illustrated with drawings describing the organs of the female system. Unfortunately, Georgianna and her mother got possession of the book, but I soon recovered it. Georgianna insisted on having and further perusing it. I declined, and she threatened to have me arrested and sent to the State Prison for an alleged outrage. She had often done this before, and now renewed her threats in much anger.

My fears were much increased from an event which occurred some six weeks before this. I altered a one dollar bill to ten dollars, and succeeded in passing it without detection. While I was at work on this Georgianna came suddenly into the room and detected me. She then threatened to expose me. Thus I found myself completely in her power. Believing she would make good her threatening, my mind was much agitated and tormented. In this state of mind, about one month before her death, I first thought of putting her out of the way. I often rejected the thought; but some renewal of her threats would bring it back. For some days before the murder I seemed to be attended continually by one, who seemed to bear a human form, urging me on to the deed.

At length I became fixed in my purpose of compelling her to exonerate me or to take her life. In order to bring this about, I told her I would give her the book if she would meet me in the woods at a certain place named, at some distance from her home. She assented; and on the morning of the fatal day I left Mr. Day's, telling the family I was going to Mr. Hill's, or perhaps to Mr. Roberts', some few miles off. I arrived at the place, near some large rocks, some time before she did. When she came I talked with her for some time, reminding her of several valuable presents I had given her, and trying to persuade her to do something to make me secure. It was of no avail; she persistently refused. Knowing I was completely in her power, and that I would most likely be sent to the State Prison on one or both of her complaints, I seized her by the throat. She struggled but for a short time and was dead. I carried her body a long distance toward the swamp, and when within a few rods of the place where I buried her, I separated the parts found afterward. I did this to gain some knowledge of the human system that might be of use to me as a doctor. My fears of her putting her threats into execution were, however, the sole reason I had. I should have left the place but for the reason that I could not then collect some money which was due me.

My feelings after the deed was done were dreadful beyond description. I would have given worlds, had I possessed them, to have recalled that hour. No one can imagine the struggle in my mind before coming to the conclusion to make this confession. I have not done it with the least hope of pardon or commutation. My doom is fixed. By the law of God and man I am justly condemned to die, but if it be possible that so great a sinner as I am can find mercy at the hand of God; if my prayer, "deliver me from blood guiltiness, oh God," can procure pardon, it is all I can hope for. And I can only look for this when I know "His grace abounderth to the chief of sinners." It has greatly relieved my mind that I have at last fully and truthfully confessed the whole I know concerning this wicked transaction, and I much regret that I have not done it sooner.

Since making my confession of the murder of Georgianna Lovering, I have, after a great conflict in my mind, determined to make a full confession of another awful transaction. In the fall of the year 1850 I left my wife, having been living with her in Salem, Mass., and came to Derry, N. H. On arriving at the house of a Mr. Mills late in the evening, I found the door fastened. I heard in the house a moaning sound as of a child. I opened the window and got in. I found several children lying on the floor, who seemed to be very sick. On examining her I concluded she could not live till morning. Wishing to procure a body to examine for surgical purposes, I resolved to kill her, and took her to the woods at some distance and there strangled her.

On examining the body I found one hip and part of the spine deformed, and partly on this account, but more because of a feeling of remorse and terror that seized me, I desisted from my purpose of examining the body. I found a chestnut stump, partly rotten, and turning it up, placed the body under it and replaced the stump. I then wandered about the woods until morning. The place where I buried her was near the junction of two brooks. I searched for it a year afterward, but could not find it. There were many in the woods hunting and gathering chestnuts and I feared to remain long.

In the morning I went to the house of Luther Waterman to see Gardner Peavey; thence to the house of Elisha Hall, Jr., on the General Derby place. Here I borrowed a pick and some other implements, and went to the woods and dug some medicinal roots, and took them with me in a bundle. During this day the Selectmen of Derry came to Mr. Hall's to see me, but I did not see them. I left word where I might be found. I then went to the house of James Evans at the Dock, where I stayed over night.

I am now an old man. My life has been one of crime and wretchedness, and is to be closed by an ignominious death on the scaffold. My earnest prayer is that my life and death may be a solemn warning to others. I might have led a useful life and left behind me a memory that would not have pained my relatives. But it is now too late. I have endeavored to improve the last few weeks in preparing for eternity. My remorse has been inexpressible. "The sorrows of death have composed me and the pains of hell have taken hold on me." My only hope is in the great mercy of God. I wish to express my gratitude to the Warden and Chaplain, who have done for me all they could for my comfort and penitence. Had I been a brother they could have done no more; and I now solemnly affirm that I have confessed all the knowledge I have of any murder. Of the several murders in Maine, Massachusetts and other places, of which I have been suspected, I am entirely innocent. To Him before whom I must so soon stand, I appeal, and in his fear I make this solemn declaration.

In the winter of 1843-4 I was living in Amoskeag, N. H. I kept a number of boarders, among whom was Hezekiah Peavey. He sent me to Loudon to get a girl to live with him, promising to meet my expenditures and pay me for my services. I took her from Loudon to Concord, and we put up at the tavern kept by a Mr. Tubbs, and the next day went to my home. The girl had a gold watch worth some $100. After a few days the watch was missing. Peavey and this girl went to Concord and put up with Tubbs. The next morning Peavey and the girl returned, accompanied by Tubbs and a clairvoyant. The clairvoyant charged the theft on a young woman named Susan Ryder, saying she hid it in her bed, and while she was going on, all at once stopped and said, "now it is gone." She has thrown it into the well."

A young man was at once let down with a rope around his body. The well was very deep, and the young man reported that near the bottom the wall had partly fallen into the hole made by the falling stone. I was standing by all the time, hearing the minute particulars of the theft and the hiding of the watch and I confess, to my shame, I was the thief. As I was very poor, and as Peavey refused to pay me for going to Loudon for the girl, I watched my chance and stole the watch. I hid it in a hole in a tree and in May traded it off in Great Falls for a silver watch and balance in money, and sold the chain in Dover. I am much distressed when I think how much the poor girl suffered in consequence of my wickedness, and make this confession, hoping that, if she is living, she may be fully relieved of all suspicion as to this matter, and if dead her friends may be glad to know of her innocence. And I hope it may prove an admonition to any who may be inclined to employ these miserable imposters who pretend to be able to detect criminals, and thereby bring disgrace and sorrow upon innocent persons.

I further confess that before my first marriage, while at work at a tavern at Bow Pond in Strafford, I stole a watch from the tavern of a Mr. Merrill in Northwood and sold it in Dover. And I also further confess that some years ago I conspired to defraud the Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford by taking out a policy for $1500, and going to Hampton Beach, left there a suit of clothes to give the impression I was drowned, and that I went to Vermont to await the payment of the policy, and that $50 was paid on it, a portion of which I received from a man in Derry.

FRANKLIN B. EVANS.

Official Statement.

The above confessions of Franklin B. Evans were made to us with the wish and understanding that they should be made public after his death. They were written out and carefully revised, sentence by sentence, and accepted by him as in every particular correct. There is in them a general agreement with facts resting on independent testimony. As he had been suspected of several other murders, we endeavored, with much care and persuasion, to get some confessions concerning them, but he has uniformly denied any knowledge of them. Of the truthfulness of his confessions, or as to the character or depth of his penitence, we do not presume to judge. For the last few weeks of his life he evidently had much remorse, and his conscience seemed to be considerably awakened. The rest is known only by his Judge, into whose presence he has now passed. Franklin B. Evans was born in Strafford, N. H., in 1810, where he resided until he came to adult years. Since then he has led a wandering life, residing more or less in Derry, Loudon, Concord, Manchester and Northwood, N. H., and for a time in Salem and Lawrence, Mass. He has had no fixed occupation, but has traveled extensively through New England, pretending to profess great skill as a doctor, although profoundly ignorant of all that belongs to that profession; yet he succeeded in getting considerable practice and money. While residing in Strafford, he professed religion and applied to the Free Will Baptists for baptism and church membership. It is creditable to that people that his request was not granted. Although no church has ever fellowshipped him or encouraged him, he has for many years professed to be very religious. He adopted the Advent doctrine and held meetings in various places. His education was quite limited, but by acquainting himself with the scripture proofs on which the Advents rely to sustain their doctrines, and with considerable fluency of speech, and withal seeming to be quite honest and earnest, he succeeded in getting considerable numbers to hear him. In general, however, they were only the ignorant and others who seldom attend regular religious services. Ministers and other intelligent Christians, had no confidence in him. During all this he was practicing almost all kinds of iniquity. From his boyhood he has been terribly licentious. Through the War of the Rebellion he was employed by the soldiers in Manchester, N. H., and on Galloupe's Island in Boston Harbor, in providing intoxicating liquors for them, and finding out houses of ill repute, for which he received large sums of money.

When brought to prison, a room was fitted up for him by removing the partition between two cells. Here he was kept, faring in all respects as well as the other prisoners. The Warden and Chaplain were attentive to him, doing all they could for his comfort and preparation for his fate. All through the year the Chaplain visited him twice each week and prayed with him once each week. Until within some eight weeks of his execution, he showed no sign of penitence, professing to be quite religious, employing most of his time in reading the Bible and talking of religious enjoyment, and even claiming to be often visited by angels.

The Warden and Chaplain assured him that his doom was fixed, and that not the least hope could be entertained of any commutation, or any postponement of the time of his execution; also, that he could have no ground to hope for mercy from God only when he fully and thoughtfully confessed his guilt in the matter proved against him. This he refused to do, and yet would not plainly deny. He was always complaining of the alleged deception of those engaged in his arrest and conviction, but persistently denied having been vicious more than in some cases of youthful indiscretion. All the faithful and kind counsels and exhortations of the Warden and Chaplain seemed to be wholly unavailing. At length, some eight or ten weeks before his execution, he seemed to be more inclined to speak of his guilt, and requested the Warden and Chaplain to come to his room and hear his confession. No promises or threatenings were made, but he was told he should make a full statement of facts for his own good, making no statement that he would not confirm on the scaffold.

This, and only this, would give him relief from the sin of guilt (which by this time had become very great,) or give him any confidence in his prayer to God for mercy. After a great struggle he finally calmly began and made the confession left to be made public. Soon after he again requested us to come to his room, as he

Much of what he said on this matter we have withheld as being too gross and indelicate to be written or read. What has been written was essential to show the motive that led to the confession of the murder, and that we have endeavored to put in as decent words and expressions as possible, and yet express the necessary steps that lead to the horrible results. The details of his life of crime, given us, we do not think best to be made public, but only such as stand connected with the murder or to give a general view of his life. Evans was a man possessed of much shrewdness and cunning. This is seen in his wonderful ability to conceal crime. Few would pass through nearly thirty years with the guilt of murder resting on them, mingling freely with the community where the murder was committed, familiar with the family, and through all showing no signs of guilt, and by no word or act furnishing the least clue to a discovery.

In his tones of voice and general appearfelt compelled to make a further confession. After saying that he felt much relieved by his confession, already made, he went on to say another horrible crime he had committed lay heavy on his mind, and he could no longer keep the dreadful secret. He then went on to give an account of the murder of the Mills girl. Both of these confessions were made voluntarily, and without dictation from the warden or chaplain. He then answered such questions as were put to him. As to what he says in those confessions of the disgraceful character of persons belonging to the family to which the murdered girl belonged, we, of course, know nothing of the truth or falsity.

ance he seemed to be a very harmless, innocent man, and no one would be likely to suspect him of such crimes as he has been guilty of. Though all his life he has shown himself to be possessed of two ruling passions, viz.: The love of money and licentiousness. They have pushed him on through all his guilty course, and brought him to his death upon the gallows. Besides the two murders, he has confessed to us his guilt in the crimes of theft, counterfeiting, adultery, and incest. In all his life of crime he has striven to quiet his conscience by pleading necessity, and in the act of crime would pray to God for direction. One instance we note to show his general course. Being short of provisions in the early days of his married life, he took his gun and went to the pasture of a neighbor for a sheep. On approaching the flock he found them huddled together; just then the finest of the flock stepped out, presenting himself as the victim. Then he saw the hand of God, and it only remained for him to pray to God to direct the bullet, which was done. On arriving near the road he saw a neighbor passing, who he feared might betray him, and by dividing the spoil with him, obtained his pledge to keep the secret. The man sometime after died, having kept his pledge. The crimes he has confessed would demand as punishment, according to our law, at least six sentences in the State Prison, not counting the two murders. For the last ten years he has drank considerably, though not to intoxication.

Van Pelt, one of the principal figures in the movement against the liquor sellers of Ohio, appears to know what he is about. At the time his shop was visited by the women he had on hand three barrels of spirituous liquors, two of which contained whiskey. These he stove in with his own hand, for which he received one hundred and fifty dollars raised on the spot. Soon after he joined the itinerant bands of women, and is now making speeches at their meetings, after which he offers photographs of himself for sale. —Kate Field has an exalted opinion of American women and places a correspondingly low estimate on the English females. She repeats her statement that the English woman is rarely bien mise, for the reason that she neglects details. She will put on a good gown and then spoil it by a hideous bonnet, or her gloves will be the wrong color. Her boots are often frightful and her walk ungainly. In England always ask yourself what is appropriate, and then put on the reverse. This is a rule with few exceptions. English women always wear long skirts, because their feet are ugly. If American women had as much perception and sense as they have beauty, they would wear their skirts much shorter than French modistes dictate.

He Won't Die.

A correspondent of the Baltimore American, writing from Lexington, Ky., says:

Among the notables of Lexington is the venerable Leslie Combs, who, though nearly ninety years of age, is more sprightly and active than the ordinary run of humanity at fifty years. He has a good suit of brown hair with scarcely a gray tint, and not an unsound tooth in his head. He dresses with all the precision of his gallant days, with a rose-bud in his button hole, discloses none of the infirmities of age, and seems determined to die young. It is the opinion of the people of the present generation that Leslie Combs will never die. He is proud of Kentucky, and as fond as ever of its Bourbon whiskey, and sometimes when he indulges in the latter, ignores the fifteenth amendment by claiming the Old Kentucky right to "wallup the nigger." Whilst indulging in this propensity recently he was carried to the station-house and locked up. He paid his fine, apologized to the colored man for his forgetfulness of the changes that the whirligig of time had brought around, and retired with all the grace and dignity of a Chesterfield. He says that there are only three men of his generation now living in Lexington—that is to say, men with whom he can talk of the scenes and events of his youthful days.

—There will be four eclipses in 1874, viz.: Total eclipse of the sun, April 16, visible in the southern part of South America and southern part of Africa; invisible in the United States. A partial eclipse of the moon, May 1; invisible in the United States. An annual eclipse of the sun, October 10; visible in Europe, western Asia and eastern Africa; invisible in the United States. A total eclipse of the moon, October 25; visible in the United States; in New England it will commence two minutes before one o'clock A. M., and end ten minutes before three; 2-1-4 A. M. it will be total. Besides these, there will be a transit of Venus across the sun's disc, December 8; visible in the Pacific Ocean, Asia and a part of Europe; invisible in the United States. These events will attract the special attention of astronomers, who will be enabled by it to measure accurately the distance of the earth from the sun.

—One day lately at the breakfast table Senator Sprague said to his son, "You must understand, my boy, that you are the son of a poor man, and will have your own way to make in the world. I have fifty cents in my pocket, not a cent more; so after breakfast I think I'll take you out and get a boot-blacking apparatus for you. You must learn to black your own boots like a man's son, you know." The little fellow listened intently, then said: "Well, papa, can't I black your boots and save you something?" "Oh, certainly, if you wish," his father answered. After breakfast the investment was made. The next morning the enterprising youngster rose at daylight, and before anybody was up and could interfere, had blacked every boot and shoe in the Sprague mansion, including a pair of his mother's, which had been bought recently for nineteen dollars, and which, of course, were utterly ruined.

—Some of the coachmen, while waiting for their fashionable freight at a New York party lately, secured from the servants several bottles of wine and brandy. Naturally, they became intoxicated, and "for a lark"—as they expressed it—they exchanged among themselves the pasteboard slips upon which were the numbers corresponding with those given the guests to prevent confusion, and to keep the carriages in line. A great deal of confusion and some profanity ensued, and many of the guests were driven all over the city before they reached home. Next morning delegations of indignant gentlemen paid simultaneous visits to uptown livery stables. The next day four servants and three times as many coachmen were without employment.

—A correspondent of the Nation, writing from London at Christmas time, says: "The Christmas illustrated papers are curious specimens of the pertinacity with which we English cling to old habits of thought, and to the memory of customs and traditions that have passed away. Every year we are presented with landscapes half-buried in snow, and every year our Christmas days are becoming, so far as climate and temperature are concerned, more like May day. We are actually obliged to pore over these fabulous illustrations of Christmas to keep ourselves cool."

—Professor Proctor says that if an infant were born having an arm of the length of 91,000,000 miles so as to reach the sun, and if in the cradle he were to stretch out his arm and touch the sun, that infant might grow to the three score years and ten allotted to man, but he never would be conscious of the fact that the tip of his finger was burned; he would have to live one hundred and thirty-five years before that would be experienced. Some infant ought just to try this to see whether the professor is right.

—There was a sad misunderstanding at a theatre in Troy last Wednesday night. The charming Miss Lucy Adams singing "Apples for a penny" gracefully cast two or three among the audience. One hit an irascible gent on the arm, and in his wrath that individual returned the apple with a force and accuracy which closed Miss Lucy's eye for several days. She says she never saw such an impolite man, and the irascible gent says she won't see anybody at all for a week.

—An artist who painted a portrait for a gentleman noted for his frequent libations invited the gentleman's friends to see it. One of them, who was rather near-sighted, approached it too closely, and the artist, in alarm, exclaimed: "Don't touch it; it ain't dry!" "No use looking at it, then," replied the old gentleman; "it can't be my friend."

—The biggest smoke on record was that along in 1845, when an English weather and almanac maker burned fifty cords of wood in Washington at one bonfire to bring on a storm. The elements didn't respond.

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dyspeptic does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only way to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most potent preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and searching vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for lassitude, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever utilized and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

"And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

Fire Department Ordinance.

SEC. 15.—If any person shall wilfully or maliciously injure any of the fire apparatus owned by the city, or any reservoir or well intended for the use of the fire department, or shall ride or drive any animal or carriage across any hose or other apparatus when in use at any fire, or at any trial of any engine, he shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and shall be required to pay all damages by him caused.

The above Section will be enforced by the Board of Engineers.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN
HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Local Matters.

Coroner's Inquest.

The inquiry in regard to the circumstances connected with the death of J. D. Pillow, Esq., was commenced on Wednesday afternoon at the Common Council room. The investigation was conducted by Coroner J. E. Rider, the jury consisting of Messrs. William Conn, Ashela F. Thurston and William A. Ashe. Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett was present in behalf of the road, and Hon. J. S. H. Frink as counsel for the friends of the deceased.

SAMUEL HAWKES.

Am employed as engineer on Eastern R. R.; was so employed on Monday last; was running engine 13, used as a shifter. I did not see Mr. Pillow till after he was struck; we were going east; my fireman looked forward and said we were going to run over a man; I was just coming to the crossing; I at once reversed the engine, and stopped in going the length of the engine and half the cars; my fireman and Mr. Harvey went back first, and then I went back to the man; had some waste put under Mr. Pillow's head; he was alive, and was taken away.

By Mr. HACKETT. Was moving about 3 miles an hour; the bell was being rung at the time; no whistle was blowed; did not see Mr. Pillow before he was struck; was on the opposite side of the engine from him; intended to stop at second switch about the length of three or four cars beyond the place of the accident.

By Mr. FRINK. The accident happened about fifteen minutes to 10; was employed at the time in making up trains; had been as far down as Kittery and as far up as the brewery; was going at the time to set two cars on the turn-out between Green street and the bridge; had started from the Concord crossing. Was going about as fast as a man would walk. A fireman was on the engine with me; the man who does the coupling had just got off; there were several cars at the end of the turn-out. In approaching from Rogers' Mr. Pillow would of necessity pass these cars. Do not think the cars would be in the way of his seeing my engine.

There is a curve from Green street crossing to station house; no flag-man stationed at that crossing; there never was. Have had no instructions in regard to rate of speed at that point; have sometimes run faster than at the time of the accident—six or eight miles an hour; do not go round the yard as fast as ten miles an hour; there is considerable travel over Green street crossing; pass it with the shifting engine as many as 25 to 50 times a day; there is a turn-out only on one side of the crossing; saw nothing of Mr. Pillow till after the accident.

By Mr. HACKETT—Rang the bell all the way over the crossing; the usage in such cases is not to whistle; could see the length of five or six cars in front of me; had I been on the other side of the engine could have seen Mr. Pillow at a distance of thirty or forty rods.

By Coroner RIDER. When I first saw Mr. Pillow he was in front of the engine—not under it; the wheels did not pass over him.

FRANCIS A. ALLEN.

Am employed as fireman on Mr. Hawkes' engine. When we came round the curve passing Vaughan street crossing, saw a man standing near Green street crossing, looking toward Kittery. He was standing on the highway, four or five feet from the railroad. There are three tracks, including turn-out. He was going across the track towards Market street. Told Mr. Hawkes to stop or he would run over a man; set the brake as quick as I could. As soon as we stopped I jumped off, ran back, and saw this man lying under the car next to the engine. Mr. Harvey came along and assisted in taking the man up. The man was lying between the rails, lengthwise the track.

By Mr. HACKETT. The man I saw looking towards Kittery was the same man that we took from under the engine; he was not in danger when I first saw him; from where he stood to the accident was forty or fifty feet; we stopped the train after the accident in about the length of the engine and one car; were going about three miles an hour; the man carried a cane and wore a hat; the bell was being rung at the time.

By Mr. FRINK. Receive no instructions about passing crossings except to ring the bell; those instructions are in the printed rules. The rules say, generally, that the whistle should be sounded in going over a crossing; sometimes Mr. Hawkes has whistled in passing crossings in the city. Not usually, unless some person is in danger. The person I saw was near enough at the time to have heard either a whistle or a bell.

Cross the Green street crossing some days ten or a dozen times. The track curves between the crossing and the depot. A man standing in the middle of the track cannot see the depot from the Green street crossing. Receive no special instructions in regard to running of trains. Have been employed altogether over three years on the shifting engines. Never received any instructions except to ring bell and run slow. Generally ran about three miles an hour over the crossings.

He was looking over the writer toward Kittery depot. Did not observe him at first but a few seconds. His profile was toward the approaching train. Didn't know whether he had already crossed the track; could not tell whether he was going to cross it. My attention was turned from him not a minute, and then to see if the coupler wanted us to stop or go on. Did not then call Mr. Hawkes's attention to him. The turn-out was on our left. There might have been some point at which the cars on the turn-out would have prevented a man approaching Green street from seeing the engine. Think he could in any event have seen the smoke-stack.

By Mr. HACKETT. The person that we picked up from under the engine had lost his hat. From where he stood when first seen he would have seen the approaching engine.

DR. JOHN W. PARSONS.

Was sworn and deposed; went about 10 o'clock, Monday morning, to attend Mr. Pillow; found him in Mr. Barrett's office at Eastern R. R., lying on a lounge. He was breathing quite heavily. His pulse was very feeble, and I at once formed the opinion that he would live but a short time. Concluded that he ought to be taken home before he died if possible. He was placed in a carriage alive, but died on the way home. His ribs were crushed in a great many places. His face was badly scratched and bruised; right arm badly broken between shoulder and elbow. No bruises particularly upon the body. I judge that he must have died from the shock of the accident, and the fracture of the ribs, the bones piercing his lungs; possibly from concussion of the brain.

JOHN CASWELL.

A young boy called. On being asked if he understood the nature of an oath, and answering in the affirmative, was sworn, and gave his testimony in a clear and straightforward manner. Was in my house at the time of the accident; saw Mr. Pillow standing near the track. His hat blew off, and he went after it to pick it up. His cane slipped and he fell, and then Mr. Hawkes' engine came and struck him. Though closely questioned on these points, the witness remained firm in his assertion that the deceased was struck after he had fallen.

At this point the inquest was adjourned until this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Laconics.

We have been furnished with documents showing the guilt of a person in this vicinity charged with a crime that reminds us of Evans' penchant for horror, but suppress the details until we can hear both sides of the story.

The event of the week will be Dearborn S. F. E. Co.'s grand ball, and concert by the Naval Band, tomorrow evening. The managers announce that there will be nothing in connection with the Ball not first-class in every respect. No objectionable parties will be admitted and arrangements have been perfected for the convenience of ladies.

Paying Pensions.

[Boston Advertiser.]

General Butler has re-introduced the bill making postmasters ex-officio pension agents. It is in the interest of economy. It will cost very much less to disburse the money, of course. It would be cheaper still to deposit the money to be paid out in each town on the town pump, and let each pensioner help himself. General Butler proposes to allow postmasters ten cents for each payment. Now as there are two hundred thousand pensioners to be paid quarterly, the saving by our plan would be $80,000. It is true that there is no department of the government where the opportunities for fraud are so numerous and so tempting, but although taking away the business of payment from a few selected agents and giving it to an army of postmasters, or to nobody, might lead to an increase of the gross amount paid, the administration of the law would be cheaper. Let us by all means have the spigot stopped up.

—An Illinois youth is in trouble, and writes as follows to an editor for advice: "Lately becoming acquainted," he says, "with a young girl attending school, I was smitten with her, and she appeared to regard me favorably. She is very much of a lady, although but 16 years of age. I sent her a present of a handsomely bound book of poems costing $8, which she returned with a note, stating her father would not let her keep it, for which she was very sorry. Don't you think it was an insult to return the book without more of an apology? Hadn't I better whip the old man if he don't apologize for the insult?"

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by selling under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above of coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

lic after his death. They were written out and carefully revised, sentence by sentence, and accepted by him as in every particular correct. There is in them a general agreement with facts resting on independent testimony. As he had been suspected of several other murders, we endeavored, with much care and persuasion, to get some confessions concerning them, but he has uniformly denied any knowledge of them. Of the truthfulness of his confessions, or as to the character or depth of his penitence, we do not presume to judge. For the last few weeks of his life he evidently had much remorse, and his conscience seemed to be considerably awakened. The rest is known only by his Judge, into whose presence he has now passed. Franklin B. Evans was born in Strafford, N. H., in 1810, where he resided until he came to adult years. Since then he has led a wandering life, residing more or less in Derry, Loudon, Concord, Manchester and Northwood, N. H., and for a time in Salem and Lawrence, Mass. He has had no fixed occupation, but has traveled extensively through New England, pretending to profess great skill as a doctor, although profoundly ignorant of all that belongs to that profession; yet he succeeded in getting considerable practice and money. While residing in Strafford, he professed religion and applied to the Free Will Baptists for baptism and church membership. It is creditable to that people that his request was not granted. Although no church has ever fellowshipped him or encouraged him, he has for many years professed to be very religious. He adopted the Advent doctrine and held meetings in various places. His education was quite limited, but by acquainting himself with the scripture proofs on which the Advents rely to sustain their doctrines, and with considerable fluency of speech, and withal seeming to be quite honest and earnest, he succeeded in getting considerable numbers to hear him. In general, however, they were only the ignorant and others who seldom attend regular religious services. Ministers and other intelligent Christians, had no confidence in him. During all this he was practicing almost all kinds of iniquity. From his boyhood he has been terribly licentious. Through the War of the Rebellion he was employed by the soldiers in Manchester, N. H., and on Galloupe's Island in Boston Harbor, in providing intoxicating liquors for them, and finding out houses of ill repute, for which he received large sums of money.

When brought to prison, a room was fitted up for him by removing the partition between two cells. Here he was kept, faring in all respects as well as the other prisoners. The Warden and Chaplain were attentive to him, doing all they could for his comfort and preparation for his fate. All through the year the Chaplain visited him twice each week and prayed with him once each week. Until within some eight weeks of his execution, he showed no sign of penitence, professing to be quite religious, employing most of his time in reading the Bible and talking of religious enjoyment, and even claiming to be often visited by angels.

The Warden and Chaplain assured him that his doom was fixed, and that not the least hope could be entertained of any commutation, or any postponement of the time of his execution; also, that he could have no ground to hope for mercy from God only when he fully and thoughtfully confessed his guilt in the matter proved against him. This he refused to do, and yet would not plainly deny. He was always complaining of the alleged deception of those engaged in his arrest and conviction, but persistently denied having been vicious more than in some cases of youthful indiscretion. All the faithful and kind counsels and exhortations of the Warden and Chaplain seemed to be wholly unavailing. At length, some eight or ten weeks before his execution, he seemed to be more inclined to speak of his guilt, and requested the Warden and Chaplain to come to his room and hear his confession. No promises or threatenings were made, but he was told he should make a full statement of facts for his own good, making no statement that he would not confirm on the scaffold.

This, and only this, would give him relief from the sin of guilt (which by this time had become very great,) or give him any confidence in his prayer to God for mercy. After a great struggle he finally calmly began and made the confession left to be made public. Soon after he again requested us to come to his room, as he

Much of what he said on this matter we have withheld as being too gross and indelicate to be written or read. What has been written was essential to show the motive that led to the confession of the murder, and that we have endeavored to put in as decent words and expressions as possible, and yet express the necessary steps that lead to the horrible results. The details of his life of crime, given us, we do not think best to be made public, but only such as stand connected with the murder or to give a general view of his life. Evans was a man possessed of much shrewdness and cunning. This is seen in his wonderful ability to conceal crime. Few would pass through nearly thirty years with the guilt of murder resting on them, mingling freely with the community where the murder was committed, familiar with the family, and through all showing no signs of guilt, and by no word or act furnishing the least clue to a discovery.

In his tones of voice and general appearfelt compelled to make a further confession. After saying that he felt much relieved by his confession, already made, he went on to say another horrible crime he had committed lay heavy on his mind, and he could no longer keep the dreadful secret. He then went on to give an account of the murder of the Mills girl. Both of these confessions were made voluntarily, and without dictation from the warden or chaplain. He then answered such questions as were put to him. As to what he says in those confessions of the disgraceful character of persons belonging to the family to which the murdered girl belonged, we, of course, know nothing of the truth or falsity.

ance he seemed to be a very harmless, innocent man, and no one would be likely to suspect him of such crimes as he has been guilty of. Though all his life he has shown himself to be possessed of two ruling passions, viz.: The love of money and licentiousness. They have pushed him on through all his guilty course, and brought him to his death upon the gallows. Besides the two murders, he has confessed to us his guilt in the crimes of theft, counterfeiting, adultery, and incest. In all his life of crime he has striven to quiet his conscience by pleading necessity, and in the act of crime would pray to God for direction. One instance we note to show his general course. Being short of provisions in the early days of his married life, he took his gun and went to the pasture of a neighbor for a sheep. On approaching the flock he found them huddled together; just then the finest of the flock stepped out, presenting himself as the victim. Then he saw the hand of God, and it only remained for him to pray to God to direct the bullet, which was done. On arriving near the road he saw a neighbor passing, who he feared might betray him, and by dividing the spoil with him, obtained his pledge to keep the secret. The man sometime after died, having kept his pledge. The crimes he has confessed would demand no punishment, according to our law, at least six sentences in the State Prison, not counting the two murders. For the last ten years he has drank considerably, though not to intoxication.

Readables.

A rubber factory in New York was burned Tuesday, causing a loss of $200,000. A disastrous fire occurred in Sing Sing, N. Y., loss nearly $100,000.

The trial of John E. Simmons for the murder of Duryea, in New York, closed Tuesday, and a verdict was rendered of manslaughter in the third degree.

It is now considered pretty certain that the United States steamer Dictator was lost in a gale off Charleston, S. C., on the 13th.

The election in Philadelphia, Tuesday, resulted in the re-election of Stockley, republican, for mayor. His majority is 10,800.

The British ministry has formally resigned.

Dr. Beeke, the English traveller, reports that he has discovered the true Mount Sinai.

Lunalilo, king of Hawaii, is dead.

In the United States Senate, Tuesday, Mr. Bogy of Missouri offered a resolution directing the finance committee to inquire as to the propriety of having all banks chartered by the States in which they are located, which was agreed to.

Full copies of the Sanborn contracts have been transmitted to Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury, and from these it appears that the aggregate amount collected under them as $427,000, of which San born's share was $213,000.

In some parts of California the people are reveling in fresh strawberries.

General Custar has sent to the three scouts, Wild Bill, Texas Jack and Buffalo Bill, to engage them to head scouting parties on the plains, and in consequence these gentlemen have telegraphed their advance agent to make no further engagements for them.

A single manufacturer in Barnet, Vermont, has already shipped over three tons of base-ball bats to the Boston market this winter.

The Philadelphia Age says: "The Illinois legislature has just made drunkenness on the part of railroad employees while on duty a criminal offence. This is surely a wise law. We must say, however, that, after an experience in travelling over most of the roads of the country, we have never seen an employe drunk, though frequently solicited by passengers. And we never heard of but one. He was promptly dismissed. We say this in justice to such employees."

Van Pelt, one of the principal figures in the movement against the liquor sellers of Ohio, appears to know what he is about. At the time his shop was visited by the women he had on hand three barrels of spirituous liquors, two of which contained whiskey. These he stove in with his own hand, for which he received one hundred and fifty dollars raised on the spot. Soon after he joined the itinerant bands of women, and is now making speeches at their meetings, after which he offers photographs of himself for sale. Van Pelt appears to be finding out in his own experience the truth of Timothy's saying, that "goodness, with contentment, is great gain."

—Kate Field has an exalted opinion of American women and places a correspondingly low estimate on the English females. She repeats her statement that the English woman is rarely bien mise, for the reason that she neglects details. She will put on a good gown and then spoil it by a hideous bonnet, or her gloves will be the wrong color. Her boots are often frightful and her walk ungainly. In England always ask yourself what is appropriate, and then put on the reverse. This is a rule with few exceptions. English women always wear long skirts, because their feet are ugly. If American women had as much perception and sense as they have beauty, they would wear their skirts much shorter than French modistes dictate.

—The Chicago Teacher thinks that whipping is a better punishment than detention after school hours, because it sets the blood in circulation and causes increased activity of the brain.

He Won't Die.

A correspondent of the Baltimore American, writing from Lexington, Ky., says:

Among the notables of Lexington is the venerable Leslie Combs, who, though nearly ninety years of age, is more sprightly and active than the ordinary run of humanity at fifty years. He has a good suit of brown hair with scarcely a gray tint, and not an unsound tooth in his head. He dresses with all the precision of his gallant days, with a rose-bud in his button hole, discloses none of the infirmities of age, and seems determined to die young. It is the opinion of the people of the present generation that Leslie Combs will never die. He is proud of Kentucky, and as fond as ever of its Bourbon whiskey, and sometimes when he indulges in the latter, ignores the fifteenth amendment by claiming the Old Kentucky right to "wallup the nigger." Whilst indulging in this propensity recently he was carried to the station-house and locked up. He paid his fine, apologized to the colored man for his forgetfulness of the changes that the whirligig of time had brought around, and retired with all the grace and dignity of a Chesterfield. He says that there are only three men of his generation now living in Lexington—that is to say, men with whom he can talk of the scenes and events of his youthful days.

—There will be four eclipses in 1874, viz.: Total eclipse of the sun, April 16, visible in the southern part of South America and southern part of Africa; invisible in the United States. A partial eclipse of the moon, May 1; invisible in the United States. An annual eclipse of the sun, October 10; visible in Europe, western Asia and eastern Africa; invisible in the United States. A total eclipse of the moon, October 25; visible in the United States; in New England it will commence two minutes before one o'clock A. M., and end ten minutes before three; 2-1-4 A. M. it will be total. Besides these, there will be a transit of Venus across the sun's disc, December 8; visible in the Pacific Ocean, Asia and a part of Europe; invisible in the United States. These events will attract the special attention of astronomers, who will be enabled by it to measure accurately the distance of the earth from the sun.

—One day lately at the breakfast table Senator Sprague said to his son, "You must understand, my boy, that you are the son of a poor man, and will have your own way to make in the world. I have fifty cents in my pocket, not a cent more; so after breakfast I think I'll take you out and get a boot-blacking apparatus for you. You must learn to black your own boots like a man's son, you know." The little fellow listened intently, then said: "Well, papa, can't I black your boots and save you something?" "Oh, certainly, if you wish," his father answered. After breakfast the investment was made. The next morning the enterprising youngster rose at daylight, and before anybody was up and could interfere, had blacked every boot and shoe in the Sprague mansion, including a pair of his mother's, which had been bought recently for nineteen dollars, and which, of course, were utterly ruined.

—Some of the coachmen, while waiting for their fashionable freight at a New York party lately, secured from the servants several bottles of wine and brandy. Naturally, they became intoxicated, and "for a lark" —as they expressed it—they exchanged among themselves the pasteboard slips upon which were the numbers corresponding with those given the guests to prevent confusion, and to keep the carriages in line. A great deal of confusion and some profanity ensued, and many of the guests were driven all over the city before they reached home. Next morning delegations of indignant gentlemen paid simultaneous visits to uptown livery stables. The next day four servants and three times as many coachmen were without employment.

—A correspondent of the Nation, writing from London at Christmas time, says: "The Christmas illustrated papers are curious specimens of the pertinacity with which we English cling to old habits of thought, and to the memory of customs and traditions that have passed away. Every year we are presented with landscapes half-buried in snow, and every year our Christmas days are becoming, so far as climate and temperature are concerned, more like May day. We are actually obliged to pore over these fabulous illustrations of Christmas to keep ourselves cool."

—Professor Proctor says that if an infant were born having an arm of the length of 91,000,000 miles so as to reach the sun, and if in the cradle he were to stretch out his arm and touch the sun, that infant might grow to the three score years and ten allotted to man, but he never would be conscious of the fact that the tip of his finger was burned; he would have to live one hundred and thirty-five years before that would be experienced. Some infant ought just to try this to see whether the professor is right.

—There was a sad misunderstanding at a theatre in Troy last Wednesday night. The charming Miss Lucy Adams singing "Apples for a penny" gracefully cast two or three among the audience. One hit an irascible gent on the arm, and in his wrath that individual returned the apple with a force and accuracy which closed Miss Lucy's eye for several days. She says she never saw such an impolite man, and the irascible gent says she won't see anybody at all for a week.

—An artist who painted a portrait for a gentleman noted for his frequent libations invited the gentleman's friends to see it. One of them, who was rather near-sighted, approached it too closely, and the artist, in alarm, exclaimed: "Don't touch it; it ain't dry!" "No use looking at it, then," replied the old gentleman; "it can't be my friend."

—The biggest smoke on record was that along in 1845, when an English weather and almanac maker burned fifty cords of wood in Washington at one bonfire to bring on a storm. The elements didn't respond.

—The Rochester Democrat advises ladies who attend evening parties to "dress so that no one will remember what you don't have on."

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dyspeptic does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only way to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most potent preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and invigorating vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for lassitude, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. All Doctors prescribe it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever utilized and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

"And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied annually in the month preceding date of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

Fire Department Ordinance.

SEC. 15.—If any person shall wilfully or maliciously injure any of the fire apparatus owned by the city, or any reservoir or well intended for the use of the fire department, or shall ride or drive any animal or carriage across any hose or other apparatus when it is set at any fire, or at any trial of any engine, he shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and be required to pay all damages by him caused.

The above section will be enforced by the Board of Engineers. 12tf 966

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and healthy.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "Econsider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Local Matters.

Coroner's Inquest.

The inquiry in regard to the circumstances connected with the death of J. D. Pillow, Esq., was commenced on Wednesday afternoon at the Common Council room. The investigation was conducted by Coroner J. E. Rider, the jury consisting of Messrs. William Conn, Ashela F. Thurston and William A. Ashe. Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett was present in behalf of the road, and Hon. J. S. H. Frink as counsel for the friends of the deceased.

SAMUEL HAWKES.

Am employed as engineer on Eastern R. R.; was so employed on Monday last; was running engine 13, used as a shifter. I did not see Mr. Pillow till after he was struck; we were going east; my fireman looked forward and said we were going to run over a man; I was just coming to the crossing; I at once reversed the engine, and stopped in going the length of the engine and half the cars; my fireman and Mr. Harvey went back first, and then I went back to the man; had some waste put under Mr. Pillow's head; he was alive, and was taken away.

By Mr. HACKETT. Was moving about 8 miles an hour; the bell was being rung at the time; no whistle was blowed; did not see Mr. Pillow before he was struck; was on the opposite side of the engine from him; intended to stop at second switch about the length of three or four cars beyond the place of the accident.

By Mr. FRINK. The accident happened about fifteen minutes to 10; was employed at the time in making up trains; had been as far down as Kittery and as far up as the brewery; was going at the time to set two cars on the turn-out between Green street and the bridge; had started from the Concord crossing. Was going about as fast as a man would walk. A fireman was on the engine with me; the man who does the coupling had just got off; there were several cars at the end of the turn-out. In approaching from Rogers' Mr. Pillow would of necessity pass these cars. Do not think the cars would be in the way of his seeing my engine.

There is a curve from Green street crossing to station house; no flag-man stationed at that crossing; there never was. Have had no instructions in regard to rate of speed at that point; have sometimes run faster than at the time of the accident—six or eight miles an hour; do not go round the yard as fast as ten miles an hour; there is considerable travel over Green street crossing; pass it with the shifting engine as many as 25 to 50 times a day; there is a turn-out only on one side of the crossing; saw nothing of Mr. Pillow till after the accident.

By Mr. HACKETT—Rang the bell all the way over the crossing; the usage in such cases is not to whistle; could see the length of five or six cars in front of me; had I been on the other side of the engine could have seen Mr. Pillow at a distance of thirty or forty rods.

By Coroner RIDER. When I first saw Mr. Pillow he was in front of the engine—not under it; the wheels did not pass over him.

FRANCIS A. ALLEN.

Am employed as fireman on Mr. Hawkes' engine. When we came round the curve passing Vaughan street crossing, saw a man standing near Green street crossing, looking toward Kittery. He was standing on the highway, four or five feet from the railroad. There are three tracks, including turn-out. He was going across the track towards Market street. Told Mr. Hawkes to stop or he would run over a man; set the brake as quick as I could. As soon as we stopped I jumped off, ran back, and saw this man lying under the car next to the engine. Mr. Harvey came along and assisted in taking the man up. The man was lying between the rails, lengthwise the track.

By Mr. HACKETT. The man I saw looking towards Kittery was the same man that we took from under the engine; he was not in danger when I first saw him; from where he stood to the accident was forty or fifty feet; we stopped the train after the accident in about the length of the engine and one car; were going about three miles an hour; the man carried a cane and wore a hat; the bell was being rung at the time.

By Mr. FRINK. Receive no instructions about passing crossings except to ring the bell; those instructions are in the printed rules. The rules say, generally, that the whistle should be sounded in going over a crossing; sometimes Mr. Hawkes has whistled in passing crossings in the city. Not usually, unless some person is in danger. The person I saw was near enough at the time to have heard either a whistle or a bell.

Cross the Green street crossing some days ten or a dozen times. The track curves between the crossing and the depot. A man standing in the middle of the track cannot see the depot from the Green street crossing. Receive no special instructions in regard to running of trains. Have been employed altogether over three years on the shifting engines. Never received any instructions except to ring bell and run slow. Generally ran about three miles an hour over the crossings.

He was looking over the writer toward Kittery depot. Did not observe him at first but a few seconds. His profile was toward the approaching train. Didn't know whether he had already crossed the track; could not tell whether he was going to cross it. My attention was turned from him not a minute, and then to see if the coupler wanted us to stop or go on. Did not then call Mr. Hawkes's attention to him. The turn-out was on our left. There might have been some point at which the cars on the turn-out would have prevented a man approaching Green street from seeing the engine. Think he could in any event have seen the smoke-stack.

By Mr. HACKETT. The person that we picked up from under the engine had lost his hat. From where he stood when first seen he would have seen the approaching engine.

DR. JOHN W. PARSONS.

Was sworn and deposed; went about 10 o'clock, Monday morning, to attend Mr. Pillow; found him in Mr. Barrett's office at Eastern R.R., lying on a lounge. He was breathing quite heavily. His pulse was very feeble, and I at once formed the opinion that he would live but a short time. Concluded that he ought to be taken home before he died if possible. He was placed in a carriage alive, but died on the way home. His ribs were crushed in a great many places. His face was badly scratched and bruised; right arm badly broken between shoulder and elbow. No bruises particularly upon the body. I judge that he must have died from the shock of the accident, and the fracture of the ribs, the bones piercing his lungs; possibly from concussion of the brain.

JOHN CASWELL.

A young boy called. On being asked if he understood the nature of an oath, and answering in the affirmative, was sworn, and gave his testimony in a clear and straightforward manner. Was in my house at the time of the accident; saw Mr. Pillow standing near the track. His hat blew off, and he went after it to pick it up. His cane slipped and he fell, and then Mr. Hawkes' engine came and struck him. Though closely questioned on these points, the witness remained firm in his assertion that the deceased was struck after he had fallen.

At this point the inquest was adjourned until this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Laconics.

We have been furnished with documents showing the guilt of a person in this vicinity charged with a crime that reminds us of Evans' penchant for horror, but suppress the details until we can hear both sides of the story.

The event of the week will be Dearborn S. F. E. Co.'s grand ball, and concert by the Naval Band, tomorrow evening. The managers announce that there will be nothing in connection with the Ball not first-class in every respect. No objectionable parties will be admitted and arrangements have been perfected for the convenience of ladies.

Paying Pensions.

[Boston Advertiser.]

General Butler has re-introduced the bill making postmasters ex-officio pension agents. It is in the interest of economy. It will cost very much less to disburse the money, of course. It would be cheaper still to deposit the money to be paid out in each town on the town pump, and let each pensioner help himself. General Butler proposes to allow postmasters ten cents for each payment. Now as there are two hundred thousand pensioners to be paid quarterly, the saving by our plan would be $80,000. It is true that there is no department of the government where the opportunities for fraud are so numerous and so tempting, but although taking away the business of payment from a few selected agents and giving ing it to an army of postmasters, or to nobody, might lead to an increase of the gross amount paid, the administration of the law would be cheaper. Let us by all means have the spigot stopped up.

—An Illinois youth is in trouble, and writes as follows to an editor for advice: "Lately becoming acquainted," he says, "with a young girl attending school, I was smitten with her, and she appeared to regard me favorably. She is very much of a lady, although but 16 years of age. I sent her a present of a handsomely bound book of poems costing $8, which she returned with a note, stating her father would not let her keep it, for which she was very sorry. Don't you think it was an insult to return the book without more of an apology? Hadn't I better whip the old man if he don't apologize for the insult?"

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and not being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some interior organ or tissue, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their application in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the system. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, scarcing out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in be glass.

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agairs, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

SPLENDID AND UNPARALLELED TRIUMPHS
—OF THE—
WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine Co.,
NEW YORK.
OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,
—AT THE—
WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.
1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being for progress made since the Paris Exposition of 1867, at which the only Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior medal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only award of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine industry as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &C.
(GROUP 15, SEC. 2, B.)
"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 900,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."
"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a very perfect stitch."
"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

FURTHER DISTINGUISHED HONORS.
NEW YORK, Sept. 15, 1873.
THE GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR
—OF THE—
AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK,
Was unanimously recommended by the judges of Sewing Machines,
WHEELER & WILSON'S
NEW NO. 6 SEWING MACHINE,
of being "a decided improvement over all other machines in the market," and which "must revolutionize certain branches of industry, especially in shoe and Harness Manufacturing."
BALTIMORE, Md., October 31, 1873.
"The MARYLAND INSTITUTE has awarded WHEELER & WILSON THE GOLD MEDAL for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine. Other Sewing Machines received nothing." MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
SAVANNAH, November 4, 1873.
"At the GEORGIA STATE FAIR, a SILVER MEDAL, the highest and only premium for Leather Stitching, was awarded to WHEELER & WILSON for samples done on their New No. 6 Sewing Machines."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N., N.H., and previously resided at Hennikers, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and I thought it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered lumeny. So bad was my, that in year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh preparations, but did not particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has saved me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 55 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Inventors should be careful to examine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are hereby saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy to secure the grant of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL such inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 1.]

AN ACT to provide for the redemption of the loan of eighteen hundred and fifty-eight.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That for the purpose of redeeming the bonds issued under the act entitled "An act to authorize a loan not exceeding the sum of twenty millions of dollars," approved June fourteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, as amended March third, eighteen hundred and fifty-nine, called the loan of eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, it is hereby declared to be the pleasure of the United States to pay all the coupon bonds of said loan on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, at which time the interest thereon shall cease, and coin in the Treasury sufficient to redeem said coupon bonds is hereby appropriated for that purpose.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury may issue an equal amount, at par of principal and interest, of five-per-centum bonds of the funded loan under the act for refunding the national debt, approved July fourteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy, and the act amendatory thereof, approved January twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, for any of the bonds of the loan of eighteen hundred and fifty-eight which the holders thereof may on or before February first, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, elect to exchange for the five-per-centum bonds of the said funded loan, with interest from said January first: Provided, That no commissions or allowances whatever shall be paid for the exchange of bonds hereby authorized, and no interest shall be allowed on the new bonds for any time for which interest is paid on the bonds exchanged:

ADDITIONAL ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT
between
THE POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND OF NEWFOUNDLAND, establishing
An Exchange of Postal Cards between the two Countries.

ARTICLE I.

For the purpose of providing additional facilities of mail communication between the United States and Newfoundland, it is hereby mutually agreed, that United States postal cards mailed at any post-office in the United States and addressed to Newfoundland, and Newfoundland postal cards mailed at any post-office in Newfoundland and addressed to the United States, when prepaid an additional postage of one cent, by affixing thereto an ordinary one-cent postage-stamp of the country of origin in addition to the stamp printed or impressed on the card, shall be reciprocally forwarded and delivered in the country of destination, free of charge. Postal cards not so prepaid will not be forwarded in the mails between the two countries.

ARTICLE II.

The regulations and instructions governing the use and treatment of postal cards in the domestic mails of the United States and of Newfoundland, respectively, shall apply equally to the postal cards mailed in either country and addressed to the other country.

ARTICLE III.

Each country will retain to its own use the postage it collects at the prescribed rate on postal cards forwarded to the other country.

ARTICLE IV.

The present articles shall be considered additional to those agreed upon betweeff the two offices on the 13-20 of November, A. D. 1872, and shall come into operation on the first of October, 1873.

In witness whereof the Postmaster-General of the United States of America and the Postmaster-General of Newfoundland have hereto set their hands and affixed their seals, at the date set opposite to each respectively.

Acting Secretary of State.
Washington, September 26, 1873.

ADDITIONAL ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT
between
THE POST DEPARTMENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE POST DEPARTMENT OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE, ESTABLISHING AN EXCHANGE OF POSTAL CARDS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES.

ARTICLE I.

For the purposes of providing additional facilities of mail communication between the United States of America and the German Empire, it is hereby mutually agreed that United States postal cards mailed at any post-office in the United States and addressed to Germany, and German postal-cards mailed at any post-office in Germany and addressed to the United States, the postage on which shall have been fully prepaid to destination, at the rates hereinafter stated, can henceforth be exchanged between the inhabitants of the United States and of Germany. But unpaid or insufficiently-paid postal cards will not be forwarded in the mails between the two countries.

ARTICLE 2.

Postal cards shall be forwarded exclusively by means of such direct steamers as shall from time to time be employed in the transportation of the direct German-American mails. Each of the two post departments shall pay the entire expenses of the sea transport for the postal cards which are sent from its territory.

For the purposes of this article, the charge for the sea transportation across the Atlantic of the postal cards sent by direct steamers from the United States to Germany, is fixed at one cent an ounce, (avoirdupois,) net weight.

ARTICLE 3.

The postage on postal cards sent in each direction is fixed as follows:

1. At 2 cents when sent from the United States of America.

2. At 1 silbergroschen when sent from Germany.

Prepayment thereof tobe made by affixing to each United States postal card an ordinary one-cent postage-stamp in addition to the stamp printed or impressed on the card.

Each department shall retain to its exclusive use the postage which it collects, at the prescribed rates, on the postal cards sent from its territory.

ARTICLE 4.

The regulations and instructions governing the use and treatment of postal cards in the domestic mails of the United States and of Germany, respectively, shall apply equally to the postal cards mailed in either country and addressed to the other country.

ARTICLE 5.

The regulations in the foregoing articles shall, in like manner, apply to the postal cards which are exchanged, through the medium of the German mails, between the United States of America on the one side, and the Empire of Austria-Hungary and the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg on the other.

ARTICLE 6.

This agreement shall go into effect on the 1st of December, 1873, and shall have equal duration with the postal-convention of 21st October, 1867, and with the additional conventions concluded thereto.

Done in duplicate and signed in Washington the 18th November, 1873, and in Berlin the 31st October, 1873.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL, [L. S.]
Postmaster-General of the United States.
STEPHAN, [L. S.]
Director-General of Posts of Germany.

I hereby approve the aforegoing convention, and in testimony thereof I have caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

The Dictator has arrived safely at Key West.

Simmons, who murdered Duryea, in New York, gets three years and six months in State prison.

All the elections for the new English Parliament have been held, save one. The result is: Conservatives returned, 35; liberals and home-rulers, 302. Mr. Disraeli has formally accepted the premiership.

Official intelligence is received of an attack on the Comanche Indians by United States troops, on Double Mountain, Texas, and the killing of ten Indians.

Charles E. Bidwell, the well known theatrical manager, who has been for many months an inmate of the insane asylum of Somerville, has been released from the institution, and is at his home in Newburyport.

The election of Mayor Stokley in Philadelphia is undoubtedly due to the fact that he represents, better than Colonel McClure, the interest Philadelphia has in the Centennial. The reform movement was a genuine one, but Colonel McClure was generally considered an unfit representative of it. Stokley's election, under the new Constitution, settles the question as to whether Philadelphia remains true to republican traditions.

The nephew of the Sturtevants has been arrested for the murder at Halifax, Mass. Quite an amount of money was found on his person. He denies his guilt.

The New Jersey senate has rejected the constitutional amendment providing for the taxation of church property.

State News.

James Griffin has recovered $100 from John Bartlett for flowage of land on shore of Jenness pond at Northwood by means of Bartlett's dam.

Storrs, the former treasurer of the National Savings Bank of Concord, from which he stole $54,000, has gone to see his mother.

Mr. Shoppe, engaged in lumbering at Connecticut Lake, recently met with an accident in the following manner: He was standing near a man who was chopping the end of a log, and putting his hand in his vest pocket just as the man raised his axe, his arm was struck, cutting it badly, and shattering the bone somewhat.

New Hampshire had 27 failures in business during 1873, with liabilities estimated at $513,000.

Mr. Job C. Allard, an industrious and respected citizen of Exeter, was instantly killed by falling with the timbers of the roof of an old church building on Centre street in that town, which he was engaged in removing on the 16th. He fell from the roof to the cellar, striking his head upon a rock. Deceased was a painter by trade, about forty years of age, and leaves two children, one an infant.

A very exhaustive paper has been read in Concord on what is known as the "Wheelwright Deed." This deed is dated May 17, 1629, and concerns land property amounting to something like 1,000,000 acres within this State. The paper was the result of a very extended research, and showed the deed to be a complete fraud.

Ex-Judge Jeremiah Smith is said to be rapidly recovering from his recent dangerous illness.

Autopsy on Evans.

An autopsy on the body of Franklin B. Evans was held at Concord in the undertaking rooms of Charles Crow. The autopsy was performed by Prof. C. P. Frost of Dartmouth College, assisted by Drs. A. H. Crosby of Concord, Bildreth of Suncook, Farswell of Bristol and Odlin of Exeter. The body was viewed by all those who were able to secure passes for an hour previous to the post-mortem examination. Evans proved to be a far more muscular man than his appearance indicated, being especially large about the thighs and shoulders. The fatal noose left a purple mark around his neck so that it was much indented and in some places abraised. His features bore but slight resemblance to his appearance at the trial or to his pictures. Perhaps the loss of his beard might have changed his looks to some extent. The eyes were deep set, the under lip protruding, and altogether his appearance bore a sinister look that will not quickly be forgotten by those who saw him.

The result of the autopsy was substantially as follows: The skull cap was very thin, exceptionally so at the outer surface, and had a peculiar depression just back of the crown, but the inner surface had no corresponding depression. The brain was not so much congested as might have been expected. The fluid effusion was large, but no more so than usual in such cases. The brain weighed forty-eight ounces, being one ounce below the average. There was no examination as to the quality of the brain matter. This will probably be done at Hanover, where the complete examination of the different parts of the body is to take place. An examination of the spinal column revealed the fact that the third cervical vertebra was broken—that is, the neck was not simply dislocated, but completely fractured. From this we infer that unconsciousness was immediate; that Franklin B. Evans was launched all but instantly into eternity. It is very rare that the result of an execution is so perfect, this one ranking as one of the most perfect on record. The lungs showed evidence of slight chronic inflammation, but nothing of a dangerous nature, or likely to have resulted in death by consumption. He has always complained of an unpleasant feeling in the lungs, and said that it was caused by a small snake he swallowed some thirty years ago which had made its way to that spot. Science failed to find the snake.

The left lung was the one affected, the right one being no more congested than it should be. There was evidence of pleurisy, recent but not severe. The heart was normal, as were also the kidneys, with the exception that one of them was placed a little high up. The stomach was in good condition, and contained his hearty breakfast undigested; for, as remarked by Prof. Frost, "He hadn't the heart to digest it."

The Railroad Act of 1871--Who Made it the Law!

[Foster's Democrat.]

For quite a number of years prior to 1871 there had been a law upon our statute book giving in specific terms the 'right of way' for the construction of railroads properly and legally chartered by the Legislature. Railroad charters are also invariably, we believe, granted the same right. The general principle was the same as applied to public highways. The purpose was to prevent private parties from interfering to obstruct or defeat the construction of roads which were required, clearly and unmistakably, for the public good. But certain railroads, and among them the Eastern, were not satisfied either with the provisions of their charter or the general law. They had several times made the effort to secure for themselves more power, but had always failed. In 1871, when Mr. Weston was in the executive chair and Alvah Smith was in the Senate, both by democratic votes, they made a new effort and accomplished their purpose. Through the corrupt purchase of some of the democratic leaders in the Legislature and lobbies of 1871, they secured the passage of 'An act in amendment of chapter one hundred and forty-six of the general statutes relating to railroads.' That act, approved by Gov. Weston, July 14, 1871, is as follows:

SEC. 1. Any railroad corporation may take and hold such land as may be necessary for side tracks, wood sheds, repair shops, engine, car and freight houses, turn tables and depot purposes, and shall file a location of the same as now provided by law for the location of railroads; and the damages, in case the parties do not agree, may be assessed in the same manner as provided by law for land taken for such railroads; provided that a copy of the location so made shall be given to the owner, if known, and resident in this State, and if such owner is unknown or resides without the State that a like copy shall be made to assess the damages for such land; and if any such owner is dissatisfied with such location, either party may apply to the railroad Commissioners, who after due notice to all parties interested may change such location as justice may require, and shall file the location by them made in the office of the Secretary of State.

A very plausible case of fairness and justice is here presented. But a critical examination of this law will develope its true character. It will be observed that it has nothing whatever to do with the right of way. But for any of the purposes specified, which may easily be enlarged and extended under various pretexts, this law gives the corporation positive and absolute power to 'take and hold' private property. That power is given outright at the very start, and the law makes no qualifications except that the commissioners 'may change such location' to some other location which might satisfy the railroad just as well. Under the general law granting the right of way, a corporation had no power to 'take and hold' until the damages had been awarded and paid. To break ground before that was done was trespass. They had no power even to establish routes or lines of road until first laid out by the proper authorities and damages had been awarded. But under this law the forcible taking and holding is no trespass and the corporation may go where they please and 'take and hold' what they please and nobody can question the proceeding. Under this broad and comprehensive power, primary and initial in its character and operations, the railroad is omnipotent and may seize land and houses at its option. It may not even be confined to the direct line of the road, but may erect wood sheds anywhere it pleases, anywhere that will best accommodate the corporation.

The Boston & Maine road may buy a lot of wood up in Strafford and 'take and hold' naybody's land upon which to erect a wood shed to store it. This is the primary right given by this law and it is only modified by the subsequent power of the commissioners to 'change such location.' No matter about the inconvenience, annoyance and outrage upon the private rights of the lawful land owner. He may pocket any nominal damages the commissioners may see fit to award at any time in the future, or he may claim the freeman's right to a decision by a jury, at a cost perhaps ten times greater than all the damages he would recover. This is the law to which Gov. Weston gave force by his official signature less than three years ago. Under this law, we say there is no such thing as private rights of property in this State. Under this law the Eastern Railroad have taken about half of the North Mill Pond in Portsmouth, and hold it in spite of all private protests. They are filling up the pond in order to make additional room for their purposes, and have actually compelled the mill owners to take just what they pleased to give them, or take the chances of a better result at the end of a vexatious lawsuit.

The sum of it all is, this law puts private property everywhere at the mercy of the railroad corporations. In building new railroads or changing railroad lines, the corporations may go anywhere, and 'take and hold' any land they may want to use for grading purposes, cart it off, and there is no remedy, no matter what the damage to the lawful owner may be. He may take his chances and the corporation will laugh at his temerity in venturing to ask, why do ye so? We say that this law of 1871 gives the corporations absolute power to all intents and purposes to ride rough shod over private rights. This matter stands upon different grounds from the original right of way in the simple construction of the road for the public good. The capricious decisions of the corporations themselves, made for their own selfish purposes without regard to public considerations, is the law, and the land owner has only the common right of the victim of every other species of robbery, viz: he can go to Court and take the chances. This is the law which was given all its vitality by the signature of Mr. Weston as Governor of the State. Is it any wonder that he should have been the railroad candidate for Governor again in the democratic Convention of January 8th? The same men brought him forward that sold out the democratic party to the railroads in 1871.

The next move is the consolidation of the Eastern and Boston & Maine and the roads up through the centre of the State into two gigantic monopolies, not in competition with each other, but two distinct engines of power to dictate terms to all the rest of the State. If this game shall succeed, then farewell to the liberties of the people. We expose it and denounce it now in order that the people when they come to vote may do so with their eyes wide open. The law of 1871, which we have quoted, is infamous, but the climax is yet to come.

Sensible Action.

[Worcester Gazette.]

The Massachusetts editors and publishers, at their annual meeting, wisely tabled a resolution in favor of importuning Congress to restore the old postal law which permitted county papers and exchanges to go free through the mails. Newspapers should be run on business principles, and it would be entirely inconsistent and child-like to growl against the franking privilege, and at the same time demand the freedom of the mails for the press. And this was substantially the unanimous opinion of the meeting.

—This is highly colored: "The lilacs are budding," says a Wisconsin editor. "You lilac Satan," responds one of his readers. "You violet truth," politely replies the editor, and both are given over to blue devils.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for the misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meanime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

Coroner's Inquest.

The inquest in regard to the death of Joseph D. Pillow, Esq., was resumed on Thursday afternoon.

THOMAS E. CALL

was the first witness examined. Was on the railroad track at the second switch at the time of the accident talking with Mr. Harvey and another gentleman; looked down Green street crossing; about contre of crossing saw Mr. P. going toward Market street; then saw train coming up from Vaughan street; turned away for a moment, and then Mr. Harvey said some one was run over; felt bad, and turned towards my counting room, and then walked back to the turn, and saw that the person hit was Mr. P.; the body was lying outside of the track.

By Mr. HACKETT. Mr. Pillow, when I first saw him was about in the centre of the middle track; was then going towards Green street; saw him but a second; it was about a minute from that time to when Mr. Harvey said some one was run over.

By Mr. FRINK. First saw the gentleman crossing the track; had a hat on; within a second saw the train approaching about 100 or 150 feet from him; next time I noticed him was after Mr. Harvey said a man was run over; that was within a minute of my first seeing him; saw blood on one of the sleepers; do not know how fast the train was running; the engine frequently runs over the crossing during the day. No flag-man is stationed there.

By Coroner RIDER. From where I stood could see down the track 300 or 400 feet; stood perhaps 175 feet from the crossing.

WILLIAM R. MARTIN.

Met Mr. Pillow Monday morning and conversed with him several minutes, just before ten o'clock; after he had passed along, saw employes of the road peering under the engine, and going up found that Mr. Pillow had been run over.

By Mr. HACKETT. When first talking with Mr. Pillow, was about 50 feet from Green street crossing. It was not more than a minute from that time to when my attention was attracted by the men looking under the train.

By Mr. FRINK. Think that as many as forty or fifty trains pass the crossing in a day; sometimes three or four trains pass at a time; ordinarily the shifting trains move three or four miles an hour. Think there were two, perhaps four cars on the turn-out. Think they would have prevented a man from seeing the approaching engine.

By Coroner RIDER. Mr. Pillow appeared as well that morning as I remember to have seen him; our conversation was in ordinary tones.

RICHARD E. HARVEY.

Am freight agent on Eastern R. R.; on the morning of the accident, had just gone to set the switch, and was explaining a patent switch to some gentlemen, and having my my attention drawn to the approaching train, saw a man on the end of the engine, just as he was going under. He appeared in a bent-up position, at the time, the highest part of him about two and a half feet from the track.

By Mr. HACKETT. Was about 160 feet from Green street crossing when I first saw the man; did not see him until he was actually struck by the engine; the train went perhaps thirty feet after the accident; saw no blood on the sleepers at the time; there was only one car on the turnout at the time.

By Mr. FRINK. Think a person where I stood could see a distance of about three cars' length towards Green street crossing. Receive no instructions from the company to keep guard at the crossings; the body lay lengthwise the track, nearly in the centre, the head toward the depot.

By Mr. HACKETT. If the man was struck by the engine when down, picking up his hat, don't think I should have got the same view of him; cannot explain how the body could have got in the position found, unless it was carried along and turned over in one of the hollows.

At this point the inquest was adjourned until Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Laconics.

Dearborn S. F. Engine Co.'s Ball, so long looked forward to by the firemen and their friends, comes off to-night. Read the advertisement.

Collector Howard has received a letter from the New York attorney of the American Atlantic Cable Co., stating that the cable will be put on ship-board in May, but will not leave London until June, when it will be laid as rapidly as the weather will permit and will probably arrive off this port late in July or early in August.

A committee of newspaper men visited Cape Neddick on Thursday and investigated the charges made against Rev. William Beavins. They returned stating that the child's statement of injury or outrage is not substantiated.

In Eliot, on Saturday last, a barn belonging to Albert Shapleigh and containing several tons of hay, was burned. Loss $550; partly insured.

The holders of the Lyceum course tickets enjoyed a very fine treat Tuesday evening. Rev. Mr. Cudworth handled his dark subject,—"In the Dark," in a very pleasing manner, making it sparkle and scintillate with the brightest rays of light. No lecturer who has been here for years has so impressed his hearers, or induced a more general desire to listen to him again. We understand Dr. Cudworth has been engaged to give the opening lecture in next season's course.

Mr. Eduardo DeAnguera will be in this city in a few days to tune pianos. See advertisement.

Unlucky Ox.

Says the Truckee, Cal., Republican: The freight train which left Truckee yesterday morning for Sacramento had a number of cars filled with beef cattle, destined for the San Francisco market. When the train was some six miles beyond the summit one of the doors of a freight car accidentally got shoved ajar, and an ox from the sage-brush State tumbled out into the snow. The animal was hit by a number of cars on the same train and knocked and rolled around in the snow in a very rough manner, but fortunately he did not get under the wheels. The next train that came along again knocked the creature right and left, and doubled him up in the snow clear off the track, and it was taken for granted by those on the train that the poor ox had drawn his last breath. But the supposition proved a mistake, for, before nightfall on the same day, the animal walked on the railroad track four miles through snow-sheds, and finally fell through a trestle-work at Summit Valley.

—The democratic legislature of Western Virginia recently passed a law "to prevent the owners of hogs from running at large."

—The Vendome column is being rapidly rebuilt. On the last day of January the spital bronze had reached the seventh turn, out of the twenty-two which will complete the height. The last plate then fixed represented the attack and capture of Gunzburg.

—Miss Clara Morris, the emotional actress, has as her companion a dog—a little Scotch terrier—which so closely resembles a mingled mass of tailors' and cobblers' shreds that she has conferred upon the animal the patronymic of "Rags." It is said to be the handsomest ugliest dog that exists, and cost the actress the snug little sum of $100.

—A certain Denver lady is so fascinating that before she permits a man to call upon, or accompany her home from any place, she is obliged to put him under bonds not to annoy her or make a fool of himself by making love to her. In this manner she has made a handsome fortune out of those whose sentiment got the better of their judgment, whereby they forfeit the bonds.

—The retort of a little boy to an attorney in a justice court, not long ago, created some amusement. The lad, being on the stand as a witness, was questioned concerning a certain dime novel alleged to have been stolen. 'What was the picture on the cover?" asked the attorney. "Two Indians," was the reply. "What were the Indians doing?" "I didn't ask 'em," answered the boy. The attorney suddenly discovered that he had no further use for the young witness.

Business Notices.

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dyspeptic does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only cure to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most potent preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and searching vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for lassitude, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. All Doctors prescribe it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever refined and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. E. Register.]

SMITH'S ACADEMY
—AND—
Commercial College
FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 51 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT
FOR 1874.
READ AND THINK.
We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half Barrels, which we propose to sell at PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.
With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you
Your Choice of Two
SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,
(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)
The Village Blacksmith,
AND
Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,
AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!
These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.
Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.
Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.
NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.
J. RIDER & SON.
READ ON.
AFTER JANUARY 1st, to every CASH customer who buys 15 DOLLARS' WORTH of GROCERIES,
Excluding Flour and Sugar,

—In Sweden justice is a grim disregarder of persons. In that country the railroad tracks are carefully fenced in, and the law imposes harsh penalties upon any one who willingly breaks through the obstruction. A Swedish nobleman, hurrying home in his own conveyance, found that it would expedite travel to drive for a short distance upon the railroad track. He did so. Tried for the offence and convicted, he was sentenced to hard work in the penitentiary for a period of six months.

—Retributive justice sometimes follows faster than we could expect. An evil-minded Brooklyn boy propelled a snow-ball at his aunt the other day, and, dodging into a neighboring area, sat down on a scuttle full of hot ashes.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the destruction of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Erupdive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Rumors, Loss of Original Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when prescribed to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. HUEDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KELBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their claims at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CARRIAGES.
MR. HUNTRESS having sold his interest in the late firm of Huntress, Bryant & Co. to Mr. ELLIOTT, of Concord, who served his time with the well-known firm of Abbott, Downing & Co., and has had experience as some of the best shops in Massachusetts in Carriage Building,
we shall continue our business the same. Having met with good success the past year, by having a good share of the patronage of the city and vicinity, we hope, by being faithful and prompt in our business, to build up a FIRST-CLASS CARRIAGE ESTABLISHMENT, where people can order new work of all kinds, and have the old carriages repaired, without being obliged to go out of town. We shall continue to keep on hand a variety of Carriages, Sleighs, Pungs, etc., which we shall sell as cheap as can be bought elsewhere of the same quality. We return thanks to our friends for past patronage, and hope for a continuance of the same.

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester, N. H., and previously resided at Swanticr, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all one period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and loins, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

The Evils of Using Tobacco.

The following article taken from the Country Gentleman so thrillingly sets forth the fearful result of using tobacco that the most hardened sinner must repent and hasten to be wise after reading it: First experiment, a hog was shut up in a tight pen, and his only feed was one-half pound of tobacco a day. In one week he had lost four pounds. A mule was placed in a stall without food. Two plugs of tobacco were placed before her, twice a day. She grew gradually restive. On the third day, a plug was forced down her throat, when she tore the experimenter's ear with her teeth, showing the bad effect tobacco has on one's disposition. It was then found necessary to muzzle her so she could not open her mouth. At the end of eight days she died. Third, a dog was nailed up in a tobacco hogshead. At the end of four days he was taken out much reduced. Fourth, another dog was put in a tobacco barrel, and rolled down a steep hill. Within two years that dog went mad! Truly these are Satan's snares! I could cite plenty more of such experiments. We all know that a single drop of the oil of tobacco placed on the end of a dog's tail will kill a man in a minute.

Of four men lately killed on the Erie railroad, three were smokers, and the father of the other an inveterate chewer of tobacco. On the bodies of the two men washed ashore after the storm on Lake Michigan, papers of tobacco were found. In my own neighborhood, a very distressing accident, by which a most estimable lady, the mother of seven lovely children, broke her leg, was caused by a pair of runaway horses, running into a fence that surrounded a field of tobacco. Miss Chloe Flatfoot recently died in the county adjoining mine at the age of 118. She had both smoked and chewed over 100 years and it is only fair to say that it was the tobacco that killed her. For so long a time had Satan been spreading his nets for her.

But why multiply examples? You know how 'tis yourself. So, Mr. Editor, do not go on helping spread these nets, by showing in your paper how to grow large crops of tobacco any more. Rather interline the Book of Proverbs with the remarks of second Solomon. Only let me add a few words to that gentleman. Does he, allow me to ask, use tea or coffee? These are other nets of Satan as much as tobacco. Does he eat mince pies and use saleratus? More nets. Does he indulge in ice creams or oysters? Let him beware, lest, when he least expects, Satan, in scooping up his tobacco users, will fly away with him! Graham bread, without salt, is his only salvation.

Who put dat Money on dat Ace?

Says the New York Sun: The recent plan of our enlightened Secretary of the Treasury for resuming specie payments with a teapotful of silver halves and quarters, to be paid out in sums not exceeding five dollars, to each bill-holder as long as they lasted, reminds us of an incident said to have occurred in a small faro bank, kept by a colored gentleman in St. Louis at the beginning of the war. The proprietor, a haughty old house servant from Virginia, who had somehow got his freedom and had strayed westward, although his capital was small, and his banking house a humble shanty in the suburbs, inspired immense awe in the crowd of blacks who came to woo chance under his roof, by wearing a terrible frown, a suit of seedy black, a vast shirt collar, and a ruffled shirt, to which latter garment the boldest African mind surrendered at discretion. The stakes, as may be imagined, were exceedingly small, being nicely proportioned to the meagre capital of the bank, and ranging from half-dimes to quarter dollars, the latter being the highest that was ever permitted. The son of the proprietor acted as dealer, while the dignified sire paced the rooms during the evening sessions and kept general oversight of the gamesters.

One evening a couple of army officers induced their black servant by the present of a small fee to smuggle them into this bank, where whites were not commonly tolerated, and providing that facile menial with ten silver dollars, instructed him to put them on the ace. The proprietor, who was absorbed in spelling out the news from the evening paper, had not observed the entrance of the strangers nor the queer turn the game had taken. Presently, however, he lifted up his eyes and spied the fabulous pile of specie glittering over the painted cards. For a moment, he was struck dumb, but recovering his voice, he cried out, in a voice of thunder: "Who put dat money on dat ace?" There was a dead silence. The trembling darkies were all afraid to answer. "Who put dat money on dat ace?" repeated the outraged son of Guinea. There was still no answer, and he went on: "Whoever put dat money on dat ace, had better take dat money off dat ace and be dam quick about it, too. You niggahs must think tshah's some of these here Rothschilet roun' dis bank."

An Honest Man.

["The Credit Mobilier," Scribner's.]

Mr. Peter A. Dey was the engineer who surveyed and located the first hundred miles of the road. He estimated its cost at not over thirty thousand dollars a mile. When this estimate was shown to the Directors, it was returned to him with orders to retouch it with higher colors, to put in embankments on paper where none existed on earth, to make the old embankments heavier, and to increase the expense generally; and then he was requested to send his estimate that it would cost fifty thousand a mile. When Mr. Dey found that this part of the road was to be let to Hoxie at $50,000 per mile, for work which he knew could be done for $30,000,—this difference of $20,000 a mile, amounting to two millions of dollars on the first hundred miles, and to five millions on the two hundred and forty-six miles,—he resigned his position as chief engineer, with a noble letter to John A. Dix, president of the road. He closed that letter with this statement: —"My views of the Pacific Road are, perhaps, peculiar. I look upon its managers as trustees of the bounty of Congress. * * * You are, doubtless, informed how disproportioned the amount to be paid is to the work contracted for. I need not expatiate on the sincerity of my course, when you reflect upon the fact that I have resigned the best position in my profession this country has offered to any man!"

The Exeter & Salisbury Railroad.

[Amesbury Journal.]

The Massachusetts legislative committee on railroads, Tuesday, Feb. 10, gave a hearing on the petition for more time to construct the Exeter & Salisbury railroad, the charter expiring this Spring. It would hardly require a hearing for that purpose, but that Massachusetts has changed its policy of special charters to a general law, and as this charter has been twice extended already, they would not repeat that a third time, unless there was reason for its not having been built and a good prospect of its speedy construction. The directors of the road were present, having Col. Eben F. Stone to represent them; Newburyport Board of Trade was represented by Hon. Albert Currier; and the city of Newburyport by Messrs. H. M. Cross and George J. L. Colby—all in favor.

From the peculiar state of affairs, we were able to learn more of the facts than have before been given to the public. The delay has been occasioned by the railroad wars—between the Eastern and Boston & Maine, which has prevented the Eastern from acting, and between the Concord and other New Hampshire roads that prevented the Concord, which also holds the Portsmouth road, from acting. Now that peace is restored in all quarters, the Eastern being in possession of some eight miles that the Epping, for merchandise, must use for a longer or shorter period, is desirous of having the road built; and the Manchester interests, being represented by Gov. Straw, which use 60,000 tons of coal annually, one half of which they will give to this road, are equally anxious. Then comes in the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, which has determined to make Newburyport their grand coal station, having expended nearly $200,000 and being ready to invest as much more—and the Wilkesbarre Coal Company, of which we know less, but which designs to perform its part in this section. All these influences, together with its junction at Epping, with the great road to run from Portland, via Rochester, Nashua and Worcester to New York, have awakened the people to the importance of the enterprise, which, it now appears, will be a paying road from the beginning. Exeter, for whom John J. Bell, Esq., spoke before the committee, is prepared to increase its subscription of two years ago; and Newburyport will undoubtedly do the same; and if the Reading & Philadelphia railroad comes forward with $50,000 or $75,000, the other towns—Salisbury, Kensington and Epping—will not hold back, and ample funds can be raised. It is important that this work should go on at once. The line will be in a section that has not been developed, and which will have added to its value the very day the road opens, more than its whole coast. When it reaches Epping, it is a short and straight route to Laconia, where it will connect with the Montreal road, and give the most direct travel to Canada and the great West. To aid this work we should neither be timid or narrow in our views. It promises to be more valuable to this section than all the existing roads, for it is the one line that will unite the interior with the sea coast at the mouth of the Merrimac.

Unseaworthy Ships.

[Harper's Magazine for March.]

According to Dr. J. Grey Jewell, in a work just published, entitled "Among our Sailors," "thirty years ago ninety thousand seamen were sufficient for the demands of American commerce; now it requires five hundred thousand. In the British and American merchant marine there are employed more than a million men, and at least three million find employment on the sea in different parts of the world. There are nearly thirty thousand vessels of all kinds under the American flag, with an aggregate capacity of over four million tons." He adds that sailors are shown by mortality tables to be the most short-lived of all men, averaging only twelve years of sea-service to each man.

That the rapid growth of maritime commerce has very far outstripped the capacity of old laws and safeguards is certain; and most of the abuses of the sea, the sailing of unseaworthy ships, the incompetency of seamen and the cruelty of masters, the loss of life and property, and the suffering of individuals, arise out of the fact that the business has grown beyond the control of those who used to guard it against abuses—who are the underwriters and the governments—just as when a city or town grows too rapidly, its drainage and water supply do not keep pace with its population, and then we hear of typhus, dysentery, and malarious fevers, and, presently, cholera.

In the old times a ship-owner was almost always a merchant of means and character, who felt his responsibility, who selected his master and mates from men he knew (his own neighbors and friends, most likely), and who had a personal and kindly interest in the crew, whom he expected to welcome home from a two or three years' voyage without change. His own means were largely invested in the cargo, his own character suffered if the ship was lost, and every precaution was taken that the voyage should be successful. There are still many such ship-owners, careful and conscientious men, just as even in the best of the old times there were men who owned coffins and sailed them. But a change has come over the sea, as upon the land, and nowadays men buy ships as they get real estate, or set up a bank, or marry a wife even, on speculation, with no further interest or aim in the venture than simply to make as much money as they can in the quickest possible time, and to run the greatest risks of loss to others compatible with a very great profit to themselves.

Could it be supposed that any sane man would pay money for a ship declared unseaworthy by competent surveyors, and put on the black list by underwriters? But a great many men, who think themselves very sane indeed, will bid for her, and buy her too, if she goes cheap enough. In the old slave-trading times the wretches who engaged in that business, and who could succeed in it only by outwitting or outrunning the cruisers on the watch for them, used to make a deliberate calculation that if they could land on the Cuban coast, say, one cargo out of three, and lose all their vessels, they still made handsome fortunes, so great were the profits of a slave cargo. Therefore, if the first and second ship had been captured, the captain of the third did not hesitate a moment to run the third high and dry on shore, if only he could thereby gain time over his pursuers to land the survivors of those who had made the middle passage. When a man buys a condemned ship at one pound sterling, or five dollars a ton, he also has made a calculation of chances. If he has three such, and if he has the luck to lose only two, with or without their crews, the first year, he will probably make money—that is to say, without insurance he may reap a large return on his investment.

But how can he get freights? Of course he can afford to carry cheaper than the owners of stanch and seaworthy ships, and the lowest rate carries the day. The owner of the cargo ask but one question, Can I insure? And if his cargo is insured, it matters not to him whether the ship is or not. So between careless shippers, and careless underwriters, and heedless seamen, and ambitious captains, this coffin has really a better chance of making money for her owner than a throughly sea-worthy ship.

New Publications.

CHURCH'S MUSICAL VISITOR for February presents an attractive table of contents and introduces several new features. It opens with "The Master Critics," an odd story of the dream of an artist, with much truth in it. The "Gleanings from Musical History" increase in interest. The Musical Contents are "Love Lightens Labor," a solo by G. F. Root; "Fairy Freaks Schottische;" a ballad, "Life;" and two songs arranged for four voices. In addition to this, the Editor discourses on "Musical Mysteries," "Precept and Practice," "Single out the Sinners," "Pianos for Publishers" (an expose), and other subjects of interest to musical people. The regular departments are well filled, and the number is interesting and attractive. John Church & Co., Cincinnati; $1.50 per year with premium.

THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW is published six times a year by A. S. Barnes & Co. of New York, at $5 per year, and will seek to fill a place between the Quarterlies and Monthlies. It proposes "the sifting and telling treatment of great questions of our age and country, above mere sect and party,—literary, scientific, social, natural, religious." It will be "fearless and progressive," but will "never assail the divine authority of the Scriptures, or the supremacy of our Constitution over a united Republic." Among its regular contributors it includes Hon. Charles Francis Adams, Rev. Drs. Woolsey, McCosh, Noah Porter and A. P. Peabody, and Hon. H. Russell, with others equally as eminent. The first number (for January, 1874,) contains able articles on Our Late Panic, Fires in American Cities, Deep Sea Exploration, Universal Education, The Prussian Church Law, and International Arbitrations. If the promise of the first issue is fulfilled by subsequent ones, the International Review will be a valuable addition to the literature of the day.

We have received No. 1 of THE PROGRESSIVE SHIP BUILDER, by John W. Griffiths, author of "Ship Builders' Manual," editor of the "Nautical Magazine," etc. The work is to be published by subscription only, at $8 for the sixteen numbers which will complete it, and no subscriptions will be received for less than one-fourth the entire work. It is finely gotten up, and issued from the "Nautical Gazette" press, No. 40 Burling Slip, New York. It is profusely illustrated, and if the promise of the first number is fulfilled by the subsequent ones—and Mr. Griffiths' reputation is a guaranty that such will be the case—the complete work will be invaluable to ship builders, ship owners and underwriters.

The GALAXY for March opens with an article on Tom Marshall, the brilliant orator and dissipated man, who in his day was a rival of Henry Clay. Justin McCarthy furnishes an attractive sketch of the great French artist Gustave Dore, as seen at his studio and in society and another instalment of the story Linley Rocheford. "Mme. de Mauves" is a Franco-American story by Henry James, Jr. "My Russian" is a description of the droll dissipations of a party of Russians in Paris under the guise of princes. "The Outside of the Cup" is a short society story in which the hero is a fashionable clergyman of the very highest church proclivities. The editorial departments have their usual variety and interest.

A new story by Jules Verne, the author of "From the Earth to the Moon," "A Journey to the Centre of the Earth," etc., etc., will by special arrangement, be published in America in SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY. It will be profusely illustrated, and in the same popular manner as the other works by the same author. The title of the new word is "The Mysterious Island."

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by selling under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for the misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

GRAND SACRED CONCERT AT THE TEMPLE,

Sunday Evening, Feb. 22d,

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY,

FOR THE BENEFIT OF PROF. M. B. THOMPSON, DIRECTOR OF THE NEW ENGLAND

COLORED JUBILEE SINGERS,

At the special request of many prominent citizens of Portsmouth.

We, the undersigned, members of the above named company, intend giving our services on this occasion for the purpose of partially remunerating our able and faithful Director for his patient and earnest services in preparing us for the great work in which we are now engaged, for his great loss of business and time in performing with us through the course since our organization.

Gwine to Chatter wid de Angels.
Do Ole Ark a-moovering Along.
Sinner, you Better Get a Ready—Character Spiritual Song by Sic Maies.
Warnt dat a Mighty Day when Jesus Christ was Born.

Local Matters.

The Jubilee Singers.

The benefit concert at the Temple, to-morrow evening, will afford opportunity for our citizens to testify their appreciation of the efforts of Prof. M. B. Thompson, who has organized a musical class which bids fair to avail themselves of the privilege of listening to their quaint and soul-stirring selections. The programme is a new one, with the exception of one or two of the most popular refrains, which are always in order. "Gwine to chatter wid de Angels," "De old Ark a-movering along", "Sinner, you better get a-ready," "Rise, mourner, you done free," "Religion is a fortune, I really do believe," "'Tis de old ship Zion, Hallelujah," and other as effective selections, will be given. The concert will commence at eight o'clock. Tickets to all parts of the house, 25 cents.

No. Two's Ball.

Great preparations have been and are now being made by Sagamore S. F. E. Co., No. 2, for the Ball to be given in Congress Hall on the evening of Monday next, Feb. 23d, which the managers propose shall surpass anything ever gotten up by any company in the Department. The Hall is being elaborately and tastefully decorated, and Edmands' Band, of Boston, will produce a lot of new music for the occasion, supper being served at the Rockingham. No ladies will be admitted unless accompanied by gentlemen, and no gallery tickets will be sold. Delegations of firemen from Lawrence, Lynn and Salem will be present. We are informed that the tickets have sold rapidly and that not many are now left.

Laconics.

The third annual levee of Mount Sinai Encampment, No. 19, I. O. O. F., which is for both Encampment members, will be held at Congress Hall, Thursday evening, March 19th.

The banks, stores and schools will be closed on Monday next, as the day is entered on the calendar as a legal holiday, being the anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The CHRONICLE will be issued as usual, Tuesday.

On Thursday evening, in Board of Mayor and Aldermen a petition of James F. Jenness and others asking for the insertion in the election warrants of a clause asking the citizens to vote whether it is best for the City to purchase the Aqueduct property was received. Referred to the Mayor and Aldermen Sise and Lefavour.

Rev. O. H. Jasper, D. D., Presiding Elder of Dover District, will preach in the Methodist Church to-morrow afternoon and also deliver a temperance lecture in the same place in the evening.

Naval Constructor Thomas Davidson, Jr., one of the ablest Constructors in the service, died on the 18th at Kensington, Pa. Mr. Davidson was formerly on duty at this station.

The colored population of Portsmouth numbers 79.

Next Friday evening the Independent Battalion will banquet at the Rockingham.

A worthy young friend whose business is dull at this season of the year, went smelting on Great Bay, Thursday. Expenses $3; receipts $2.

We regret to learn of the death of Mr. B. F. Lewis, at Germantown, Pa., on the 11th. Mr. Lewis succeeded Mr. Augustus Oehl as draughtsman in the Steam Engineering department at the navy yard in 1867, having located at Kittery after serving as an engineer in the navy during the rebellion. In 1870, he was obliged to resign his position on account of ill health, returning to his native State. He was a genial companion and conscientious friend, whose loss will be deplored by a large circle of friends.

The new Rockingham Masonic Relief Society was organized by the choice of officers, Thursday evening. Wm. P. Walker was chosen President, Henry C. Walker, Treasurer, and John H. Cheever, Secretary.

There is a general desire for the publication of a pamphlet edition of Rev. James DeNormandie's admirable historical discourses.

Mr. Samuel D. Foye has in his possession an order found in the old Pepperrell house at Kittery Point which was written by Samuel G. Mitchell to Andrew Pepperrell, Esq., "October ye 13th, 1750." It is an excellent state of preservation.

Captain Percival C. Pope, of the U. S. M. C., has been detached from this naval station and ordered to the Charlestown yard. Lieut. Israel Washburn, of the Marine corps, has been ordered to this station for duty.

North Hampton.

The ladies of the Congregational society will hold a levee in the vestry on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, March 3d and 4th, if pleasant, if not, on first fair evenings. The old folks will sing the songs of "ye olden time." Music and select pieces, etc., are among the entertainments proposed. The usual variety of edibles will be furnished in abundance. The net proceeds will go to augment the sum already acquired to be applied in remodeling the inside of the church. J. W. B.

A York County Man Lost.

[Biddeford Times.]

A Missouri paper states that J. S. Harris, formerly of New York, but for several years a conductor on the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad, has been missing for nearly two weeks, and there is scarcely a doubt that he perished in a severe snow storm the first of this month. He started from Cameron, Mo., to get a horse near Lathrop, to take to Hannibal. He was traced to Ridgely, where he stopped at the hotel, and in taking off his boots it was discovered that one of his feet was frozen. After fixing up his foot and being unable to get his boot on he tied it up with some bandages, paid his bill, and left, starting up the Platte river bottom, since which time nothing has been seen or heard of him. Parties are out in search, but so far have made no discoveries and it is feared he is frozen and lies under the snow, which is ten inches deep; or has fallen into the Platte river. He is supposed to have had quite a sum of money with him. Mr. Harris has a brother at York.

Stratham.

Chickens are wandering about home on the pick-up. Mr. Albert Lucy recently, while dissecting one, found a pin securely fastened in its gizzard.

Twenty two citizens have become grangers and still they are not happy.

The Christian society's exhibition of March 3d is looked forward to with interest.

—The matrimonial horoscope of a bright particular star in Washington society—the daughter of General Myers, of the weather bureau— is thus forecast: The probabilities are that, after reigning for a time as a belle, she will be favored with a clear and sunny matrimonial sky.

—A few days since an Alexandria (Va.) paper referred to the approaching ball of the Pioneer club (colored) of that city, and humorously adverted to the announcement on the programme that the ball would be "strictly moral until 11 o'clock." One of the committee of arrangements has written to the editor, explaining what the "strictly moral" business means, as follows: "What we meant by 'strictly moral until 11 o'clock' was that there would be no dancing before that hour, so that 'members of churches' may enjoy themselves promenading. We will have a select soiree, and no inferior characters will be allowed inside of the building."

DIED.

In Milton, Feb. 20, Mrs. ADDIE B. EMERY, wife of Robert Emery, and daughter of Joseph B. and Margaret A. Adams, of this city.

Funeral Monday, at 1½ o'clock, at the residence of George G. Lougee, Islington street. Friends are invited without further notice.

PAUL. In Worcester, Mass., Feb. 6, Mrs. Carrie R. Paul, aged 42, wife of Mr. Geo. W. Paul, and daughter of the late James Raitt, of this city.

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dragoogle does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only way to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most potent preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and searching vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for listlessness, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. All Doctors prescribe it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever utilized and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. Y. Register.]

SMITH'S ACADEMY
—AND—
Commercial College
FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 51 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.
READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two
SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,
(Samples of which can be seen at our store.)

AND
Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,
AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agairs, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 1.]

AN ACT to provide for the redemption of the loan of eighteen hundred and fifty-eight.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That for the purpose of redeeming the bonds issued under the act entitled "An act to authorize a loan not exceeding the sum of twenty millions of dollars," approved June fourteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, as amended March third, eighteen hundred and fifty-nine, called the loan of eighteen hundred and fifty-eight, it is hereby declared to be the pleasure of the United States to pay all the coupon bonds of said loan on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, at which date the interest thereon shall cease, and coin in the Treasury sufficient to redeem said coupon bonds is hereby appropriated for that purpose.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury may issue an equal amount, at par of principal and interest, of five-per-centum bonds of the funded loan under the act for refunding the national debt, approved July fourteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy, and the act amendatory thereof, approved January twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one, for any of the bonds of the loan of eighteen hundred and fifty-eight which the holders thereof may on or before February first, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, elect to exchange for the five-per-centum bonds of the said funded loan, with interest from said January first: Provided, That no commissions or allowances whatever shall be paid for the exchange of bonds hereby authorized, and no interest shall be allowed on the new bonds for any time for which interest is paid on the bonds exchanged.

between
THE POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND OF NEWFOUNDLAND, establishing
An Exchange of Postal Cards between the two Countries.

ARTICLE I.

For the purpose of providing additional facilities of mail communication between the United States and Newfoundland, it is hereby mutually agreed, that United States postal cards mailed at any post-office in the United States and addressed to Newfoundland, and Newfoundland postal cards mailed at any post-office in Newfoundland and addressed to the United States, when prepaid an additional postage of one cent, by affixing thereto an ordinary one-cent postage-stamp of the country of origin in addition to the stamp printed or impressed on the card, shall be reciprocally forwarded and delivered in the country of destination, free of charge. Postal cards not so prepaid will not be forwarded in the mails between the two countries.

ARTICLE II.

The regulations and instructions governing the use and treatment of postal cards in the domestic mails of the United States and of Newfoundland, respectively, shall apply equally to the postal cards mailed in either country and addressed to the other country.

ARTICLE III.

Each country will retain to its own use the postage it collects at the prescribed rate on postal cards forwarded to the other country.

ARTICLE IV.

The present articles shall be considered additional to those agreed upon between the two offices on the 13-20 of November, A. D. 1872, and shall come into operation on the first of October, 1873.

In witness whereof the Postmaster-General of the United States of America and the Postmaster-General of Newfoundland have hereto set their hands and affixed their seals, at the date set opposite to each respectively.

ADDITIONAL ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT
between
THE POST DEPARTMENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE POST DEPARTMENT OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE, ESTABLISHING AN EXCHANGE OF POSTAL CARDS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES.

ARTICLE I.

For the purposes of providing additional facilities of mail communication between the United States of America and the German Empire, it is hereby mutually agreed that United States postal cards mailed at any post-office in the United States and addressed to Germany, and German postal-cards mailed at any post-office in Germany and addressed to the United States, the postage on which shall have been fully prepaid to destination, at the rates hereinafter stated, can henceforth be exchanged between the inhabitants of the United States and of Germany. But unpaid or insufficiently-paid postal cards will not be forwarded in the mails between the two countries.

ARTICLE 2.

Postal cards shall be forwarded exclusively by means of such direct steamers as shall from time to time be employed in the transportation of the direct German-American mails. Each of the two post departments shall pay the entire expenses of the sea transport for the postal cards which are sent from its territory.

For the purposes of this article, the charge for the sea transportation across the Atlantic of the postal cards sent by direct steamers from the United States to Germany, is fixed at one cent an ounce, (avoirdupois,) net weight.

ARTICLE 3.

The postage on postal cards sent in each direction is fixed as follows:

1. At 2 cents when sent from the United States of America.

2. At 1 silbergroschen when sent from Germany.

Prepayment thereof tobe made by affixing to each United States postal card an ordinary one-cent postage-stamp in addition to the stamp printed or impressed on the card.

Each department shall retain to its exclusive use the postage which it collects, at the prescribed rates, on the postal cards sent from its territory.

ARTICLE 4.

The regulations and instructions governing the use and treatment of postal cards in the domestic mails of the United States and of Germany, respectively, shall apply equally to the postal cards mailed in either country and addressed to the other country.

ARTICLE 5.

The regulations in the foregoing articles shall, in like manner, apply to the postal cards which are exchanged, through the medium of the German mails, between the United States of America on the one side, and the Empire of Austria-Hungary and the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg on the other.

ARTICLE 6.

This agreement shall go into effect on the 1st of December, 1873, and shall have equal duration with the postal-convention of 21st October, 1867, and with the additional conventions concluded thereto.

Done in duplicate and signed in Washington the 18th November, 1873, and in Berlin the 31st October, 1873.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL, [L. S.]
Postmaster-General of the United States.
STEPHAN, [L. S.]
Director-General of Posts of Germany.

I hereby approve the aforegoing convention, and in testimony thereof I have caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

ECUADOR—EXTRADITION.

TREATY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE REPUBLIC OF ECUADOR.

EXTRADITION.

CONCLUDED JUNE 28, 1872.
RATIFICATION ADVISED BY SENATE JANUARY 6, 1873.
RATIFIED BY PRESIDENT JANUARY 10, 1873.
RATIFIED BY PRESIDENT OF ECUADOR NOVEMBER 12, 1873.
RATIFICATIONS EXCHANGED AT QUITO NOVEMBER 12, 1873.
PROCLAIMED DECEMBER 24, 1873.

By the President of the United States of America.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas a treaty for the mutual extradition of criminals, fugitives from justice, between the United States of America and the Republic of Ecuador, was concluded and signed by their respective Plenipotentiaries at Quito on the twenty-eighth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-two; which treaty, being in the English and Spanish languages, is word for word as follows:

Extradition Treaty between the United States of America and the Republic of Ecuador.

The United States of America and the Republic of Ecuador, having deemed it conducive to the better administration of justice and the prevention of crime within their respective territories that all persons convicted of or accused of the crimes enumerated below, being fugitives from justice, shall be, under certain circumstances, reciprocally delivered up, have resolved to conclude a treaty upon the subject; and the President of the United States has for this purpose named Rumsey Wing, a citizen of the United States, and their Minister-Resident in Ecuador, as Plenipotentiary on the part of the United States, and the President of Ecuador has named Francisco Javier Leon, Minister of the Interior and of Foreign Affairs, as Plenipotentiary on the part of Ecuador; who, having reciprocally communicated their full powers, and the same having been found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles, viz:

ARTICLE 1ST.

The Government of the United States and the Government of Ecuador mutually agree to deliver up such persons as may have been convicted of or may be accused of the crimes set forth in the following article, committed within the jurisdiction of one of the contracting parties, and who may have sought refuge to be found within the territory of the other; it being understood that this is only to be done when the criminality shall be proved in such manner that, according to the laws of the country where the fugitive or accused may be found, such persons might be lawfully arrested and tried, had the crime been committed within its jurisdiction.

ARTICLE 2ND.

Persons convicted of or accused of any of the following crimes shall be delivered up, in accordance with the provisions of this treaty:

1st. Murder, including assassination, parricide, infanticide, and poisoning.

2d. The crime of rape, arson, piracy, and mutiny on ship-board when the crew, or a part thereof, by fraud or violence against the commanding officer, have taken possession of the vessel.

3d. The crime of burglary, this being understood as the act of breaking or forcing an entrance into another's house with intent to commit any crime; and the crime of robbery, this being defined as the act of taking from the person of another goods or money with criminal intent, using violence or intimidation.

4th. The crime of forgery, which is understood to be the wilful use or circulation of forged papers or public documents.

5th. The fabrication or circulation of counterfeit money, either coin or paper, of public bonds, bank-bills and securities, and in general of any kind of titles to or instruments of credit, the counterfeiting of stamps, dies, seals, and marks of the state and of the administrative authorities, and the sale or circulation thereof.

6th. Embezzlement of public property, committed within the jurisdiction of either party, by public officers or depositaries.

ARTICLE 3RD.

The stipulations of this treaty shall not be applicable to crimes or offences of a political character, and the person or persons delivered up, charged with the crimes specified in the foregoing article, shall not be prosecuted for any crime committed previously to that for which his or their extradition may be asked.

ARTICLE 4TH.

If the person whose extradition may have been applied for, in accordance with the stipulations of the present treaty, shall have been arrested for offences committed in the country where he has sought refuge, or if he shall have been sentenced therefor, his extradition may be deferred until his acquital, or the expiration of the term for which he shall have been sentenced.

ARTICLE 5TH.

Requisitions for the extradition of fugitives from justice shall be made by the respective diplomatic agents of the contracting parties, or, in case of the absence of these from the country or its capital, they may be made by superior consular officers. If the person whose extradition is asked for shall have been convicted of a crime, the requisition must be accompanied by a copy of the sentence of the court that has convicted him, authenticated under its seal, and an attestation of the official character of the judge who has signed it, made by the proper executive authority; also by an authentication of the latter by the Minister or Consul of the United States or Ecuador, respectively. On the contrary, however, when the fugitive is merely charged with crime, a duly authenticated copy of the warrant for his arrest in the country where the crime has been committed, and of any evidence in writing upon which such warrant may have been issued, must accompany the aforesaid requisition. The President of the United States, or the proper executive authority of Ecuador, may then order the arrest of the fugitive, in order that he may be brought before the judicial authority which is competent to examine the question of extradition. If, then, according to the evidence and the laws, it be decided that the extradition is due in conformity with this treaty, the fugitive shall be delivered up, according to the forms prescribed in such cases.

ARTICLE 6TH.

The expenses of the arrest, detention, and transportation of persons claimed shall be paid by the Government in whose name the requisition shall have been made.

ARTICLE 7TH.

This treaty shall continue in force for ten (10) years from the day of the exchange of ratifications; but in case neither party shall have given to the other one (1) year's previous notice of its intention to terminate the same, then this treaty shall continue in force for ten (10) years longer, and so on.

The present treaty shall be ratified, and the ratifications exchanged in the capital of Ecuador, within two months from the day on which the session of the ensuing Congress of Ecuador shall terminate, which will be in October, 1873.

In testimony whereof the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the present treaty in duplicate, and have hereunto affiqed their seals.

Done in the city of Quito, capital of the Republic of Ecuador, this twenty-eighth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two.

RUMSEY WING. [Seal.]
FRANCISCO JAVIER LEON. [Seal.]

And whereas the said treaty has been duly ratified on both parts, and the respective ratifications were exchanged at Quito on the 12th of November, last:

Now, therefore, be it known that I, Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States of America, have caused the said treaty to be made public, to the end that the same, and every clause and article thereof, may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States, and the citizens thereof.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the city of Washington this twenty-fourth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the ninety-eighth.

U. S. GRANT.

HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 7.]

AN ACT repealing the increase of salaries of members of Congress, and other officers.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That so much of the act of March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, entitled "An act making appropriations for legislative, executive, and judicial expenses of the Government for the year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four," as provides for the increase of the compensation of public officers and employees, whether members of Congress, Delegates, or others, except the President of the United States and the Justices of the Supreme Court, be, and the same is hereby, repealed, and the salaries, compensation, and allowances of all said persons, except as aforesaid, shall be as fixed by the laws in force at the time of the passage of said act: Provided, That mileage shall not be allowed for the first session of the forty-third Congress; that all moneys appropriated as compensation to the members of the forty-second Congress in excess of the mileage and allowances fixed by law at the commencement of said Congress, and which shall not have been drawn by the members of said Congress respectively, or which having been drawn, have been returned in any form to the United States, are hereby covered into the Treasury of the United States, and are declared to be the moneys of the United States absolutely, the same as if they had never been appropriated as aforesaid.

Approved January 20, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 8.]

AN ACT to amend the act entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the act entitled "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, and for other purposes," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, be, and the same is hereby, amended by adding to the proviso in the clause of said act relating to the public printing and binding the following words: "and of the House of Representatives."

Approved, January 22, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 9.]

AN ACT making appropriations to pay for reporting the debates and proceedings of Congress.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of twenty-five thousand one hundred and eighty-five dollars for the payment of the fees of official reporters of the proceedings and debates of the House of Representatives during the first year of the Forty-third Congress, said reporters to be paid monthly at the rate fixed by law.

SEC. 2. That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of one thousand six hundred and thirty-six dollars and twelve cents to pay D. F. Murphy, official reporter of the Senate, for reporting the proceedings and debates of the Senate at the special session of March, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, according to the arrangement made with him by the Committee on Printing of the Senate, which was reported by said Committee to the Senate on the twenty-first day of March, eighteen hundred and seventy-three.

SEC. 3. That there is hereby appropriated for reporting the proceedings and debates of the Senate for the Congressional year ending March four, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, the sum of six thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, which sum shall be added to the contingent fund of the Senate and be disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate, agreeably to the terms of the resolution aforesaid: Provided, That from and after the passage of this act a sum not exceeding forty-two thousand dollars shall be paid for reporting the proceedings of each House of Congress for any one Congress, under the direction of the respective Houses; and all laws inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Approved, January 28, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 10.]

AN ACT to abolish the office of Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Be in enected by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the office of Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue, made vacant by the death of General B. J. Sweet, be and the same is hereby, abolished; and that the Secretary of the Treasury may, upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, designate one of the two remaining deputy commissioners as First Deputy Commissioner, who shall perform the duties and be paid only the salary prescribed for the office of deputy commissioner hereby abolished.

Approved, January 29, 1874.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION
CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signatures of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years. Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL
CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh a twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all the time in my nose, but it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that as year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed, most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescured me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have lost my quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.
Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

The Fulfilment of a Dream.

The Hartford Times prints the following extordinary story, for the truth of which it vouches: "Mr. John Elswith, a resident of this city, is a German by birth. He came to this country in 1848, bringing his wife with him. They had been here about a year when they received a letter stating that a brother of Mrs. Elswith was en route to America, but from that time to this they have never seen their relative. Up to the time of the war they expected he would turn up some time; but when the unhappy civil strife swept over the land, and peace came again, and yet no tidings of the missing man, he was mourned as lost, and as the years rolled by, if not actually forgotten, his fate was a mystery which it was thought never would be explained. And now comes a singular occurrence in connection with the case. About three weeks ago Mr. Elswith had a dream. He thought he was seated in a car at the depot on Asylum street. He didn't want to go anywhere, but in spite of this feeling he was rolled out of the depot and whirled away at lightning speed. Past villages, towns and cities; through valleys, over rivers and plains—on! with a rush and a roar, stopping for nothing and heeding nothing. It seemed to the dreamer that he was being carried much against his will, thousands of miles from home. Why it was so, he had not the faintest conception. He was under a mysterious influence that chained him to his seat and made him a slave to its power. At last the train slackened its speed and came to a halt, and John found himself moving along with the rest of the passengers who were making their exit from the cars. When once outside he discovered that he was in a strange city and among strangers. He asked a man where he was. He was told 'St. Louis.' 'But,' says John, 'I live in Hartford. I want nothing in St. Louis.'

The stranger smiled and passed on, leaving our Hartford friend as perplexed as ever. While standing in his tracks, wondering what to do, he saw at a distance a figure which sent a thrill of joy through his frame. It was his long-lost brother-in-law. It had been more than a quarter of a century since John had set eyes on him, and time had worked a great change in his appearance, but for all that our friend recognized him, and ran toward him hallooing at the top of his voice, as if afraid he might disappear. The meeting was a cordial one, and the pair celebrated the affair at a stylish saloon where foaming mugs of lager played a prominent part. The next John knew he found himself awake at his home on Park street. But this dream had made a strong impression, and do what he would he could not forget it. It haunted him all that day, and when he got up the next morning the remembrance of that long ride and the happy meeting clung to him still. That very day some clerk in the Hartford post-office might have seen a letter addressed to Mr. —— of St. Louis, with the instruction on the end of the envelope, 'if not called for in ten days, return to John Elswith, Hartford, Conn.' Mr. Elswith says that he sent the letter addressed to his brother-in-law without the remotest idea of hearing from him. He sent it to relieve his mind, as he confesses that the singular dream harassed him not a little. But after the missive was sent he dismissed the matter from his mind, and might never have thought of it again if something startling had not occurred a day or two since. John was at home with his family when the postman came to the door and delivered a letter. It was postmarked St. Louis. It was torn open with tremulous fingers, and to their great joy it was found to be from their long lost relative, in answer to the letter which John had forwarded in obedience to his dream. In a large city like St. Louis it would seem that a letter lacking specific direction might not reach its destination, but of course the chances are that it would go straight to the mark, as it did in this case. It appeared by the letter that the St. Louis German had been as much in the fog as to his sister's and Elswith's whereabouts as they have been in regard to him. The St. Louis man writes that he shall soon come to this city on a visit, and his Hartford friends are delighted at the prospect of a happy reunion. When he does come John proposes that what he dreamed about the lager shall also become a reality.

—"None knew him but to trust him, nor named him but to dun," is the pathetic sentence with which a Delaware merchant closes an advertisement for a missing customer.

—True Blue, the famed California runner, is recovering, but it is doubtful whether ever can endure hard training again, or the severe straining of a race. His name, however, appears in the spring entries.

—There is not much dependence to be placed upon a flat-iron. It is comfortable enough, when heated and well wrapped up in a cloth in your bed; but the flat-iron that is snugged up to your feet when you fall asleep, and imparting a steady current of heat the entire length of your frame, is an altogether different article from the flat-iron which later in the night tumbles out of its cloth, and turning to the temperature of a rattlesnake's back, suddenly tumbles against your leg, making you spring, and shriek in spite of yourself.

An Unchallenged Record.

The democracy labor under a disadvantage in the present political campaign which republicans have thus far failed to avail themselves of. In years past, the former have sought to avoid the discussion of national politics and preferred to convince the masses that State and national affairs have little connection. They did burden the newspapers with black figures pretending to show enormous expenditures by the State government, during the rebellion, but after the experience of a democratic State government in 1871, which did not reduce expenditures, the democratic press has failed to rally with its usual display of exclamation points. The fact is that the admirable record of the republican party in New Hampshire for the eighteen years it has been in power is invulnerable. Not a defalcation of a public officer has stained its administration. Not an act of embezzlement has lessened the confidence of the people. No superfluous expenditures have been incurred; and to-day, were a democratic Governor, Senate and House to be chosen, there would be no lessening of expenditures in any branch of the State government. Democratic opposition to republican success in this State means nothing but democratic desire to hold office and fill democratic pocket-books. If there is any other "principle" besides this that the democracy pretend to contest the election for, it is that rum may flow more freely. "Only this and nothing more."

The Place for Able Men

Of the republican party in the coming election is at the front. In times past, the party has suffered from the want of a sufficient corps of leaders in the House of Representatives, and it should not occur this year when the House is liable to be nearly equally divided. This is no time to sacrifice the interests of the whole for the benefit of a few. We refer to no especial locality in this regard. The custom of renominating representatives who have served but one term will without doubt be generally adhered to, and several able and energetic leaders will be retained thereby. Now let republicans act as shrewdly in nominating "new" candidates as if they had a law suit on hand and felt it of the utmost importance to employ the most talented advocates to ensure success. Let all lay aside personal or selfish considerations and unite in presenting for the suffrage of voters men of decision and experience.

Female School Committee.

The Boston schpol committee—or at least that portion of the board which declared "vacant" the seats of certain ladies legally elected to serve thereon,—and the city solicitor of Boston, who went back to the Middle Ages for precedents to support the action of the committee, must feel edified by the unanimous decision of the Supreme bench of Massachusetts that there is nothing in the State constitution or the common law to prevent women serving as members of school committee. But these sapient opponents of female committee-men voted their obnoxious colleagues out of their seats, and refused to reconsider their vote; and what they will do now, when they find they occupy an untenable position, is not easy to tell. But as the women doubtless have far more common sense than their opponents in this case, (and that's not setting the women up very steep, either,) they will probably take their seats without further opposition, and leave Mrs. Partington and her broom to attack the Atlantic at some other point. And it is quite possibble that some of the men who presumed to deprive intelligent constituencies of representation on the school committee because ladies had been chosen for the duty, may find themselves elected to stay away next year and women sent to fill their places.

Readables.

The U. S. Senate has passed Merrimon's amendment to the bill instructing the finance committee to report as soon as practicable a bill providing for the increase of the national bank circulation, so the whole amount shall not exceed $400,000,000. Senators Cragin and Wadleigh voted against it, the vote being 28 to 25.

Stoddart pinched Ione Burke in Chicago, when she got mad and told her husband, who told Rockwell, and Rockwell told him he was a coward, when he told Rockwell he would hit him which he did. Stoddart told Ione to leave, and she told her husband, when her husband told her to get her money, which she did.

Nathaniel Jones and Ensign Worthing escaped from the Massachusetts State prison early Friday evening by tunnelling under the wall. They were employed in the engine house, which is near the railroad fence, and removing the floor they dug a hole large enough to admit the passage of a man on his hands and knees. Two piles which had been driven to keep the sand from washing away were cut through. Further investigation showed that the dirt had been removed and scattered in small quantities about the yard. Their escape was discovered when the time came for locking up.

Evans in the Wrong Pew.

On Saturday morning, the body of Evans was found in the seats of the Freshmen in the chapel at Dartmouth college. Nobody knows who put it there.

Why They Fight Simmons.

[Boston Globe.]

They really don't make out much of a case against Mr. Simmons, the newly appointed Boston Collector. There is no question about his honesty. He is full of industry, enterprise, energy, and business tact, and all that sort of thing. He is young, plucky, a good feeder, equal to any emergency, and alive to every occasion. He don't believe much in red tape, regular nominations, the aristocratic families, and other matters of that sort. All of which is well, if not excellent. But he is guilty of the one unpardonable sin for which there is no forgiveness in Massachusetts. He supported General Butler for Governor last fall, and really made his nomination quite imminent. Now this may have been a great crime in Boston eyes, but it is hard to see it at this distance, and the baying of the Boston bow-wows sounds a good deal more like the bark of a disappointed cur because other dog got the bone than the honest growl of the faithful watch-dog at the approach of an enemy. Perhaps Mr. Simmons is not the fittest man in Massachusetts for the post, but his unfitness is certainly no more conspicuous than that of some men who have filled the office respectably, and been wined and dined for their services by Boston merchants. Indeed the Boston Journal says his revenue district has the name of being "the most economically managed" in the United States, and the Springfield Republican says, "we have no doubt that Mr. Simmons would make an uncommonly good collector." His appointment may not be exactly in accordance with the principles of a reformed civil service, but then Massachusetts would do well to try to remember what she has done to promote civil-service reform.

Local Option.

[Nashua Telegraph.]

The things said were not all the striking things of the license meeting held at Franklin hall on Tuesday evening. Neither speaker paid so much as "the cold respect of a passing glance" to the subject of local option. The sentiment that pervaded both speeches was "Death to prohibition, and then a license law, or none at all, just as you please." Mr. Bailey frankly confessed that he was in favor of "free rum," but would accept a license law for everything but ale, cider and beer. Mr. Page as frankly declared that he believed in the use, though not in the abuse, of liquors, but in the fury of his denunciation of prohibition and prohibitionists, he forgot to tell us exactly what he would substitute for the present law except a provision to "hang every man to a lamp-post who sold poor rum." With this provision enforced, how many liquor dealers in this vicinity would escape, think you?

Death In The Vat!

[Lawrence Eagle.]

We have to record one more local illustration of the uncertainty of life, and the peculiar danger incident to the use of steam kettles and vats in manufacturing operations. Several instances of death by scalding in these have occurred on the corporations in this city, but this time the casualty occurred at the soap factory of L. Beach & Son on Lawrence street, and was undoubtedly the result of carelessness superinduced by long familiarity with the business. The victim was Mr. Albert Holt, foreman of the establishment. The circumstances are these:

The place where Mr. Holt met his death was in one of several large kettles or vats used for boiling soap. They are ten feet in diameter at the top and ten feet in depth, with a large coil of steam pipe in the bottom. They are set in the first floor of the factory, their tops about five feet above it. The first story is low posted, and the second floor is perhaps three feet above the kettles. Directly over them is an open space, all but the main floor timbers, one of which is directly over each kettle. A steam pipe also crosses above the kettles, at right angles with the beams.

More or less of the material used in the manufacture of soap is deposited in the second story and emptied into the kettles through the open spaces referred to above. It was in connection with this labor that Mr. Holt added another to the list of victims of death by scalding. Taking a barrel of old soap he emptied it into the kettle and the barrel slipped in also. He made an effort to take it out by reaching from above instead of going down stairs and taking it out over the edge. Not succeeding he stepped upon the beam and pipe alluded to, to recover the barrel, and they being slippery with soap he was precipitated into the seething, boiling, intensely hot mass of soap which the full kettle contained, feet downwards.

A workman in another part of the room saw the plunge and heard the unfortunate man's groan as he struck the hot mass. He rushed to the verge of the kettle, only to discover that the horrible bath had entirely submerged its victim. Giving the alarm other workmen came to the rescue and Mr. Holt was pulled out—dead. Probably he did not live more than three seconds after his mouth went below the surface.

Taken out so quickly the body was not so horribly burned, except the head and hands, as is sometimes the case. The body was immediately cleaned of the hot soap and afterwards given in charge of undertaker Goodrich and removed to his house on Elm street where it was properly attended to and preparations made for the deceased's late residence, 112 Jackson street. The effect upon the wife of the deceased was to nearly craze her. She met the body on its way from the factory, and the scene may be better imagined than described.

Mr. Holt, was a native of Norway, Maine, coming to this city in 1858. He entered the employ of the Messrs. Beach soon after, and for ten years past has been their foreman. They speak in the highest terms of him, as a thoroughly competent and faithful man, and had he not been overtaken by this sad fatality, he would have soon been admitted as a partner in the concern. The deceased has a wife as intimated above, but no children. The Messrs. Beach and families are doing all in their power to mitigate the severity of the blow to the wife, who is for the second time afflicted, having lost her mother a short time since.

The Temperance War.

The greatest victory yet achieved in the temperance war has been gained in Xenia, Ohio, in Whitman street. The nine saloons in that short street, five within a space of 300 yards, have gained an unenviable reputation, and are known about town as "Shades of Death," "Hell's Half Acre," "Certain Death," "Mule's Ear," and "Devil's Den." For three days the ladies had labored almost incessantly in front of the "Shades of Death," the proprietor only seeming to grow more stubborn, but at 2 o'clock Friday he opened his doors, invited the ladies in and announced his unconditional surrender. The news flew as on wings over the town, and in a few minutes it seemed that all the population were hurrying toward Whitman street. A despatch was sent to the State convention of Grangers, and that body, numbering 600, rose and indulged in three hearty cheers. All the church bells were set ringing, and the entire town turned out to rejoice. Before night it was rumored that three more saloons had agreed to surrender next morning. A notable feature of the war for two days was the presence of a large school of girls, led by their teachers, singing before the saloons such songs as "Say, Mr. Barkeeper, has father been here?" and "Father, dear father, come home." It is seriously proposed to close all the schools and business houses for a portion of each day, that the whole population may be brought to bear on the saloons. It is believed that not a month will pass before every saloon in Xenia will be closed. "The Shades of Death" was the backbone of the rebellion.

At the meeting of the Kansas State grange, resolutions were adopted requesting the Kansas legislature to pass a prohibitory liquor law, and declaring that no person who retails liquor shall be admitted to the order.

Twenty women visited the Bellfort, Long Island, saloons, Friday, and asked the owners to close them, but they declined. A large temperance gathering was held in Long Island City, where there are 400 groggshops. Despatches from Pittsburg and Philadelphia state that a temperance movement is being arranged in those cities. It is said that 3000 women have offered their services in New York.

The Wrongs of Seamen.

[Charles Nordhoff, in Harper's Magazine for March.]

I believe it may be stated as a rule, not without exceptions, however—of which I shall speak later—that when a crew has been starved, beaten, or otherwise wronged, it is in a ship of the kind I have been considering, a "black sheep." Naturally, where a man owns a fine, stanch ship, he takes some pride in her. He provides her with first-rate officers, he takes some interest in the crew, he expects her to earn money for him not for one year, but a dozen, and therefore she is found and fitted for a long life. But a ship speculator must make his money quickly. His old hulk, therefore, is skimped in every way. He hires a cheap captain and cheap officers; he puts on board poor and insufficient supplies; and as he knows the law and keeps carefully out of reach of it, and as he has studied his venture and means to make money at every possible turn in it, he instructs the captain that if wages are much lower at his nearest port, he had better drive his sailors ashore and hire a cheaper crew.

Suppose a ship carries twenty men at thirty dollars a month. Suppose at her first foreign port sailors are glad to ship for fifteen dollars a month. Suppose the voyage to last six months, and the outward trip to last a month. If he can get rid of his first crew and ship a cheaper at the first port, he will make $1,500. Of course, under ordinary circumstances, the first crew would not leave. They have shipped for the voyage; they expect to stay. If the captain discharges them regularly, he must pay in before the United States consul three months' wages for each man; and that the owner of the coffin knows very well would not pay.

What then? If, in such a case, the captain of the coffin is a brute, zealous to please his master; if he is a brute such as was a certain "Bully" who used to leave his ship in the pilot-boat, get landed at Sandy Hook, and skulk in out-of-the-way places for fear of the police until his ship was ready for sea again—in that case his course is very simple. From the day the coffin leaves home until she reaches her first port her "Bully" captain beats and starves and maltreats his men. Mostly it is not for his own pleasure he does this. It is not very amusing to beat men over the heads with belaying-pins or across the shins with handspikes. Followed day after day, it may become monotonous even to the worst of Bullies. But it is his business. It is one of the duties for which he shipped. Skimp, the owner of the coffin, wants to "make his little fifteen hundred dollars," and there is, unluckily, no other way to make that fifteen hundred dollars. "If any of your men should desert," Skimp said to Bully, as they shook hands on the wharf, "you will easily hire men in their places, and at lower wages, where you are going." And as Bully nods, Skimp adds, "You may even find men willing to work their way home for nothing." What a pleasant reflection!

Bully gets a hundred dollars a month. It is almost without exception a cheap captain who abuses his crew; and this because if he were a competent man he would not need it. A ship-captain who is a thorough seaman, master of his profession, capable and worthy to command a good ship, may be, and often is, rigid, exacting, a martinet; he may carry on sail heavily; he may require the utmost seamanship from everybody on board; he may have a passion to keep his ship neat; but he will hardly ever abuse his crew; and the seamen quickly recognize the character and peculiarities of such a man, and often like him none the less that he is somewhat authoritative and exacting, because they know that if he makes his own rights respected, he respects also theirs.

But Bully, cheap Bully, having taken his cue from Skimp, sets out on his voyage with a declaration of war against his crew. He tells them that he is going to make the coffin a hell for them, he seeks an occasion for a quarrel, he earns his cheap pay, and pleases Skimp.

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dyspeptic does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only way to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most potent preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and searching vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for lassitude, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. All Doctors prescribe it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever utilized and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. M. Register.]

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner-Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgatives yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skilful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and most distinguished citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the CITY ORDINANCES relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAYES'S SCENTLESS, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. For Order.

Local Matters.

Coroner's Inquest.

The examination of witnesses in the Pillow inquest was resumed at the Common Council room on Saturday. The following testimony was elicited:

FREDERICK W. ROGERS

was the first witness examined. His evidence developed no new facts in regard to the accident. On cross-examination he was permitted to relate the substance of a conversation with Mr. Barrett, station agent of the Eastern road, some time before the accident, in regard to the danger to which people were exposed at the railroad crossings. Mr. B. thought the road did its duty, under its privileges, and that people must look out for themselves.

CHARLES DENNETT, employed to shift trains at this station, was questioned at some length, but related no facts in regard to the accident beyond what is already known.

MISS ELLEN FROST,

who resides in the house facing the Green street crossing, was next examined. She was looking out of her window on the morning of the accident, and saw Mr. Pillow crossing the track; in the same glance saw the engine come along, and saw it strike him. The witness was positive that he was struck before his hat fell off, and that he was walking along apparently in a stooping position at the time.

THOMAS BROWN,

ship-keeper of the schooner Rough and Ready, was examined, his evidence corroborating in all essential particulars that of the previous witness. He saw the accident from a short distance. Mr. Pillow was in the centre of the track, going across it. He seemed to be hurrying to get over, but caught his foot, and at that moment the engine struck him. He was on the plank crossing, and his hat was on his head.

CITY CLERK BUFFORD

was introduced, and testified that there was nothing in the city records that he could find, giving the Eastern road a license to cross any of the streets of the city. He read an ordinance of the city, passed in 1866, requiring the railroads to have a flag-man stationed at every place where their trains cross a public high-way within the compact part of the city, (except the crossing of the Portsmouth & Concord railroad at the creek,) who must display his flag at least one minute before an engine passes such crossing.

Mr. FRINK read for the information of the jury, Sec. 5 of chap. 148, general laws of the State, which provides that no shifting engine or train shall pass and repass any high-way of any town without a license from the selectmen thereof, under a penalty of $20 for each offence.

The investigation was then again adjourned until Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Cui Bono?

The prohibition party here, small as it is, seems divided. Friday evening, its members held a meeting and indulged in some lively recriminations. One gentleman said he desired the success of the democracy at the coming election, so that there would be free rum all over the State for one year, which would convince people that prohibition was the only safety. This is probably the real animus of the managers of the prohibiton faction. If so, they do not realize the danger they incur in allowing the law to be repealed. Should the democracy get full control of the State this year, the prospect of carrying it against them in the next decade would be small. If the prohibitory law, which our temperance friends are so confident is a just one, should be repealed, it will be the direct result of their folly. The only surety of having a law to enforce lies in the friends of that law voting for a party that has some show of success.

Firemen's Balls.

Dearborn S. F. E. Co., No. 1, had a good attendance at their Ball on Friday evening, and a general good time resulted, no unpleasant incident occurring to mar the pleasure of the occasion. The hall was very tastefully and handsomely decorated, and the excellent music of Harlow's Marine Band, which gave a promenade concert before the dancing commenced, was highly enjoyed. The amusement was kept up until the small hours of the morning, and the firemen and their guests and patrons consider the Ball an entire success. Supper was served at the Kearsage House, mine host Dennett furnishing a rich and bountiful feast at a very reasonable figure.

The fifteenth annual Ball of Sagamore S. F. E. Co., No. 2,—which the managers propose shall eclipse anything in the shape of a Firemen's Ball ever given in this vicinity—comes off this (Monday) evening in Congress Hall. Edmand's Quadrille Band, of Boston, will stir up the dancers with a lot of new music, and the entire hall will be reserved for the the invited guests and purchasers of floor tickets, as no gallery tickets will be sold. The hall is finely decorated.

Masonic.

At the annual meeting of the Ineffable Grand Lodge of Perfection, held the third day of the Hebrew month Adar, A. J. 5634, the following brethren were eleeted officers for the ensuing year:—

John Christie, T. P. Grand Master; John R. Holbrook, H. of T. D. G. M.; William P. Walker, V. S. G. W; Joseph Parry, V. J. G. W.; Albert R. Hatch, G. O.; Isaac Dow, G. T.; John H. Cheever, G. S. K. of S. A.; John Dame, G. M. C.; John Nutter, G. C. G.; Alfred J. Hill, G. H. G.; William B. Randall, G. T.; Albert W. Rix, Joseph Parry, C. of A.

Kittery Point.

Friday evening at the Congregational Church, Prof. Thompson with his Portsmouth colored Jubilee Singers, met a well filled house notwithstanding the muddy condition of the roads; and the Professor as a speaker and chorister, and his troupe also, acquitted themselves right well, and with their wonted skill and credit. The audience was very respectful and attentive, and evidently well pleased with the performances, including the ready and appropriate and often witty remarks interspersed by the Professor, and he and his colored brethren and sisters feelingly expressed themselves, as they truly appeared—glad and grateful for the reception they had received, and for its gratifying pecuniary results. To others—to all who can, we say—give them generously a helping hand in their praiseworthy object—to secure a house of worship, as they evidently merit.

On the evening of the 17th, the lecture at the Congregational church was quite well attended by an audience highly pleased by the sprightly and able presentation of "Scottish life and scenes" by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Christie. Similar lectures on his recent European tour he designs to give, as he has time and opportunity. EXES.

Pretty Pussy.

The citizens of York, Me., for several days past, have been somewhat disconcerted, from certain evidences of a visitor in their neighborhood, whose habits resembled those of the wild cat. Its track having been discovered, Mr. Joseph Donnell and his brother Daniel with his three sons, started in pursuit and traced it to a place called Centre Hill Swamp. The three sons entered the swamp and in true skirmishing style pursued the enemy; Messrs. Daniel and Joseph Donnell following on the outskirt to secure it should it make its appearance there. It was driven to the extreme end and was fortunately seen by Mr. Daniel Donnell as it was emerging from the swamp, who stopped its further progress by well directed shots from a double barrel gun, both shots taking effect. It measured between four and five feet, was of a maltese color with unusually long claws and altogether was too formidable for one person to contend against with any show of success.

Laconics.

"Old Sam Simons" vies with "Spring, Spring, beautiful Spring" in being the favorite air of the street.

In the case of John P. Smith vs. Concord Railroad, tried last week at Exeter, the jury returned a verdict for $350 for plaintiff.

We hear that the republican caucus for the nomination of a candidate for Mayor will be held on Tuesday of next week, afternoon and evening.

From Talmage's Church to the Grave.

On Sunday evening Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, of Brooklyn, preached a terrific sermon on future punishment. Many of the congregation were deeply affected. Among those present was Miss Mary Lincoln, a young lady whose home was in Rhode Island, but who was visiting her friends in Brooklyn. When she went to the church she was apparently in her usual good health. At the conclusion of the discourse she fainted, and was carried out of the church. Before her friends could get her home she died. The young lady was the daughter of wealthy and highly respected parents, who were overwhelmed with grief at the news of her death. Coroner Jones held an inquest, which resulted in showing that death was caused by heart disease hastened by mental excitement. The remains of Miss Lincoln were taken to her home in Rhode Island in charge of her parents for burial.

—It is calculated that it takes a domesticated fly a two-billionth part of a second to wink, while an industrious mosquito can do it in one-tenth of that time. Corrections solicited.

SMITH'S ACADEMY

—AND—

Commercial College

FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 51 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE FURNACE WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

BANNER OF LIGHT:
—:—
Popular Family Paper,
—AND—
AN EXPONENT
OF THE Spiritual Philosophy
OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY
AT NO. 9 MONTGOMERY PLACE, BOSTON, Mass.

COLBY & RICH,
Publishers and Proprietors.
ISAAC B. RICH.....BUSINESS MANAGER.
LUTHER COLBY.....EDITOR.
Aided by a large corps of able writers.

THE BANNER OF LIGHT is a first-class, eight-page Family Newspaper, containing FORTY COLUMNS OF INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE READING, classed as follows:

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.—Original Novelettes of reformatory tendencies, and occasionally translations from French, German, Italian, and Spanish authors; Poetry, original and selected; Choice Stories for Children, etc.

REPORTS OF SPIRITUAL LECTURES—By able Trance and Normal Speakers.

ORIGINAL ESSAYS—Upon Spiritual, Philosophical and Scientific Subjects.

EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT.—Subjects of General Interest, the Spiritual Philosophy, its phenomena, etc., Current Events, Entertaining Miscellany, Notices of New Publications, etc.

MESSAGE DEPARTMENT.—Spirit-Messages from the departed to their friends in earth-life, given through the mediumship of Mrs. J. H. CONANT, which demonstrate direct intercourse between the Mundane and Super-Mundane Worlds.

ORIGINAL CONTRIBUTIONS from the most talented writers in the world.

All which features render this journal a popular Family Paper, and at the same time the Harbinger of Genuine Science and Religion.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION, IN ADVANCE.

Per Year	$3.00
Six Months	1.50
Three Months	75

☞ There will be no deviation from the above prices.

In remitting by mail, a Post-Office Money-Order on Boston, or a Draft on a Bank or Banking House in Boston or New York City, payable to the order of COLBY & RICH, is preferable to Bank Notes, as, should the Order or Draft be lost or stolen, it can be renewed without loss to the sender.

Subscriptions discontinued at the expiration of the time paid for.

Subscribers in Canada will add to the terms of subscription 20 cents per year, for pre-payment of American postage.

POST-OFFICE ADDRESS—Subscribers should not fail to write legibly their Post-Office Address and name of State.

In writing the direction of their paper changed from one town to another, must always give the name of the Town, County and State to which it has been sent.

☞ Specimen copies sent free.

Twenty-six numbers of the BANNER compose a volume. Thus we publish two volumes a year.

Patrons of the BANNER when renewing their subscriptions should be careful to always state the place to which the paper is mailed; and the same care should be exercised when a change of location is desired.

ADVERTISEMENTS published at twenty cents per line for the first, and fifteen cents per line for each subsequent insertion.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

SUCH METHOD OF

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION
CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation required an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.:
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hennikor, and am a native of Warner, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old; had it bad all the time. It ran all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over now. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank you too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Timely Hints For The Season.

We find the following in the Country Gentleman:

STRAWBERRIES.

Where the beds have not yet had any covering for protection, it will be still useful to apply it, as more plants are injured late in the winter than at its commencement. In order to obtain practical knowledge on the subject, leave part of the bed exposed to see the difference. Cover a portion with cornstalks thinly laid on, and they will hold the snow and prevent an unrestrained sweep of the winds against the plants. Cover another part thinly with stiff straw, of which rye is the best, and wheat next; but oat straw is poor as it flattens down and smothers the plants when wet. If any kind of straw is put on too thick, it will have the same effect. Then cover another portion of the bed with evergreen branches. Leave a portion exposed. Next Spring observe the result on the different parts, and you will know better what to do by another winter. The effects will be different on different sorts of the strawberries, and in different seasons. After experimenting thus for a few years, you will know all about covering strawberries in your particular locality.

DWARF PEAR TREES.

You will find on examining your dwarf pear trees that they are not probably making as strong a growth as may be necessary for their best success and for the finest fruit. Now is a very suitable time to enrich the soil over the roots by applying a good top dressing of stable or yard manure. Do not heap it in a pile at the foot of the stem, but spread it broadcast in a wide circle, so that the long roots may get the benefit to their very tips. The rains and melting snow will dissolve much of the manure and carry it down into the soil among the roots, and give the trees a new start. Next Spring the part which remains on the surface may be lightly spaded in, or if in an orchard, it may be worked in with a light plow, cultivator or harrow.

PRUNE ORCHARDS.

Trees that are hardy may be pruned in midwinter, provided no large wounds are made. An orchard properly and timely attended to will rarely require the removal of large limbs. We often see recommendations to prune early in summer because the wounds heal rapidly at that time. That season may answer, provided the cutting is very sparingly performed, or provided the trees stand in a very rich soil and grow with great vigor. But early summer pruning always checks the thriftiness of trees; and if vigor of growth is desired, always prune before the buds begin to swell—either in winter or very early in Spring; and if trouble is likely to occur from the flow of sap, cover the wounds with plain grafting wax, shellac varnish, or a mixture of tar and brick dust or road dust. If the wounds are made by winter pruning, the cut surface will become so dry in a few weeks that either of these applications will adhere well, and serve as a perfect protection. It often happens that the owner of large orchards cannot find time to do the work himself, and is unwilling to leave it to a hired man who may have no experience or judgment in cutting away the right limbs. To obviate this difficulty, and to have the work done to his satisfaction, let him take a piece of chalk in his hand, and going along the rows, draw a chalk line at the base of every crooked, or crossing, or needless branch, and let his man follow with the saw and remove them. In thisway he can mark in an hour all that the man will saw off in a day, and thus save his own valuable time. Use the chalk sold for school blackboards; and if the trees are tall, insert it in a hole bored in the end of a rod or stick several feet long.

The Scouts.

Buffalo Bill and Wild Bill grew up as young men together, working in the government-baggage trains, hauling supplies and freight from the frontier to the forts and Indian stations, on the plains. Buffalo Bill's parents lived in Kansas, and his father was a prominent politician in the days of Lane, on the Free State side. He was killed at a political meeting, and Bill, then a young man, returned to his native State. During "Bleeding Kansas" times, Bill and his friends found a chance to settle old scores with the ruffians of the Missouri border. As he expressed it they "made it too hot for them," and incurred the displeasure of the government for the rather summary manner in which they redressed personal and State wrongs. Bill, with others, was in this partially outlawed position at the breaking out of the war of the rebellion, but the government was ready to accept their services as scouts and guides, to the army expedition on the western border.

An official order sent to Leavenworth early in the war, for a man who could manage a brigade of wagons, was answered with a reply that Wild Bill was the only man who could do the work. He was immediately put in charge of the wagons used in the transportation to the southwest. His daring character soon led him into the more important and dangerous duties of a spy, and Buffalo Bill said that he had shown some of the coolest bravery of the whole secret service. The value he must have held as a spy, can be seen in the fact that he was for some time supposed by the rebels to be a spy in the service of the confederacy. After the war, both Buffalo Bill and Wild Bill rode pony expresses over the plains, and much of their lives have been spent together.

The two men have been rendered quite well-known to the public. Buffalo Bill's connection with the Duke Alexis buffalo hunt made his name a common one before Ned Buntline's story excited wide-spread interest in his life. Wild Bill's celebrity was finally established by a long article in Harper's Monthly written just after the close of the war, in which his wonderful achievements in towns and on the plains with his horse "Bess" were graphically described.

Texas Jack served through the war in the rebel army, and at its close was one of the first men to manage the driving of large herds of cattle from Texas to the northern government stations. Buffalo Bill met him while chief of scouts about Fort McPherson. Jack's life as a herdsman had made him an adept in that most important part of backwoodsmanship, trailing, and he was given an immediate situation as a government scout and guide.

The splendid personal appearance of the men both on the stage and off, has been the subject of general compliment. Buffalo Bill's lithe and graceful motions, Texas Jack's dashing style and handsome face, and the commanding physique of Wild Bill have each been praised. The men are remarkable for their small feet. It may be owing to their life in the saddle, but Wild Bill, though standing six feet and two inches in height, has a very small foot, while Texas Jack with the solid weight of over 180 pounds, wears a number five boot, and Buffalo Bill has a thin, small foot, excellently shown off by the beaded moccassins he wore on the stage.

Their fund of anecdote is of course inexhaustible, and scores of gentlemen have listened with pleasure to their stories Still not one of the party is in the least obtrusive with remarks regarding himself. The members of the theatrical company are extremely entertaining in their tales. One of the best Mr. Burke told was in regard to the Indians who were with the company last season. The chief Indian, as the story goes, was a natural grumbler, and his propensities were always increased by his potations of "fire water," of which he was of course a lover. At such times he used to assault Mr. Burke with complaints regarding the play, saying "John—no good—Indian killed all time—Indian no kill—no good—why not me kill Buffalo Bill?" The "noble red man" had discovered that his position in the piece was emphatically that of "Lo, the poor Indian," and it was far from suiting him.

The Scouts do not at all pretend to be actors. They talk jokingly about their playing as stars, but they must know that one great charm of their action is in its entire freedom from any of the common usages of the stage. Wild Bill's first lines, "Boys, I'm with you heart and hand," or Buffalo Bill's, "I'll save my friend Texas Jack, or I'll die in the attempt," are twice as effective as if there was any attempt to make it especially so. Wild is Bill even said to wish the play changed so that he can give the rascally coward Dogget a chance for his life, instead of shooting him as he attempts to carry off the girl.

The Temperance War.

Lists of the 8000 rumsellers in New York city are now being prepared by the temperance crusaders, with a view of being waited upon. They say they hope to close 4000 of the shops. The crusaders have begun operations on Staten Island, by holding a prayer-meeting in Vanderbilt's saloon in Factoryville during the absence of the proprietor in New York. Some of the most prominent ladies of Brooklyn also met to organize. Alderman Brucks, who has a liquor store in 8th avenue, 4th street, has received a letter telling him that a board of women, from a neighboring church, were to assemble before his saloon on Sunday and pray and sing for his reformation. The German saloon-keepers propose to organize a protective union in every ward in the city to protect their rights as citizens and tax-payers, and guard their interests. They are now considering a preamble and resolutions that the policy of prohibition by law in the place of regulation of the traffic in fermented liquors, beer and wines is as clearly against the bill of rights and the Constitutions of the State and the United States as would be an interference with any other trade or licensed business, yet notwithstanding these reasons fanaticism and riotous proceedings are rampant once more. Addresses were made denouncing the present crusade of women, who will not allow liquor dealers, like other tradesmen, to peaceably ply their business. The ladies of Jersey City organized and began operations in Orange on Monday.

Readables.

Heavy rains are reported from Ohio and Tennessee, causing the rivers to rise; and fears of floods are entertained.

Advices from Spain state that heavy fighting has been going on in Biscay for several days. The republicans have taken the first height and their losses are heavy. The Carlists have taken the town of Vindros in Valencia.

The Asiatic cholera is still raging in Buenos Ayres, and from forty to fifty deaths a day are reported.

The scheme to abolish the pension agencies will probably fail, but no agent will be allowed to receive more than $5000 salary.

Spain has removed her duties on exports.

An engine on the Jefferson branch of the Erie Railroad ran off the track near Unionvale, N. Y., Sunday, and, falling down an embankment, killed four persons, including the conductor.

The total official vote for mayor in Philadelphia foots up, Stokely, 60,128; McClure, 49,133. Stokely was 2800 behind Smith, republican candidate for receiver of taxes.

The announcement has been received from the academy of science at Vienna of the discovery of a new comet.

A young man named John Magar attended a ball and supper party, recently given by the Rough and Ready Engine Co., of Hyde Park, Mass., at the Willard House, and drank from a bottle which he found in one of the private rooms. It contained bed bug poison, causing death.

State News.

The livery stable in Tilton, owned by Mrs. S. Parsons, and occupied by Cate Bros., together with a part of the dwelling-house attached, was destroyed by fire on the 20th. The Cate Bros. lose carriages, harnesses, etc., and one horse badly burned; total loss about $6000.

A very amusing incident occurred in Manchester during the performance of the play entitled Robert Emmett by a theatrical company. In the course of the play one of the female performers, who personated an Irish woman of rebel sympathies, vanquished half a dozen British soldiers and laid them sprawling upon the stage. This scene so excited the anger and patriotism of one of the audience, who was an Englishman, and recently deserted from the British army in Canada, that he sprang involuntarily upon the stage and declared that he would allow no bloody Irish woman to whip his countrymen in that manner, and he forthwith pitched into the astonished actress. It was with much difficulty that he was removed from the stage and made to understand that he was only witnessing a play.

A French Bedroom.

[French Home Life.]

Now go to the bedroom, and from the door absorb it with your eyes, for never have you seen a picture more complete. The walls, the hangings, and the seats are all in pale blue satin (she is fair), edged sparingly with velvet of the same shade, and embroidered daintily with moss-rose buds, swathed in still paler yellow leaves. Now this description though exact, gives no idea of the effect produced by that wondrous tissue, of the incredible effect of the delicacy and thorough feminine elegance which it sheds around. The room is filled with a vague, floating grace, its elegance, its its every detail is combined to aid and sustain the almost fairy aspect it presents. The bed is shrouded in thickly wadded satin curtains, inside which hang others of muslin so vaporously filmy that the folds seem mist, the coverlet, which hides the lace-trimmed sheets and pillows, is in blue satin, lined with eider down, and covered with the same veil of floating white, hanging down in a deep flounce over the wood-work of the bed. The toilet-table is the same—a nestling maze of transparency and lace, with blue beneath, and knots and streamers of mingled satin and velvet round. On the chimney-place stands a clock and candle-stick of Sevres china. The piano is in pale bois de rose (not rosewood, which is a very different substance), inlaid with plates of painted Sevres to match. At night light comes from above, where hangs a lamp of Sevres again. In our day, with our active ideas and actual wants, such rooms as these are typical; they represent the highest form of realization of modern taste without its faults, or rather with as little of them as is consistent with the expenditure of so much money, and so much thought. In these rare vases, vanity seeks for another satisfaction than that of glare; but vanity is at the bottom of all, the same; the only difference is that it is accompanied by a true sense of art.

How the Bulfinch is Taught.

[St. Nicholas for March.]

Boys and girls are not the only little folk who attend singing classes, as you shall know when you hear about the piping bulfinch.

In shape and size this bulfinch is somewhat like the sparrows in our city parks, but he has a very different head. The sparrow, you know, has a trim, quick little pate of his own. Not so the bulfinch. His is a clumsy affair—in fact, he has a sort of "bull" head and neck; so, you see, he is well named. Besides, his body is nearly as black as a coal, and his throat is as red as if the coal were on fire. He is not naturally a singer, nor is he half so clever as our American mocking-bird. In fact, he seems rather stupid, but he is willing to learn; and so it happens that if you persevere long enough you can teach him to sing a tune.

The country people of Germany have found this out. There the peasants take great delight in training bulfinches. Their pupils, not being very bright, as I said before, are stupidly bopping about their cages, when suddenly they hear a tune played upon a violin. They prick up their ears—or would do so if they could,—and begin to listen, quite unconscious that that very same violin has been playing that very same tune for about a week without their noticing it. But it is something to catch their attention. Day after day, for months, the patient teacher goes over and over the same tune to the listening birds until human listeners begin to wonder which will get crazy first, the bulfinch or the player. But by and by the birds begin to pick up the air, piping the simple parts at first, and taking up note after note until, at last, they know the whole thing by heart. Sometimes a rustic father spends half his time all winter teaching one little patient bird, and the children look on with the greatest interest. Or a boy will undertake the task, and when he at last succeeds, his sisters look upon him as the most wonderful fellow in the world; and they cry in real earnest when the wonderful boy carries his pupil to town to be sold; for sold these bulfinches are sure to be as soon as they are taught, or else exhibited by their owners as street singers. Sometimes bird-teachers are known far and wide for their skill and success; and at Freiburg, in Baden, and small villages on the outskirts of the Black Forest, bulfinch training is practiced as a regular business. In such cases a small hurdy-gurdy, or "bird organ" is used, as being less tiresome than the violin; and, instead of training one bird, they teach the same tune to a class of ten or a dozen.

Generally, the birds are sent to London or Paris, where, if they have learned their lessons thoroughly, they are bought by rich folk, put into beautiful cages and treated as pets, whilst other bulfinches, having trifled away their school-days and only half learned their tune, live a vagrant life around the markets, belonging to nobody, and picking up their dinner as best as they can.

A Misunderstanding.

A case of misunderstanding occurred up in the country last week. Riding up to a hotel in Courtland county we saw the big, smart landlord with his boys, smoking short pipes on the balcony, while his wife was sweeping around the chairs.

"Hello! Do you keep this hotel?"

"No, sir, I reckon not; this tavern keeps me."

"I mean, are you master here?"

"Waal, sometimes I am (poking at the old lady's broom), but I guess the boys an' I run the stable—take your horse?"

"Got anything to drink around here?"

"Yes, everything drinks around here."

"Any ales?"

"Touch of the rheumatix myself; folks generally healthy, though."

"I mean have you any porter?"

"Yes, John's our porter. Hold his hoss, John."

"I mean any porter to drink?"

"Porter to drink? Why, John can drink, an' if he can't drink enough, I kin whip a right smart o' licker myself."

"Pshaw—stupid! have I got to come down and see myself."

"You kin come down, Shaw Stupid, and see yourself of you want to—there's a good looking-glass in the bar-room."

A Novel Introduction.

Boston turned out largely to hear Rev. Charles Kingsley's lecture on "Westminster Abbey." "Mark Twain" introduced Mr. Kingsley to the audience, with a characteristic speech. When he wrote "The Innocents Abroad," he said, he thought the book would at once bring him into close relations with the clergy; but from that day to this he had never been called on even to vouch for a minister, and even now when his hour had come, he had only been requested to introduce one who needed no introduction. He was not called upon to indorse Mr. Kingsley, but they did that because it might be a graceful thing to do. Least of all, was it necessary to praise Mr. Kingsley, whom he should speedily deafen were he able to concentrate in his single voice the enthusiasm of welcome and appreciation which was there present. Mr. Kingsley remarked that it was fitting that Mr. Clemens should stand voucher for his lecture, for it was written at his suggestion. One night when they were walking together through Westminster Abbey, Mr. Clemens told him that he had just been writing a paper about Westminster, and suggested to him to make it the subject of a lecture for America. "So," he said, with a humorous twinkle of his shrewd eyes, "you have your remedy in your own hands, and if my lecture fails to please you, it will be but right that you should make him give you his—of course gratuitously."

—The fairy tale of the White Fawn has found a modern reproduction in Oregon. A deer chased by dogs took refuge near where a man was squaring timber. The man drove the dogs off, and the deer remained with him all day, allowing him to fondle it, and appearing to feel a lively sense of gratitude for the man's interference on its behalf.

—In Cooperstown they tell about an English joker who dined with Fenimore Cooper before he died in 1851. Cooper was then the most conspicuous man in the little town which nestles at the foot of a high mountain, and reposes on the shores of the Seneca Lake. One day, while Mr. Cooper was dining the Englishman, he poured out some native wine—wine from grapes raised in his own garden. Taking up a glass and looking through it with pride, Cooper remarked: "Now, Mr. Stebbins, I call this good, honest wine." "Yes, Mr. Cooper, I agree with you; it is honest wine—'poor, but honest.'" Mr. Cooper went on telling his Injun stories.

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take, and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within one month from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their notes to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

Local Matters.

How It Looks.

The canvass made by the republican ward committees of this city shows a large increase of voters. The committees have the names of 100 democrats who will not vote the democratic State ticket, among them several who have been quite prominent in democratic counsels in time past. Weston's signature to the railroad bill will lose him scores of votes in Portsmouth and the manner of his nomination will lose him many others. The republicans are as busy as bees and will elect every candidate they nominate in this city by overwhelming majorities. They propose to throw 150 more votes than were ever cast for a republican candidate for office here. Will any part of the State do better?

The Sacred Concert.

The high esteem in which the New England Colored Jubilee Singers are held here was shown by the large audience which assembled to hear them Sunday evening notwithstanding the pouring rain storm. We noticed a little carelessness in time by one or two of the singers. In other respects the concert was most enjoyable. The "Little Octoroon" was sung in public for the first time and is destined to be a popular chorus. Prof. Thompson's well directed efforts have been rewarded by a most complimentary benefit. The troupe are to make an extended tour soon, singing at Exeter, Lowell, Nashua, Concord, Salem and other places. We bespeak for them the good-will of our editorial brethren, who cannot say too much in their praise.

Laconics.

On Monday, the bells of the city rang at sunrise, noon and sunset, and a salute was fired from the receiving ship Sabine, on account of George being 142 years old, wherever he is. The stores were closed and work suspended.

Mr. George H. Tripp has opened a new lot of Room Papers at 37 Market street, having taken half of the store formerly occupied by the late Chas. W. Gerrish. See advertisement.

We unintentionally credited to the Boston Globe the article published yesterday headed "Why They Fight Simmons." It should have been credited to the New York Graphic.

That Good Little Boy Again.

One of our good little boys, says the Marquette Journal, read the story about that other good little boy who got a situation in a bank, and became rich and respected, and was enabled to give money to the Fiji Islanders, and have his wood sawed for a dollar a day, and make the wood-sawer wait ninety days for his pay, all through picking up a pin when the banker was looking. Our little boy went to one of the banks, and asked for work, and didn't get it; so, just before he got to the door, he stopped and made believe pick up a pin. But the cashier, who saw him, thought it was money, and jumped over the counter like lightning, and collared the good little boy, and shook him, and called him a thief and finally went through his pockets and raked out 25 cents, which the boy had found in his father's pockets while the old man was asleep. This he confiscated, and kicked the boy into the street. And our good little boy says he thinks in a few years he can flog the man who told the story about the other good little boy.

—One person killed and four injured every working-day in the year, is a pretty good record for American railways.

—An Ohio mathematician has discovered that one man dies from the use of alchohol every seven minutes, and that those who have died from its effects during the last fifty years would bridge the American continent from ocean to ocean, allowing three feet to each body.

—A young lady of Lyons, Iowa, recently said: "Some men are always talking about patronizing their own town—always harping on that duty—and yet they go abroad to get married, while here we all stand waiting! I do hope that some of these men who marry eastern women will get cheated!"

—An English gentleman who was addicted to the exceedingly reprehensible habit of always asking his friends to partake of casual stimulants, had on several occasions invited a teetotal friend, who had refused, but who wished to return the compliment in some way. One day, therefore, the good templar seized his companion's arms when passing a post office, and said, "Come in here, my dear boy, and have six-penn'orth of postage stamps."

—An ingenious American abroad has proposed to run a tunnel under the St. Bernard, of the Alpine range of mountains, to be about two thousand feet in length. Beneath the summit it is intended to widen the tunnel so as to make a station, and to connect it by means of an elevator with the open air. At the mouth of the elevator it is proposed to build a hotel, so that the Alpine scenery and sunrises may be enjoyed without any personal exertion.

—At a very successful seance in Cincinnatti a man burst into tears when the medium described very accurately a tall, blue-eyed spirit standing by him, with light side-whiskers and his hair parted in the middle. "Do you know him?" inquired a man at his side in a sympathetic whisper. "Know him? I guess I do," replied the unhappy man, wiping his eyes. "He was engaged to my wife. If he hadn't died he would have been her husband instead of me. Oh, George, George!" he murmured, in a voice choked with emotion, "why did you peg out?"

—While temperence advocates are pouring whiskey into the gutters in Ohio, the thirsty people of Waverly, Mo., are striving with all their might and main to recover 300 barrels of whiskey which were sunk in the Missouri river fifteen years ago. Whenever the river falls low, the people go at the work with an enthusiasm which shows that they are bound to have that whiskey if it takes a century to get it. If Waverly should make a raise of it, wickedly says a Chicago paper, Waverly will get so drunk on this fifteen-year-old whiskey that it will take more than fifteen years to get over it.

—There is a rather remarkable bill before the New York legislature for securing pure liquors to consumers in the city of New York. It prohibits, under severe penalty, the counterfeiting of any liquor, wine, or beer; and the seller of any such counterfeit shall be held to possess guilty knowledge thereof. It provides for a board of liquor examiners, consisting of twenty-seven chemists with twenty-four assistants, who shall be assigned to duty in the various wards, and who, after preparing a schedule of the exact composition of all pure liquors, shall be empowered to compel all dealers to conform to the standard, under penalty of fine, imprisonment, seizure of liquor and revocation of license. The examiners may enter any liquor shop at any time, and begin the work of inspection and analysis, and they shall investigate any liquor or liquor shop upon being asked to do so by three complainants.

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dyspeptic does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only way to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most potent preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and searching vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for lassitude, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. All Doctors prescribe it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever utilized and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Don't hawk, hawk, spit, spit, blow, blow, and disgust everybody with your Catarrh and its offensive odor, when Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will speedily destroy all odor, arrest the discharge and cure you. 710

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name so (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meanwhile it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

SMITH'S ACADEMY

—AND—

Commercial College

FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 31 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two

SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant agaire, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

Judging by Appearances.

Resting over night at a pretentious hotel and breakfasting very heartily there in the morning was an aged stranger whose unspeakably seedy attire, while it had been unnoticed in the dark hours of his arrival, excited the dire distrust of the officials of the house as revealed by daylight. Sorely suspicious was the superb clerk of the establishment that the latter was to be wronged of its dues by some trick or plea of this venerable, shabby guest, and when the latter, having dispatched his meal, presented himself at the desk with an admonitory cough, his doubts became a certainty.

"I have had my breakfast," began the aged man, deliberately, "and candor compels me to say———"

"Hand over the money, you old rascal," interrupted the clerk, in a rage.

"As I was saying," resumed the stranger, placidly, "candor compels me to inform you———"

"Call a policeman!" roared the clerk to a bell-boy. "We'll have our twelve shillings or you go to the lock up."

The boy started upon his errand without apparent notice from him of the seedy costume, who taking his own time to draw forth from some obscure pocket a vast and greasy wallet, quietly repeated:

"As I was saying, I've had my breakfast, and here's your twelve shillings; but candor compels me to inform you that them mashed potatoes was lovely—perfectly lovely, sir; and I don't mind throwing in a shilling extra for 'em."

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are a modern stove polish, far better than any other in existence. Are better because they give a finer gloss than any other polish.

Yield a brilliant silvery sheen, with less than half the labor required when other polishes are used.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are a neat and cleanly article, making no dirt or dust when used. Can be used even in the parlor without the trouble of removing furniture or carpets.

Has no disagreeable sulphurous or strong acid smell when prepared for use, but are pleasant and harmless.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are put up in neat style and in a form more convenient for use than any other polish. In each box are 12 sticks; 1 stick is sufficient for any stove, thus all waste is saved.

Are the cheapest polish in the market, because one box at 10 cents will polish as much surface as 25 cents' worth of the old polish.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Have just taken the 1st premium at the Indianapolis Exposition, in competition with several of the best of old stove polishes.

BUY CRUMBS OF COMFORT of your storekeeper, if he has them, or will procure them for you, if not, send us one dollar, your name, and the name of your nearest express station, and we will send you ten boxes, and samples of Hartdett's Blacking and Pearl Blacing, free of cost.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT can be had of all Wholesale Grocers and Dealers in the United States, and Retail Dealers will find them the most profitable, from the fact that they are the fastest selling article of the kind in the market.

SPLENDID AND UNPARALLELED TRIUMPHS

—OF THE—

WHEELER & WILSON

Sewing Machine Co.,

NEW YORK.

OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,

—AT THE—

WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.

1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being for progress made since the Exposition of 1867, at which the only Gold Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior medal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle Industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only award of the kind in this department.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.

(GROUP 13, SEC. 2, B.)

"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 900,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."

"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly pearl stitch."

"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

FURTHER DISTINGUISHED HONORS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15, 1873.

THE GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR

—OF THE—

AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK,

Was unanimously recommended by the judges of Sewing-Machines for

WHEELER & WILSON'S

NEW NO. 6 SEWING MACHINE,

of being "a decided improvement over all other machines in the market," and which "must revolutionize certain branches of industry, especially in Shoe and Harness Manufacturing."

BALTIMORE, Md., October 31, 1873.

"The MARYLAND INSTITUTE has awarded WHEELER & WILSON the GOLD MEDAL for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine. Other Sewing Machines received nothing."

SAVANNAH, November 4, 1873.

"At the GEORGIA STATE FAIR, a SILVER MEDAL, the highest and only premium for Leather Stitching, was awarded to WHEELER & WILSON for samples done on their New No. 6 Sewing Machines."

A Source of Great Anxiety.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. H. R. TILDEN,

Ins. and Real Estate Agt., 49 Sears Building. Boston, Mass., June 5, 1872.

MOTHERS, READ THIS!

A Great Blessing!

WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.

Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.

My little girl is two and a half years old; and during that time I have not had two consecutive nights' rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and trouble for some days.

I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there; and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very late in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I often say, the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar a drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing. MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,

175 Tudor street.

South Boston, July 10, 1871.

Circulation of the Blood.

The circulation of the blood is the life of the body, and its stoppage is death. We are healthy when the blood circulates freely; any interruption preventing its free course is the commencement of disease. "Blood is the life of the flesh." Can we expect to enjoy good health when bad or corrupt humors circulate with the blood, causing pain and disease; and these humors being deposited through the entire body, producing pimples, eruptions, ulcerous inflammation, costiveness, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and numerous other complaints? No disease can be in the body without first being generated in the blood; and no disease can possibly be in the body if the blood is pure. It is of great importance to know what medicine will purify and renovate the blood, eradicate the disease, renew vitality, mentally and physically, and instil fresh vigor into all the vital functions of the body. This medicine is the VEGETINE. Lo great blood purifier.

It extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with its foundation; correcting diseased action, and restoring vital power, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted task.

VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 4ordp arm.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
If necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangulings, Pains in the Head, Back, Kidneys, Dizziness and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL
CATARRH REMEDY.
To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 12 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. My eyes bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. PLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Joe Backsey's Burning.

As the saloon was of unpainted boards and unplastered, the flames made rapid progress; so that Jim Slipson, the proprietor, had barely time to save two or three armsful of bottles. With these he retired to the opposite side of the street, where the spectators stood; and he was mournfully contemplating the effect of caloric upon alcohol, when he suddenly started, and exclaimed,—

"Good God! Injin Mary's in the loft over the saloon!"

"Who's that?" asked the deacon, who had joined the crowd.

"She's—well, not exactly one of your kind, deac'n," replied Jim. "She come las' night with her young 'un an' wanted to sleep thar till mornin.'"

"Some poor depraved creature, I s'pose," sighed the deacon.

"Well," said Jim, prudently massing on his front most of his outlying bottles, "I reckon Injins, in general, was off huntin' when religion was give out, deac'n; an' Mary ain't no better'n the rest. But anybody's too good to be roasted,—leastways, in this world," continued Jim Slipson, remembering the deacon's ground work of belief, and treating it with polite deference.

"She don't intend to risk it now, at any rate," exclaimed the Major, as a dark figure dashed out of the flames, and rolling on the ground to extinguish its flaming clothing, disclosed the coppery, heavy, impassive features of Indian Mary.

"Hooray!" shouted the crowd. Mary had been seen very often at Spurtip; but never before had Spurtip felt itself called upon to exhibit any respect for her.

It was very evident that Mary had been asleep or drunk, or both; for she stood stupidly rubbing her eyes for several moments.

"Didn't you say she brought a child with her?" asked the professor of Jim Slipson.

"Good God, yes!" exclaimed Jim, seizing Mary by the shoulder, and shaking her violently.

"Mary, Mary! where's the young un?"

Mary stopped rubbing her eyes, and stared vacantly at Jim for a moment; then she uttered a piercing scream, and attempted to enter the burning building again. The intense heat, however, drove her back; and she stood in front of the crowd with a fierce, hopeless glare in her eyes, while every few seconds she uttered a horrible cry, half groan, half yell, which made even the most whiskey-hardened men shiver and turn pale.

"A hundred dollars for whoever'll get that baby!" shouted the mayor.

Nobody stirred. There were plenty of impecunious men at Spurtip; but none seemed inclined to earn money in exactly this manner.

"Two hundred!" cried the professor.

"Three!" roared the deacon. "It's a little heathen an' it runs a double risk."

"Tain't no use tryin," remarked Seventeener, ex-member of an eastern fire-department. "No feller cud live in that there fire more'n half a minut. He'd her to breathe, an' then 'twould be all up with him."

"That you a-yellin' over yer loss, Jim?" pleasantly asked Joe Backsey, edging into the crowd, and patting the unfortunate barkeeper on the back.

"It's Injin Mary: her baby's in the loft. O Lord, just listen to the poor devil!" said Jim, as Mary uttered another cry.

Joe picked up a bucket of water, and poured it over himself, and an instant later dashed into the flames, and up the blazing ladder which led to the loft. Not a man spoke. It seemed that no one breathed for a moment. The deacon closed his eyes, and his lips were seen to move rapidly; and many men, though unused to such exercise, followed the deacon's example.

Suddenly a mighty roar broke from the crowd as Joe Backsey, hatless, hairless, beardless, and almost black, emerged from the blazing building with a dirty bundle in his arms. He had nearly crossed the street, when suddenly he stopped, screamed, "Catch it!" threw the child, and dropped face downwards, on the ground.

The deacon was by his side in an instant, shouting for water and oil, as he tenderly turned the insensible form over.

"No go," said Seventeener, giving Joe's face a critical glance. "He's breathed the fire; I know it by his lips an' nose; he won't never breath nothin' else."

"Joe, Joe!" cried the deacon, while big tears fell from his rugged face. "God bless mercy on yer soul!"

From beneath the cruelly singed eyebrows and lashes, Joe's good-natured eyes opened; his cracked lips parted and smiled; he tried to speak; but suddenly he gasped, shivered; and then the deacon knew by the way Joe's head hung over the kind old arm that supported it, that his partner had drawn his last dividend.

For some moments the crowd stood in respectful silence; then Jim Slipson invited the crowd to open his few remaining bottles, and drink deep to Joe's good luck in the next world. A stretcher was then improvised, and Joe was carried to the office of the Quickledge Company. There was no formal lying-in-state; there was not a single flower placed on the catafalque; but men of all degrees crowded to see what remained of the hero; and many of them when they went away showed the first indications of soul that had ever been seen in their faces.

The three partners sat down to supper, and gazed sadly at the empty chair. The mayor finally broke the silence.

"A Christian couldn't have died more nobly," said he.

"Christian!" exclaimed the good deacon. "The publicans and harlots shall go into the kingdom 'fore you—an' me! We only offered our money; while he gave his life."

"Blessed be the promises," said the professor. "'Give, and it shall be given unto you.' Joe gave his life; can we believe he will get anything less in return?"

"Ef burnt off'rin's 'll make an atonement nowadays," said the deacon, "he's done his best; an' nobody could do more."

The deacon took upon himself the mournful duty and pleasure of making a headboard for his deceased partner, and of painting thereon a suitable inscription. For hours did the deacon rack his brain for a passage of Scripture which would be appropriate; and he finally painted on the headboard the verse,—

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

But while it was drying, and the deacon was absent for a few moments, some heterodox person strolled in, read the inscription, and, seizing the paint brush, wrote,—

"How 'bout a feller that saves Ingin babies that hain't his friends?"

And thus reads the inscription to this day.

Despatches from all parts of Ohio report immense temperance mass meetings and general activity. In Hillsboro the saloonkeepers voted to resume selling in strict accordance with the law.

"Hank" Smith of New York is dead.

The Portland Press, after copying our mention of the declaration of a prohibitionist that he hoped the democrats would carry New Hampshire, so that for one year the people might be deluged with free rum, says such logic "is almost as good as that of the man who would burn a city that its bad people might have an idea of the terrors of a possible hereafter."

Intelligence has reached Bay City, Mich., that at nine o'clock Monday morning a cake of ice several miles in extent broke off from the shore in Saginaw Bay. On this field of ice there were fully three hundred fishermen, several teams and sleighs. The men are supplied with food and fuel. When last seen they had drifted several miles northeast when a strong southwest wind, shifting to westward, drifted the ice toward the east shore of the Bay. A report from Seberraing, says that fifty men made a landing there. Other reports from various points say about two hundred have escaped. Two men are know to have been drowned. The ice is solid and ranges from 12 to 20 inches in thickness, and is not easily broken up.

Who is William A. Simmons.

[Chelsea Pioneer.]

Mr. Simmons is prompt, active, and decisive in all his moves, and believes in the homœopathic doctrine, that it takes meanness to cure meanness, a knave to check a knave, an ace to beat a king. More than this he believes that although holding a government office, he has a right to figure as largely in politics as any other legal voter in Massachusetts the Republican State Convention notwithstanding; he is willing to lay aside the lukewarmness of old office holders who wait to see which way the cat leaps before they shout, and shout before the leap is made to make the animal go the way he wishes. He believes that an office worth holding is worth fighting for.

The spirit of the public press in trying to be little such a man as Mr. Simmons in the estimation of the authorities at Washington, and his fellow citizens at large, deserve censure. Mr. Simmons' career from a boy up is worthy of commendation. Thrown upon his own resources, by the death of his father, at the early age of twelve, a partial support of a widowed mother, brothers and sisters, toiling from early to late, catching spare moments at morning, and burning the midnight oil to gain an education, he finally qualified himself for a lawyer and was admitted to the bar in 1865, having read in such offices as G. O. Shattuck and A. W. Boardman, men who saw there was good stuff in him and helped him in his praiseworthy undertaking. He served with honor as a private during the war in the 44th Mass. Infantry. In 1870 he was appointed Supervisor of Internal Revenue of five N. E. States, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Conn., which office he has held to the present time, and his record at Washington as an Internal Revenue officer is without blemish. He has held many offices of distinction, among which are: A member of the Ward and City Committee of Boston, and chairman of the same body since 1873; a member of the State Central Committee for several years; received a handsome vote for State Senator; and was commander of Post John A. Andrew, G. A. R. Having been a citizen of Chelsea for many years we feel proud to know that at one time we could claim him as a Chelseaite and can now point to him as a sample of the men we send forth. He has been a hard worker for the party, one who is a true friend, and is deserving of reward at the hands of his party and the men whom he has helped to positions of fame and honor.

As to his being too young for the office he is now nominated for, have not young men filled positions equally as well, if not better than older men, before now? And why not in this instance? We sincerely hope his nomination will be confirmed, and it will be if the voice of his friends are of any weight, and such messages are sent to Washington from the heavy merchants of Boston, and men of high standing as: "Mr. Simmons will make the smartest Collector of the Port of Boston we have had for fifty years!"

All we can say to you William, is, go in and win.

Old Time Chronicles No. 106.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

The first newspaper published in the province of New Hampshire was commenced at Portsmouth Oct. 7, 1756, by Daniel Fowle. The paper is still continued. It was called the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE. An account of this has been given.

The second was commenced at Portsmouth, Jan. 21, 1765, by Thomas Furber, and was called the Portsmouth Mercury and Weekly Advertiser.

The first in Exeter, and now to be noticed, (which was the third in New Hampshire,) was commenced in the latter part of the year 1775. Not having files of the paper, the exact date cannot be given, but we have the authority of the late Jacob B. Moore for saying it was near the close of the year named.

Exeter had been settled 137 years. It had spared from its original territory what had constituted four other towns, viz., Newmarket, (now besides that town, South Newmarket,) Epping, Brentwood and Poplin, now Fremont. Still, as to population, it was the third in the Province, Portsmouth being first, and Londonderry, then including Derry, the second.

The proprietor, conductor and in fact the one who did the most of the printing, was Robert Fowle, nephew of Daniel Fowle of the GAZETTE in Portsmouth. He had been a partner with his uncle, but did not agree with him in political affairs, Daniel opposing the oppressive measures of England, and Robert sustaining them, favoring the British ministry as to its measures. So they dissolved.

Now for Exeter's first newspaper. We wish that it had been better in many respects, but it was something to the people of the town to have a printing press among them and a paper published. Mr. Fowle called it at first "A New Hampshire Gazette." Soon, "The New Hampshire Gazette." This did not suit him or his patrons, and he changed it to "The New Hampshire Gazette, or, Exeter Morning Chronicle." Not right and another change to "The New Hampshire State Gazette, or, Exeter Circulating Morning Chronicle." This did not suit, and it was changed to "The State Journal, or the New Hampshire Gazette and Tuesday's Liberty Advertiser."

Under this last alteration, a large, coarsely engraved cut was connected with the title. The device was, an open volume with the word "Journal." Underneath was a ship under sail. The volume was supported by a figure representing Fame, and another that of an Indian pretty fully equipped.

Mr. Fowle was much given to change and so besides those of the name, he often changed the days of the week for publication. Happily his worthy subscribers were not so difficult about that as people would be now. Then as to the paper itself, while it was small in size, sometimes it would appear on half a sheet of that small size, probably just as he could get paper enough, or matter, or time to put it in type. But Exeter people have ever had a good share of patience, and then, especially, they appreciated small favors. The demand was for light and if the Press gave but a few rays, they were gladly received.

There was one redeeming quality worth much then. Quite a portion of the printing was with a large type. Spectacles were not very common then, and the more part of the aged could read this paper without them.

The publication continued a part of two years in all, and ended in the fore part of 1777. The town had no paper published till seven years later, when Melcher and Osborne commenced "The Morning Chronicle." It existence was but a few months, and next Henry Ranlet was on the field, and in various ways, put considerable in motion in publishing papers.

Exeter in 1775, when its first newspaper was published, had a population of 1741. Eight years before there were 50 slaves; at the latter date but 38. The village was not much; some large houses to be sure, but not many elegant. Quite a portion of the dwellings were unpainted. There were but two churches, Rev. Woodbridge Odlin, pastor of the first, and Rev. Daniel Rodgers of the second. The Gilmans were prominent among the business men, some of them holding then or soon after, important offices. Hon. Nicholas Gilman was in the army of the Revolution, an officer;—held several important offices, being a member of Congress after the Constitution was adopted, and on one of his journeys to the seat of goverament, at Saratoga Springs, tested the value of one of them, and in consequence, to this day, it bears the name of "Congress Spring." John Taylor Gilman, a brother, held many offices and later was a popular governor of the State 14 years. In 1776, the year in which the newspaper that has been described was in its greatest prosperity, the Declaration of Independence was made, and a copy being brought by express to Exeter, John Taylor Gilman, then 23 years of age, read it publicly to the assembled citizens.

Of physicians at that early period our account is limited. We have mention of Dr. John Giddings, who married Mehitable Gilman. Early lawyers were Noah Emery, Wm. Parker and John Pickering; but the dates, the late Hon. John Kelly could not obtain.

Master-Thoughts.

[Lippincott's Magazine for March.]

A few times in the course of a century master thoughts appear in literature, thrown to the surface of the current like eddies from the depths of a river. They affect, however, the entire movement and character of the mental stream. Each of these new conceptions seems to change the world under men's eyes, moulding its phenomena into novel forms, presenting the old problems under new aspects, or giving them back to us for a renewed attempt at interpretation. Such ideas were those of the eighteenth century revolutions in France and America. Such an idea, the latest of these plastic thoughts, is what is popularly known as Darwinism, or the doctrine of evolution. This doctrine, traceable at least as far back as to Goethe, remains the newest reorganizing force in the world of thought. Perhaps never before has the whole course of the higher intelligence been so powerfully affected in so short a time. Dating from the appearance of The Origin of Species, we may almost say that philosophy has had to be rewritten since the year 1859. Whatever may be the final place of the doctrine of evolution, it has taken possession of the human mind, and will not be dislodged. Our views of life, of art, of the world, all our conceptions, are modified by this master-thought. "Darwinism" has given to men something which they had not a few years ago, and which, for better or worse, has become a part of themselves—an addition to the very substance of the human mind.

This doctrine gives to criticism, not less than to philosophy and cosmogony, a new method and new conditions. The critic learns to study an immense environment, to view perhaps an entire era, in order that he may speak justly of a sonnet; he may find himself embarrassed by the infinite in describing a patriot. But the reader gains advantage through the arduousness of the critical task. Sounder and better work is thus produced; old superficial methods are discarded for one which gives more trustworthy results. More than this; while the immense extension of the range of criticism lays new burthens upon the critic, it also gives him peculiar opportunities. A new order of originality becomes possible for him. The creative originality of Goethe or of Darwin, the thought in which the mind itself grows, is, of course, the greater and rarer thing, and such a thought is the event of a generation. But a province distinct from this high and inaccessible ground is opened by our greater modern knowledge. New judgments upon all things are demanded; history, art, character, require to be seen again in the light thrown upon them by recent science. Little of history, for instance, stands long unquestioned. But the farther we recede from the ancient eras, the better we are able to understand them. The stream of time hurries us onward, but not so rapidly as the philosophic vision darts back toward its sources. The principles of evolution are telescopic in their bearing upon remote eras; they show us the nebulous beginnings of history. The older the world grows the more we learn about its childhood. Like history, criticism too is to be rewritten in the light of evolution. The whole world is spoil to the modern critic; new work, new results, invite him. See the difference between the histories of Hume and Mommsen, the criticism of Lord Kames and of Sainte-Beuve! It is not now sufficient for the critic to tell us his chance opinions or to make elegant restatements of other people's thoughts. The thought is no longer his who expresses it the best.

—Kerosene is only 5 cents a quart at Lewisburg, Pa.; less than half the cost of any other material for kindling fires, and housekepers are spared the trouble of blowing up their servants.

—The late Dr. Macadam used to tell of a tipsy Scotchman making his way home on a bright Sunday morning, when the good folk were wending their way to the kirk. A little dog pulled the ribbon from the hand of a lady who was leading it, and as it ran away from her she appeared to the first passer-by, asking him to whistle for her poodle. "Woman," he retorted with that solemnity of visage which only a drunken Scotchman can assume, "woman, this is not a day for whistlin'."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

City of Portsmouth.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

Local Matters.

Singular Misfortune.

We regret to learn that one of the most efficient of the police force, Assistant Marshal Shannon, is lying seriously ill at his residence. About three weeks since, a prisoner at the station house asked Mr. Shannon for a bucket, and when the officer opened the door to pass it into his cell the prisoner rushed at him and seized him by the throat, and in self-defence Mr. Shannon struck at him with his right hand, just grazing the man's teeth. Since then the hand has swollen from being poisoned from the teeth, and on Monday, after suffering great torture, the forefinger was amputated by Dr. Potter, who found the bone completely rotten. Mr. Shannon lost the second finger of the left hand at the battle of Antietam, and but a short time ago received a severe cut across the back of the right hand while at work. A host of friends sympathise with him and hope for his speedy return to duty.

Sagamore's Ball.

The fifteenth annual Ball of Sagamore S. F. E. Co., No. 2, which came off on the evening of Monday, the 23d, was a big affair. The managers spared neither trouble nor expense to insure this result; Edmand's Band, of Boston, was engaged to furnish the music; supper at the Rockingham was contracted for, the hall was finely decorated, gorgeous and costly invitations and "complimentaries" were sent out, an efficient corps of floor managers was appointed and furnished with rich and handsome badges, and every precaution was taken to prevent the ingress of undeservable persons to the hall. Their expectations must have been surpassed by the success attending their efforts, for the hall floor was fairly crowded with merry dancers until after 3 o'clock, and expressions of satisfaction were universal. Over ninety couples took part in the opening march, and at least three hundred persons must have been present during the greater part of the night. Yet notwithstanding the large attendance there was at all times sufficient sitting-room in the gallery, no extra tickets for that place having been sold.

Congress Hall never looked better since it was born, than on this occasion, the elaborate decorations by Messrs. D. Webster Barnabee and Charles Merrill, assisted by the company, being in excellent taste. Flags and streamers, delicate festoons of evergreen, engravings, gilded eagles and the national arms, with firemen's caps, axes, hooks, ladders, hose-pipes and belts, and a bust of Washington and several appropriate mottoes, were so arranged that the whole effect was light and pleasing, and the resonance of the hall but little of any impaired, the music and prompting seeming not to be in the least deadened by the extensive decorations.

The Band, (six pieces) gave a fine concert of choice selections before the march, and played until 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, when the ball closed, with a precision and vim which delighted the dancers and kept them from finding out how tired they were getting until it was over. Visiting firemen were present from Lawrence, Salem and Lynn, Mass., and Biddeford, Me., and the handsome badges worn by the managers were presented to the Lawrence firemen at the close of the ball. But few uniforms were visible, most of the firemen being in citizens' dress; good order, sobriety and good-natured jollity were universal, and we neither saw nor heard of any incident to mar the pleasure of the participants.

Mr. Ashela F. Thurston of this city has received the appointment of Justice of Peace.

We are obliged to our careful friend of the Times but are happy to say that neither John nor Elbridge aided us, in obtaining the publication of the laws. Neither knew of it until after it was settled. When we are unable to look out for No. One we shall accept no aid from our neighbors. Don't you wish you were us, George?

[St. Louis Republican.]

Benouil Howard was a match-maker in New York. He once had a manufactory and was prosperous and influential and a millionaire. He was an ardent patriot too, when the country needed all the fire of patriotism it could raise. He recruited a battallion for the defence of the Union in the dark days of the rebellion, and paid most of the expenses of the troop. He supported the families of twelve volunteers during the war and gave pensions to widows and orphans the war made. He also sent artists to the field to take portraits of distinguished officers, and these portraits are said to have cost him the considerable sum of $17,000. They now belong to the art of treasures of the nation. No chronicler states, however that B. Howard ever went to the war himself. But he sent his workmen, and took care of their wives—which was the next best thing for the country and probably the best for him. He stayed at home and continued to manufacture matches, but his business had of late suffered a decline. The one-cent revenue stamp on each box became oppressive. But he still loved his country as well as ever, and thought he would help it along by making the one-cent revenue stamps himself. He accordingly produced a very good imitation and used it with great profit. It was a very little thing to make a fuss about, but somebody, who had probably done nothing for his country, discovered the trifling fraud and pointed it out to the authorities. They called Howard a counterfeiter and tried him as such. His patriotic lawyers rehearsed his military services and artistic triumphs to the court and jury, and the patriotic jury recommended him to the mercy of the court, and the court gave him a retirement of five years in the King's county penitentiary. His match factory has been abolished; his war record expunged. He was like a cow which gave a bucket full of milk, and then kicked it over. It cost the country more to try him as a State criminal than all his former patriotic services were worth. And thus he retired into private life with the stigma of crime and smell of sulphur upon him.

—Society laws are inflexible, even in Milwaukee, where, though a man may possess an octagonal watch, unless he has a mouse-colored horse and a yellow sleigh, he can only skirmish on the outskirts of good society.

The Fancies of the sick.

A diseased imagination is the usual concomitant of a torpid stomach. There is no complaint to which humanity is subject which the dyspeptic does not at different times suppose that he has, or is about to have. The only way to disabuse the sufferer's mind of these fancies, which are realities to him, is to infuse life and vigor into his digestive organs, and the most potent preparation for this purpose is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no affection of the stomach, no irregularity of the liver or disorder of the bowels, consequent upon indigestion, for which it is not an absolute specific. During the twenty-five years that it has been the standard tonic and alterative of America, millions of dyspeptics have recovered their health and the capacity to enjoy life by the sole aid of this wholesome and searching vegetable preparation. As an assimilant and an anti-bilious agent, a remedy for lassitude, debility, nervousness and morbid fancies, there has never been anything comparable to it in any age or country.

$10,000 reward can safely be offered for a more infallible cure for PILES than ANAKESIS. The cures performed by this wonderful remedy are simply miraculous. Lotions, ointments, and internal remedies produce more harm than good, but ANAKESIS is an external remedy a simple suppository, supports the tumors, acts as a soothing poultice and medicine, gives instant relief, and cures absolutely. All doctors prescribe it.—Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

Brick Dust Deposit indicates kidney complaint. Check it at once. Helmbold's Ext. Buchu, the Diuretic par excellence, is a certain specific for all diseases of the urinary organs and sexual system. Dr. Helmbold is the only man who ever utilized and extracted the pre-eminent virtues of Buchu. His preparation is as much superior to the so-called "Buchu" as cream is to skimmed milk. In fact, it never fails. Sold by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Don't hawk, hawk, spit, spit, blow, blow, and disgust everybody with your Catarrh and its offensive odor, when Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will speedily destroy all odor, arrest the discharge and cure you. 710

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for this misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever cause proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution, under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

A common form of Indigestion is oppression after eating, or a depressing dullness of the spirits; with flatulence, or a belching up of wind, and almost always follows Costiveness. Dr. HARRISON'S PERISTALTIC LOZENGES give quick and permanent relief. They are pleasant, portable, do not require increase of dose, never gripe, and for Constipation of the Bowels, Piles, Headache, Dizziness, Irregularities, and other Female Weaknesses, they are incomparable. Trial box, 30 cts. Large box, 60 cts., mailed free for this last price.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up. Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left unused at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1874.

READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A.	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two
SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,

(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)

The Village Blacksmith,

AND

Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,

AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

The Siamese Twins Outdone.

The Albany (Can.) Border Post records the death of the wife of Mr. F. W. Tietyens, who has recently given birth to twins. The extraordinary complication attending the birth caused great exhaustion, from which deceased never rallied. The infants, who are full grown, and in every respect perfect, are joined together from about an inch below the armpit to the upper edge of the hip bone, and about four inches in width; with this exception, the infants (both females) are well proportioned, and are in every respect, each in itself, perfect. The case is one which will doubtless possess many features of interest to the medical profession, no record being known of any case so extraordinary—the union of the infants being more complete and of much greater extent than that existing between the celebrated Siamese twins.

—A young man who was married in Detroit six months ago has joined in the discussion of the question of family economy, but his little contribution is far from satisfactory. "I do not," he says, "understand how it is. I used to figure it out, as I sat with my arm round her waist on Sunday nights, and all it would then cost to live would be $2.75 a week, and now I spend $15, and am hungry half the time."

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are a modern stove polish, far better than any other in existence. Are better because they give a finer gloss than any other polish.

Yield a brilliant silvery sheen, with less than half the labor required when other polishes are used.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are a neat and cleanly article, making to dirt or dust when used. Can be used even in the parlor without the trouble of removing furniture or carpets.

Has no disagreeable sulphurous or strong acid smell when prepared for use, but are pleasant and harmless.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are put up in neat style and in a form convenient for use than any other polish. In each box are 12 cakes, which will last a family a year, thus all waste is saved.

Are the cheapest polish in the market, because one box at 10 cents will polish as much surface as 25 cents' worth of the old polish.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Have just taken the 1st premium at the Indianapolis Exposition, in competition with several of the best of old stove polishes.

BUY CRUMBS OF COMFORT of your storekeeper, if he has them, or will procure them for you; if not, send us one dollar, your name, and the name of your nearest express station, and we will send you ten boxes, and samples of Bartlett's Blacking and Pearl Blueing, free of cost.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT can be had of all Wholesale Grocers and Dealers in the United States, and Retail Dealers will find them the most profitable, from the fact that they are the fastest selling article of the kind in the market.

SPLENDID AND UNPARALLELED TRIUMPHS

—OF THE—

WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine Co.,

NEW YORK.

OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,

—AT THE—

WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.

1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for the Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being for progress made since the Paris Exposition of 1867, at which the only Gold Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior metal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle Industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only award of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.

(GROUP 15, SEC. 4, 3.)

"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 80,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."

"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly pearl stitch."

"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

FURTHER DISTINGUISHED HONORS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15, 1873.

THE GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR

—OF THE—

AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK,

Was unanimously recommended by the judges of Sewing Machines for

WHEELER & WILSON'S

NEW NO. 6 SEWING MACHINE,

of being "a decided improvement over all other machines in the market," and which "must revolutionize certain branches of industry, especially in Shoe and Harness Manufacturing."

BALTIMORE, Md., October 31, 1873.

"The MARYLAND INSTITUTE has awarded WHEELER & WILSON the GOLD MEDAL for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine. Other Sewing Machines received nothing."

SAVANNAH, November 4, 1873.

"At the GEORGIA STATE FAIR, a SILVER MEDAL, the highest and only premium for Leather Stitching, was awarded to WHEELER & WILSON for samples done on their New No. 6 Sewing Machines."

A Source of Great Anxiety.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. N. H. TILDEN,
Ins. and Real Estate Agt., 49 Sears Building, Boston, Mass., June 5, 1872.

MOTHERS, READ THIS!

A Great Blessing!

WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.

Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.

My little girl is two and a half years old; and during that time I have not had two consecutive nights' rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and trouble for some days.

I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there; and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very late in the morning; besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I often say, the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar a drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing. MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,
175 Tudor street.

South Boston, July 10, 1871.

Circulation of the Blood.

The circulation of the blood is the life of the body, and its stoppage is death. We are healthy when the blood circulates freely; any interruption preventing its free course is the commencement of disease. "Blood is the life of the flesh." Can we expect to enjoy good health when bad or corrupt humors circulate with the blood, causing pain and disease; and these humors being deposited through the entire body, produce pimples, eruptions, ulcers, indigestion, costiveness, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and numerous other complaints? No disease can lie in the body without first being generated in the blood; and no disease can possibly be in the body if the blood is pure. Herein lies the importance to know what medicine will purify and renovate the blood, eradicate the disease, renew vitality, mentally and physically, and instil fresh vigor into all the vital functions of the body. This medicine is the VEGETINE, the great blood purifier.

It exends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with the foundation; correcting diseased action, and restoring vital power, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted task.

VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 40 tp3 nrm.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleans the lungs, allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of making their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years. Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL
CATARRH REMEDY.
To Messrs. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians, had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Daily Chronicle.

Owen Brown's Escape from Harper's Ferry.

In the March number of the Atlantic Monthly there is a very interesting account by the late Ralph Keeler of Owen Brown's escape from Harper's Ferry, written by Mr. Keeler as it was narrated to him by Brown himself, at the house of the latter on Put-in-Bay Island, Lake Erie. It is one of the most graphic and marvellous stories of actual adventure ever written. The following incident happened after the party had been wandering three weeks in the woods and mountains, afraid to show themselves. They felt more courage at Bellefonte, because they knew that there were many Quakers living there:

We walked on six or seven miles upon the main road toward Bellefonte, and then camped away from the highway, near an old farm-house, occupied only by a couple of horses. We stayed there till about dark the next night, and starting upon the public road again; we had gone hardly a mile when we saw a nice little farm-house on our left, a short distance from the road. The light of the blaze in the old-fashioned fireplace came out through the curtainless window with so cheery an invitation to us, that we could not go by. We knocked at the door and obtained permission of the honest, simple-minded farmer to stay all night. The stout Pennsylvanian woman, the farmer's wife, when we were seated, gave the logs in the fireplace a vigorous punch, which sent the sparks up the chimney in the glad way you have seen them, I suppose, before now; and it was not long till the fumes of frying flap-jacks went up after them. If she had not been so good-natured, her suspicions might have been aroused by the ravenous appetites with which we devoured what she put before us, when she bade us be seated at supper. Towards the close of that meal, the farmer in a casual sort of way mentioned Harper's Ferry, and then we asked him for news. We had already in some indirect manner learned from our host that it was the 4th of November.

Thus we had been about three weeks in our homeless wanderings, without positive knowledge of the fate of our comrades,—it seemed at least, six weeks; and I can never get over a queer impression that it was longer than it really was. We told our host that we had heard something about the fight at Harper's Ferry, but not all the particulars. This surprised him greatly, for he said the country had not been so excited about anything in twenty years. He added that his weekly newspaper had just come that afternoon, and we could read it. Perhaps you can have an idea how painful was the suspense, waiting till we could decently rise from the table and lay hands upon that paper. Tidd's stoicism broke down first; he arose and caught up the paper and began reading aloud. The first thing that caught his eye was the account of Cook's capture. You can imagine how eagerly Coppoc and I listened to the first we had heard of Cook since he had left us in the mountains. Our host interrupted the reading to assure me that one son of old Smith, who had proved to be old Brown of Kansas, had escaped with Cook and was supposed to be still at large somewhere. Old man Brown was not dead, as we had heard. No, he was just severely wounded; it was not certain yet whether he would live to be hanged, for he had been tried and found guilty. To me, who had so long thought my father dead, this somehow had the effect of good news.

In the meantime, Tidd had gone on, silently devouring the paper. I could see that he was much moved by what he read. He was probably reading how his friend Stevens was shot down while going on an errand of mercy and bearing a flag of truce. Coppoc sat gazing thoughtfully into the blaze of the great fire-place, and I happened to be looking at him when our host went on to say that the very latest news was that the man Coppoc had been tried, too, and found guilty. That was his brother Edwin, and the ruddy glare of the fire did not paint out the deathly white of our poor Coppoc's face. He did not speak, but a little while after, he stealthily brushed away a tear from one of his cheeks, and sighed in a half-choked way.

Somehow my two brothers, Watson and Oliver, had not been mentioned. It might have been a presentiment—I don't know what it was—I did not have the heart to ask about them. After a few moments of silence, Tidd handed the newspaper to me. I began reading aloud for Coppoc's benefit. I saw my own name in large letters somewhere near the middle of the page, and I began on that. Before I was fully aware of what I was doing, I was half-way through a minute description of myself. Then I dared not stop. Finishing that paragraph with the extravagant rewards offered for my capture, I turned and read from the beginning the account of the fight—how the little band had taken the town and held it all day against the States of Virginia and Maryland.

But when I came to read the well-known passage from Governor Wise's speech: "And Colonel Washington said that he—Brown—was the coolest man he ever saw in defying death and danger. With one son dead by his side, and another shot through, he felt the pulse of his dying son with one hand and held his rifle with the other and commanded his men with the utmost composure, encouraging them to be firm and sell their lives as dearly as possible"—well, that told me too much; my voice trembled so that I passed the paper to Coppoc. He read how our relative, Thompson, was butchered when a prisoner, and how my brother Watson was shot while carrying a flag of truce, and though mortally wounded, fought till the gun fell from his hands. The farmer's wife, detecting the tremor in my voice,—with the quick sympathy that women have,—paused in her domestic work until the reading was over, though as she said, she had read it all before. The 4th of November is my birthday, and certainly that was the most memorable one of my life. We sat by the fire and talked of the dead and wounded as long as we dared, and then went to bed.

The Temperance War.

The temperance movement continues to spread on Long Island. Some of the liquor saloons have been closed in Astoria, Hunter's Point, Dutchkills and Glen Cove. Temperance pledges are circulating on the Long Island Railroad trains. The women of Brooklyn have arranged for a mass meeting and all the pastors of the city have been invited to participate. Among the converts to the new temperance movement is Hon. Rufus L. Andrews, a prominent lawyer and former surveyor of New York under President Lincoln. He was well known to New England officers and soldiers by his friendly acts to them during the war.

It is reported that the lady crusaders are to wait upon the Union club to request the closing of the bar, and W. R. Travers and Lawrence Jerome have been designated as a committee to receive them. The leaders of the movement will discourage praying and singing in or in front of liquor-saloons, which they fear would lead to riotous demonstrations; but instead will quietly circulate a pledge against the use, sale or manufacture of any intoxicating drinks, taking this especially to saloon-keepers and the men who lease their buildings for the sale of liquor. No visits will be made to fashionable club-houses, but the officers will be met elsewhere and urged to banish liquor from their establishments.

A Pittsburg, Pa., dispatch states that the Catholic Bishop Dommencer classes the ladies who pray against liquor saloons as a mob, and says the women do wrong. The liquor dealers of Pittsburg are to claim protection from the ladies by calling on the police.

Later reports concerning the famine in India show its extent to be very wide and including a population of 26,000,000, while two other districts, with a population of 14,000,000 are seriously threatened.

It is now probable that all the fishermen on the floating ice in Saginaw bay will reach land in safety. Two hundred reached shore Monday night. The others who were on another field have been driven to the west shore by the change of the wind, so they probably can land easily. The report that two were drowned is not true.

A quarrel between the inhabitants of two towns in Vera Cruz resulted in a fight in which seventeen persons were killed. In revenge the suffering faction went to the other town and began an indiscriminate massacre of men, women and children, inflicting injuries of the most wanton and cruel character. A neighboring town has sent a detachment of military to put an end to the atrocities.

The Boston school committee has voted not to invite the lady members to return to their seats, 40 to 44. A two-thirds vote was necessary.

Steve Lowery, the last survivor of the notorious band of Robeson county, N. C., robbers, was instantly killed in the upper part of Robeson county, by three citizens named Patterson, Sutton and Holcomb. He was tuning a banjo, preparatory to playing for some wagoners, when three shots were fired at him, taking effect in the head.

For three days in succession there were fatal accidents on the Maine Central Railroad, three men losing their lives by being run over by the cars. No blame is attached to the corporation or any of its employes; the fault lies at the doors of the poor unfortunates who have lost their lives by reason of their own carelessness.

There is a bill before Congress providing that first clerks of commandants of navy-yards shall have the rank and pay ($2000) of lieutenants in the navy; and that second clerks shall have no rank, but will have an increase of salary from $1200 to $1600 per annum. Can any one give any reason why any such innovation is necessary?

The valuation of real estate in Dunbarton is $348,846, and its taxes only $3301; it has $1000 at interest, while the town farm has been sold because nobody is poor enough to live on it. The savings bank has deposits of over $100,000.

It is stated that not a single official who has had anything to do with Evans, the murderer, from the time of his arrest up to his execution, believes that his confession was full or accurate, but, on the contrary, they are confident he has carried away with him into eternity secrets more terrible than any he disclosed.

Some time ago Hugh Colebrook of Rochester left home with a quantity of goods to sell. Nothing has since been heard from him; but a stranger appeared at the house, the other day, and delivered to Mrs. Colebrook a bundle, which upon subsequent investigation proved to contain her husband's goods and clothes. What has become of the owner and wearer of the clothes is now the question.

Life on a Locomotive.

[N. Y. Graphic.]

It is quite a popular idea that because a man pursues a dangerous occupation he must grow so used to the presence of death as not only to lose fear of it, but eventually to trifle with it. Locomotive engineers, therefore, are popularly supposed to be, without exception, a set of reckless, foolhardy, death-defying persons, who have decided upon a date for smashing their trains, and are enjoying life meanwhile. Those few who are acquainted with the men in question are aware how fallacious this inference is. Their avocation is attended with unusual danger, and they gradually lose their fear of it; but it is safe to say that nine out of ten among them are married men with families to care for and to love; and this responsibility, even if they thought nothing of the passengers in their charge, would suffice to make them watchful, diligent and careful. Carelessness on their part is almost inevitably attended with disgrace and loss of employment, and in case of accidents they rarely escape injury; so that, as they are not mere mechanical figures, it is reasonable to suppose that they are aware of the risks they run in the disregard of caution and care. Wm. Guild, the engineer of the Shore Line train which met with the Richmond switch disaster in Rhode Island last spring, showed his affection for his family in the salute which he whistled as his engine dashed past his home every day. One dark night passed, and the loving wife listened in vain for her husband's greeting. He was dead! The next morning they removed his stiffened hand from the lever of the engine, and carried him from his post, where he had remained even after death overtook him. Thus he refuted the general imputation of carelessness upon the profession, for he was neither reckless nor untrustworthy. In the majority of serious railway disasters the engineers have been either fatally injured or killed outright; therefore a few incidents where they have escaped would not be inappropriate.

In the spring of 1870, when Engineer Mestayer was running the Philadelphia express, he was occasionally detained at Trenton, and was obliged to make up lost time on the latter end of his trip. His train made no stops between Trenton and Camden, and such freight or accommodation trains as might be en route in either direction were switched into turnouts, leaving supreme right of way for the express. One evening, when Mestayer's train had been delayed longer than usual, the engineer opened the throttle-valve, and left Trenton at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour. A few miles further on there was a long switch, and as his train approached it Mestayer saw that the signals were "all right," and that a freight train bound for New York, was waiting on the switch for him to pass. When within a few rods of the switch the watchful engineer saw that it was open, although the signal-light notified him to keep on. He seized his lever and used every effort to bring the train to a stop, but the distance was too short. The train left the main track and dashed down the siding to the "freight." At the last moment Mestayer sprang from his cab, and striking on his feet, witnessed the collision. The damage was dreadful. Both trains were telescoped and several lives were lost—among them the engineer of the freight train and the firemen of both engines. Mestayer's assistant was scalded and burnt to a crisp; and had not the engineer jumped when he did his fate would doubtless have been the same.

The engineers of both colliding trains in a more recent disaster on the New York and Oswego Midland Railway escaped death in a similar manner. Both their firemen were killed.

On railways that intersect populous districts it is not an infrequent occurrence for an engineer to run down and kill deaf, blind, or drunken persons who are walking on the track. He sounds his whistle and expects them to leave the track. Persons so frequently step aside at the very last moment that until that moment arrives the engineer gives himself no uneasiness. A pretty scene that must have been on the Pennsylvania Central, when on nearing Harrisburg the engineer of an express train discovered a little girl at play on the track ahead of him. Her back was toward him, but he saw the golden curls, the little bare arms, and almost imagined he heard the joyous prattle of the unsuspecting child as the flying engine approached the cross-tie where she sat. Perhaps he thought of just such another child at home, for he sprang from his cab—it was too late to stop the train—and leaning over the "pilot" reached out and caught the little girl just as she raised her head and saw her danger. Then the mother, who had seen the brave act, rushed from her house and took the child from his arms when the train was brought to a stop.

Last summer, the engine run by William Baird, of the lightning express on the Hudson River Railroad, struck a drunken man who was sitting on the trestle-bridge at Plum Point, and killed him instantly. At the inquest, the day after, the engineer told the writer that exactly a year before on that very day he had "struck his first man" somewhere just above Yonkers. Said he: "I was running the 'lightning' then, and was making lively time past Yonkers, when I saw a young fellow with a cane in his hand walking on the down track. Just as I got within a hundred feet of him, he deliberately walked over to my track. I whistled and jerked back my lever. The light was full in his face, and when he heard my whistle I saw an expression of horror on his face, for he was blind and had thought I was coming on the down track. He jumped, but it was too late; and I saw him throw up his hands—I even heard him shriek—as the pilot struck him. I sat up that night and thought about that poor fellow—no use trying to sleep with that on my mind. The next day I saw him laid out in the depot, all torn and mangled, but his face wasn't touched at all, and after I took one look at him I saw that face night and day for six months every minute I was on my engine. I shut my eyes when I passed the place where I struck him. I managed to get another engine; I did everything; but all the time, especially at night, in the glare of my head-light I saw that pale, thin, blind face; I saw the hands thrown up, and I heard the poor fellow scream when the 'pilot' seemed to strike him."

David Van Buskirk, who is now the Master Mechanic of the New York, Boston and Montreal Railway, tells of an interesting incident that occurred while he was an engineer on a Western railroad. He had collided with a passenger train, through mismanagement on the part of the engineer of the passenger train, and one or two coaches were smashed and his own engine was injured to a great extent. He feared the displeasure of his superintendent, and was brooding over his misfortune as he neared the end of his trip, when a singular opportunity to retrieve his reputation presented itself. The "round-house" in Winona, Minn., whither he was bound, took fire in the roof, and when Van Buskirk arrived with his engine he found that the efforts which had been exerted toward quenching the flames had been of but little avail, and the fire bade fair to burn down the building and destroy a number of new engines which were nearly ready for service. Without a second thought Van Buskirk ran his engine into the burning house, and, pulling down the escape valve with all his strength, let the steam, at one hundred pounds pressure, escape in a rushing, screaming volume, whose force carried it up to the burning roof. The effect was instantaneous and wonderful, for in less than five minutes the fire was extinguished. Van Buskirk was carried out of his cab in an almost suffocated condition, but he had the satisfaction of gaining not only approval but immediate promotion.

An engineer on the Hudson River Railroad told the writer of a narrow escape he experienced only a short time ago. After twenty-four hours' continuous service, he was ordered out with a "through freight" from this city to Albany. He protested against the assignment, as both the fireman and himself had already done double duty and were in danger of falling asleep. The foreman of the yard, however, had no one else to send, and insisted that the engineer should run the train. So he started. After a run of two hours he yielded to his overpowering exhaustion and—as his fireman had done some moments before—fell asleep! He knew no more until awakened by the conductor, who had come forward to discover what had caused the stoppage of the train, and had found both men curled up and asleep on either side of the cab. The throttle was wide open, the reverse lever was "notched down" well forward, but the steam-gauge registered only 80 pounds pressure—some pounds less than was necessary to haul the heavy train. The engineer was not awakened a minute too soon, for it was then half-past one A.M., and at two o'clock they were due at Poughkeepsie switch to make way for the express which left this city at eleven o'clock and overtook the freight at Poughkeepsie. The blower was put on, and in five minutes the gauge showed a pressure of ninety pounds, and the train covered the eight miles between it and Poughkeepsie in about two-thirds of the time that is usually consumed. Fortunately, the conductor was a staunch friend of the engineer's, and that terribly dangerous nap remained a secret as far as the management was concerned.

are the most concentrated purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

THE PUBLIC ATTENTION is called to the following provisions of the City Ordinances relative to the vaults and privies:

"The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth.

And owners and occupiers of buildings having such vaults and privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days after the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified."

Citizens desiring to have their vaults cleaned may send their names to HAVEN L. SCOTT, Superintendent of the City Farm, and the city teams will do the work for two dollars per load. Per Order.

Local Matters.

The Masquerade.

The subscription course of social assemblies at Congress Hall closed on Tuesday evening with a masquerade. Nearly all the members of the club were present, and there were many more lady lookers-on than usual; and the party went in for a good time, and had it. Where all the masqueraders are so well known to each other as in this case it is difficult to conceal identity, but some of the disguises were impenetrable. One gentleman appeared as a gin-tank—at least the structure was labelled "gin," though it looked more like a mammoth kerosene can than anything else; this was all right, however, "gin" and "kerosene" being synonymous, nowadays. No one could guess who the gin-tank was, as of course only strictly temperate people attended this course of dances. A crow stalked about, unknown to his intimate friends until he unmasked; and many cases of mistaken identity resulted from a mutual exchange of disguises between parties who had been once found out. Many of the ladies found their masks no concealment, their style of dancing or some trifling personal peculiarity at once telling who they were; but others remained unknown until unmasking. One gentleman—a popular "boss" on the navy yard—was very much exercised in his mind because he could not find his wife among the merry throng, and recklessly went the length of offering a quarter of a dollar (in the shape of a note at ninety days) for her discovery; and another gentlemen, who had been industriously whispering pretty things to a fair masquerader all the evening, under the impression that she was his bright particular star, was horrified to find when the masks were removed that he had been saying the aforesaid pretty things to another man's wife. Among the characters assumed were Uncle Sam, a clown, a negro and negress, the 15th Amendment, Indian girls, photography, friars, nuns and many others. The management of the assemblies this season, by Messrs. Cunningham, Locke and Page, has been excellent, and the course has been the source of a great deal of social enjoyment to the subscribers, who are sorry there are not one or two more dances to come off yet.

Laconics.

Rev. W. H. Cudworth of Boston will lecture in the town hall, Rye, next Monday evening, for the benefit of the Christian society. Subject: "Up Hill and Down."

The friends of Boatswain William Black, U. S. N., formerly of Portsmouth, celebrated the 84th anniversary of his birthday on the 23d inst., by a family gathering at his residence in Melrose, Mass., representing four generations. The Boatswain gave a description of the navy as it was years ago, feeling quite patriotic over the celebration of Washington's birthday. We are glad to learn that Mr. Black, who has been quite feeble this winter, is improving in health.

The rooms of the Young People's Union, under the auspices of the liberal religious societies in Portsmouth, are more fully attended this winter than in any previous season.

There is one branch of business in Portsmouth which is a monopoly. Our esteemed friend, Samuel W. Moses, Esq., has for many years bolstered up the rear portion of the North church late in the winter season with bean poles cut from neighboring towns. Mr. Moses says he is now ready to supply all orders. It usually takes 250 dozen to satisfy the bean raisers hereabouts.

Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett lectured at Goffstown recently and had in his audience Hon. David Steele, the only surviving member of the N. H. Senate of 1828, of which Mr. Hackett was clerk, and Charles Stinson, Esq., of Dunbarton, who was a school mate with Mr. Hackett at Gilmanton Academy when the great September gale in 1815 occurred.

The proposition to grant special privileges to the country press is neither just nor wise. Mr. Mellish of New York has introduced a bill which is likely to give better satisfaction than the restoration of any privilege. The bill provides that postage on printed matter shall be but a half cent for two ounces, and also for a reduction of letter postage to two cents per ounce.

A number of prominent Sons of Portsmouth resident in Boston have tendered a complimentary banquet to Theodore S. Harris, Esq., for his exertions in behalf of the famous Reunion of last year.

The bill which has been pending in the Maine legislature, to compel the Maine Central Railroad to allow the Boston & Maine to connect with the former at Portland, has been defeated in the House,—a victory for the Eastern Railroad.

A friend informs us that at Salisbury Point are three clergymen named Wright. One of them, who lives in the upper part of the town, is called "upWright;" a second, who lives in the lower part, is called "downWright;" and the third, whose residence is near a mill, is known as "millWright." With such a ministerial force the Salisbury Pointers should be all right in the end.

The Transit of Venus.

The passage of the planet Venus over the sun's disc, as seen from the Earth, which will occur on the 8th of December, 1874, is an event the expectancy of which has, for some time, almost monopolized the interest of astronomers, and has called forth preparations for its due observation in every civilized country. The event is, indeed, not one accompanied by surprising phenomena that would attract the attention of the casual beholder, like those attending a solar eclipse. A round black dot, about three-eighths of an inch in diameter to the eyes of those to whom the Sun appears to have a diameter of twelve inches, moving across the disc near its northern edge in about four hours, is the appearance which would present itself to the observer viewing the Sun through a black glass. Nor can the astronomer, armed with the most powerful appliances of science, do more than accurately map the path of the planet, and note the exact time of its various positions. Viewed from different points on the Earth, however, the planet will be seen to appear on the Sun at different times, and to describe different paths; and from the differences of the paths so mapped may be deduced, by mathematical inference, the distance of the Earth from the Sun, which is our fundamental unit of measure for all celestial spaces.

To ascertain this distance with the greatest attainable degree of precision has long been considered the grandest problem of the astronomer. We have, indeed, since Kepler, known the relative distances of the bodies of our planetary system by virtue of the law discovered by Kepler and demonstrated by Newton from the general law of gravitation, that "the cubes of the mean distances are as the squares of the times of revolution;" and since the times of revolution can be observed with great exactness, the ratios of the mean distances follow with equal precision. But measuring a distance means comparing it with some magnitude familiar to our perception. It is only when we can express the planetary distances in miles, or, as it were, measure them with the yard-stick, that we can be said to know them. The basis of any such measurement must necessarily be the magnitude and figure of the Earth, which have now been determined by geodesic operations to a degree of exactitude more than sufficient for the purpose in hand. We may state that the distance between any two points on the Earth's surface lying six thousand miles apart, ascertained in latitude and longitude, can be assigned with certainty to within the tenth part of a mile; and this uncertainty is mainly due to irregularities in the Earth's density affecting the direction of the force of gravity, to which geographical positions are necessarily referred, since by it the horizon or level of each place is determined. Lest the reader think too meanly of the achievements of modern geodesy, we will stop to tell him that the Earth's polar diameter of about eight thousand miles is certainly known to within its five hundred thousandth part, or about thirty yards.

—Douglas county, Oregon, can boast of a lady who has been married nine times, has eight husbands living, and is living with none of them. More than this, she has a daughter who is now 23 years of age and living with her third husband.

—Some of the Western papers are calling the women's temperance movement pretty hard names. In St. Louis it is known as the whiskeyzootic, and in Chicago as the epigunaloonatic. Both are good of their kind, but unfortunately the kind is bad.

—A medical correspondent of an English journal says that all cases of rheumatism and gout can be cured by free use of asparagus, the active principle of the plant having the effect of neutralizing the lithic acid in the system, which is the cause of all inflammatory rheumatic ailments. Hail the millennium of physic when rheumatics shall be cured by asparagus, headaches by celery, and catarrhs by quail and toast!

Inspired Being, showing eggshell:—"Whence, oh, whence, ladies, whence, oh, whence came the marvellous instinct that prompted the minute being originally contained in this fragile shell to burst the calcareous envelope that secluded it from the glories of the outward world?" Admiring Ladies:—"Whence, oh, whence, indeed, Mr. Honeycomb?" Master Tommy: "Perhaps the little beggar was afraid he'd be boiled!"

SMITH'S ACADEMY
—AND—
Commercial College
FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 31 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as focal inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT
FOR 1874.
READ AND THINK.

We have received to-day a large lot of FLOUR in Barrels and Half-Barrels, which we propose to sell at

PRICES THAT CAN'T BE BEAT.

PRIDE OF THE WEST	$10.75
RED JACKET	12.00
GENUINE	9.25
A	10.00
LILY OF THE VALLEY	10.50

These prices are less than the same brands or quality can be bought in this State, and we guarantee everything as we say, or you can return it at our expense.

With EVERY BARREL of Flour so sold, we shall give you

Your Choice of Two
SPLENDID STEEL ENGRAVINGS,
(Samples of which can be seen at our store,)
The Village Blacksmith,
AND
Signing the Compact in the Cabin of the Mayflower,
AS A PREMIUM PRESENT!

These Engravings are elegant again, and worthy a place in any house.

Now, don't let anybody make you believe that we can't do this and give you a GOOD article of FLOUR at the same price they can; because if you do, you will be deceived. We bought these pictures in New York at such prices that we can afford to do it.

Why? 1st, because it so increases our sales that even with a small profit on the Flour, we can make day wages. 2d, because when people come to buy Flour they see the prices of other goods and buy them. 3d, because everybody knows we always do just what we advertise to do.

NOW TRY US. All we ask is for you to call, see and be convinced.

Temperance.

Mr. Wasser eating pie in the halt minute of the stop for "refreshments," was a memorable spectacle. He brought to the work great resolution, and he grappled with the hugest cantles of the difficulty. Having seized a large pie in both hands, he turned toward me silently—there was no time for speech, and he bolted the food. It died of galloping consumption. And more of it followed. Then, puffing, so to speak, from the fray, he turned with large eyes and still distended cheeks toward the coffee. I believe they still call it coffee in the railroad stations. He pushed between two other warriors closely engaged with pie, who tried to impale him with their elbows, but could only spare time to scowl without attempting to speak. He seized a cup, the liquid slopping over into the saucer in a cold puddle, and Mr. Wasser gulped it down, his eyes regarding me solemnly over the rim of the cup. The train puffed and we ran and jumped upon the platform, where he stopped and offered me an enormous cigar. I declined his courtesy, and he hastily smoked with the greedy ferocity of a toper over his glass. "I was so afraid," he said, as the swift ceremony ended, "that I should not have a bite and a cigar before my lecture, which is to be at the very next town." "What is your subject?" I asked. Temperance," said he, smiling, "I always preach temperance." As I sat silently musing I wondered if he practiced it.

—Queer notions of prayer some people have. At a meeting in the northern part of Maine, the pastor remarked that if any present had relatives or friends in distant lands, prayer would be offered in their behalf. Then uprose a simple looking individual and said: "I would like you to pray for my brother. He went away two weeks ago, and I haven't heard from him since. I don't know just where he is, but you needn't pray below Bangor."

CRUMBS OF COMFORT'

Are a modern stove polish, far better than any other in existence. Are better because they give a finer gloss than any other polish.

Yield a brilliant silvery sheen, with less than half the labor required when other polishes are used.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are a neat and cleanly article, making no dirt or dust when used. Can be used even in the parlor without the trouble of removing furniture or carpets.

Has no disagreeable sulphurous or strong acid smell when prepared for use, but are pleasant and harmless.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Are put up in neat style and in a form more convenient for use than any other polish. In each box are 12 sticks, which is sufficient for any stove. By this all waste is saved.

Are the cheapest polish in the market, because one box at 10 cents will polish as much surface as 25 cents' worth of the old polish.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT

Have just taken the 1st premium at the Indianapolis Exposition, in competition with all other stove polishes.

BUT CRUMBS OF COMFORT of your storekeeper, if he has them, or will procure them for you; if not, send us one dollar, your name, and the name of your nearest express station, and we will send you ten boxes, and samples of Bartlett's Blacking and Pearl Blacking, free of cost.

CRUMBS OF COMFORT can be had of all Wholesale Grocers and Dealers in the United States, and Retail Dealers will find them the most profitable, from the fact that they are the fastest selling article of the kind in the market.

SPLENDID AND UNPARALLELED TRIUMPHS

—OF THE—

WHEELER & WILSON Sewing Machine Co.,

NEW YORK.

OVER EIGHTY-ONE COMPETITORS,

—AT THE—

WORLD'S EXPOSITION, VIENNA, 1873, &c.

1. The Knight's Cross of the Imperial Order of "Francis Joseph," conferred by his Apostolic Majesty the Emperor of Austria, upon the Honorable Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company, as the founder and builder of Sewing Machine industry.
2. The Grand Diploma of Honor, recommended by the International Jury for this Sewing Machine Company only, for their important contributions to the material and social welfare of mankind.
3. The Grand Medal for Progress, awarded for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine, being the progress made since the Paris Exposition of 1867, at which the only Gold Medal for Sewing Machines was awarded to this Company. Hence the Vienna awarded marks Progress not from a low, level, or inferior metal, but from a Gold Medal, the highest award made at Paris.
4. The Grand Medal for Merit, for the development of Needle Industry and excellence and superiority of manufactured samples exhibited.
5. A Grand Medal for Merit, for excellence and superiority of Cabinet work, the only work of the kind in this section.
6. Medals for several Co-operators, of the Wheeler & Wilson Company, for superior ability.
7. The Official Report, published by the General Direction of the Vienna Exposition, signalizes the supremacy of the Wheeler & Wilson Company for quantity and quality of manufacture, and position in the Sewing Machine business, as follows:

OFFICIAL REPORT, VIENNA EXPOSITION SEWING MACHINES, &c.
(GROUP 15, SEC. 2, p.)

"The greatest Sewing Machine Manufactory in the world is that of Wheeler and Wilson, New York, which alone has brought already over 900,000 of their Sewing Machines into practical use. The complete production of the parts by machinery is so regulated that each complete machine may be used as a sample for exhibition. This firm produces 600 well adjusted machines daily."

"The latest production of this firm, and which is the wonder of the Vienna Exposition, is their new No. 6 Sewing Machine. This universal machine sews the heaviest leather harness and the finest gauzes with a truly pearl stitch."

"Wheeler & Wilson have received the highest prizes at all World's Expositions, and at the Vienna Exposition were extraordinarily distinguished."

FURTHER DISTINGUISHED HONORS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15, 1873.

THE GRAND MEDAL OF HONOR
—OF THE—
AMERICAN INSTITUTE, NEW YORK,

Was unanimously recommended by the judges of Sewing Machines for

WHEELER & WILSON'S
NEW NO. 6 SEWING MACHINE,

of being "a decided improvement over all other machines in the market," and which "must revolutionize certain branches of industry, especially in Shoe and Harness Manufacturing."

BALTIMORE, Md., October 31, 1873.

"The MARYLAND INSTITUTE has awarded WHEELER & WILSON the GOLD MEDAL for their New No. 6 Sewing Machine. Other Sewing Machines received nothing."

SAVANNAH, November 4, 1873.

"At the GEORGIA STATE FAIR, a SILVER MEDAL, the highest and only premium for Leather Stitching, was awarded to WHEELER & WILSON for samples done on their New No. 6 Sewing Machine."

A Source of Great Anxiety.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. A. H. TILDEN,
Ins. and Real Estate Agt., 49 Sears Building.
Boston, Mass., June 5, 1872.

MOTHERS, READ THIS!

A Great Blessing!

WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.

Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.

My little girl is two and a half years old; and during that time I have not had two consecutive nights-rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and trouble for poor dear child.

I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there; and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very late in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I often say, the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar's drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing. MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,
175 Tudor street.
South Boston, July 10, 1871.

Circulation of the Blood.

The circulation of the blood is the life of the body, and its stoppage is death. We are healthy when the blood circulates freely; any interruption preventing its free course is the commencement of disease. "Blood is the life of the flesh." Can we expect to enjoy good health when bad or corrupt humors circulate with the blood, causing pain and disease; and these humors being deposited through the entire body, produce pimples, eruptions, ulcers, indigestion, costiveness, headache, scurvicis, rheumatism, and numerous other complaints? No disease can be in the body without there being generated in the blood; and no disease can possibly be in the body if the blood is pure. As this of great importance to know what medicine will purify and renovate the blood, eradicate the disease, renew vitality, mentally and physically, and instil fresh vigor into all the vital functions of the body. This medicine is the VEGETINE, i.e. great blood purifier.

It extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with its foundation; correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and pu ification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted task.

VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is recommended to take; every child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 6ot5p nrm.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION
CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as improved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL
CATARRH REMEDY.
To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hennikor, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh for many years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, giving me a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Management of Country Papers.

MR. Karl Kase, in the Dollar Magazine, thus briefly puts an undeniable though melancholy fact:

"There is no field in which steady toil and untiring application are so apt to be unappreciated; in which rare accomplishments pass with such little recognition; in which personal integrity and honor are so likely to be impeached, and in which success is so sure to be attended with regrets and tears, as that wherein toils the young aspirant to journalistic and literary fame."

In many country papers which have received our attention recently, we have seen the same idea reproduced, and their editors have applied to themselves what Mr. Kase certainly could not have intended for them. The expression quoted above has no bearing whatever upon the country editor. The explanation of his failure lies in the management of his paper; not in the inability of the community to appreciate a good thing; the editor must blame himself, not the public. No man has more time to arrange a paper, but no man spends so little energy upon the general make-up, as this very individual who complains so much of his circulation. The country editor, above all others, has at hand those facilities requisite for rendering a newspaper just what it should be, consistent and harmonious in all its parts, every department dependent upon every other, so that at the end it is as perfect, complete, and well balanced as a poem. The country paper is seldom so. The country editor seems to think his work is done, when his columns are filled no matter how nor with what; he does not insert an item where it really belongs, for with him every stickful belongs just wherever it will fit, and just where it can be applied with the least possible trouble. No man is better posted than the country farmer, who takes this paper; he is what you may call a veteran reader; and a veteran reader hates mixed news as much as a veteran toper hates mixed drinks. The country editor has an important position, and bears the same relation to the community as the minister and doctor. Apart from his obligations, he has a mission as elevated, and noble, as the man of God, or the diciple of science. During the week news comes to him from all parts of the world; news which cost him little to secure. Exchanges throng in upon him from all quarters. It is his duty to read, study, arrange and revise this news every day; to consult the bearing of each day's news upon the other, and, at the end of the week, to reproduce the whole, in the most concise, abridged and entertaining form possible, until upon one side of his paper lies in miniature the entire world, its aims, its doubts, its trials and its conquests. To do this well, he must seldom crib or clip. In our management of a country paper we never made a dollar until we had abandoned the scissors altogether.

To re-write everything that pleases you in your exchanges involves trouble, but leads to fortune. The facility you will acquire at rapid copying, and the grace you will ultimately possess in the marvelous art of condensation and abridgement, will lead you to the highest walks of journalism. The warmest compliment which can be paid to any editor is expressed when it is, truly said that his paragraphs are rich, able brilliant.

You can find ten thousand men who are able to write telling leaders, where you can find one who has the talent and tact to fill your columns with minor detail. A newspaper must be well proportioned, and as symmetrical as an animal; as perfectly formed at the tail as the head. It is safe to say that bob-tail journalism went out of fashion with bob-tail nags. The influence of a paper is not alone in its editorial departments, but almost entirely in its little local items. The sting of the wasp is in the tail. A friend of ours accepted a country paper when it had failed to meet its agreements, and after its reputation was lost; and with its editorial charge he assumed, also, its pecuniary responsibilities. The community regarded him as a fool. The news in his paper was presented in a form in which it had never been written before. There was a depatment for every variety of matter, and no item was ever found out of place. The work of one paper engaged his time from sunrise to midnight, day in and day out. The success of that paper has been marvelous; it is the purest weekly published in the country to-day; we never saw a slung term nor a single indelicate allusion in it; yet, humor and mirth-provoking wit sparkle through its columns every where. There is no country paper, that we have ever seen, which furnishes as much news, that is so excellent in detail or that is so universally quoted from. Take and bind up the numbers of that paper since his management, and for that time it is a perfect encyclopædia. His success has been made in the face of every obstacle, in a community where he was a stranger, and among those who associated the journal which he secured with everything that was vile, degrading and low.

There is a lesson in this, and if country editors are shrewd they will profit by it; for there is no county in which their papers, if so conducted, will not meet with similar success.

John Doyle, a New York policeman, while drunk and jealous shot and killed a Miss Lawler, with whom he had been keeping company.

A Buddhist temple has been discovered in an underground cellar in New York.

By a law suit, Col. Wm. S. Bolling, mayor of Louisville, Miss., is likely to recover possession of one-half of the city of Richmond, Va., valued at $10,000,000.

The James River has been improved $400,000 worth since the war.

About two per cent. of the citizens of Berlin attend church.

It is stated that 20 per cent. of California cattle have perished from the exceptionally severe cold of the present winter.

A Bangor man has invented a new system for arranging the seats and berths in sleeping cars, which obviates many of the unpleasant and uncomfortable features now in vogue and secures far better ventilation.

Gen. Butler wasn't far from right in opposing the bill to allow free transmission of newspapers in the mails. He said Mr. Dawes was the only one of his colleagues who ever made remarkable speeches, and had stated that the amount annually paid on letter postage was over $20,000,000, and only a little over $1,000,000 on newspapers. And yet Congress was called upon to relieve the newspapers of the burden. He contrasted the great abuse of the franking speeches and documents on the approach of the presidential election with the greater abuse of loading mails with newspapers. Mr. Butler descanted at some length on the abuses of the newspapers and called attention to the injustice of sending free through the mails all the misrepresentations and slanders against public men, while the only way those injured could circulate their contradictions of the misstatements was to buy and pay the postage on the public documents containing their public speeches.

Mr. Nelson Jones of Burlington, Vt., found himself at Port Kent recently, after the stage had gone, and much desiring to get home, gladly took up an offer from a Port Kentian to take him across the lake on a sled. Putting on his skates and seating his passenger, with the tongue of the sled over his shoulder, convenient for pushing, the "locomoder" started; and with a clear field of ice before him, and no large cracks, landed Mr. Jones on Appletree Point in thirty minutes.

Two Alabama claims for property destroyed on the ship Anna F. Schmidt, valued at $5300, and for property on ship Sea Lark, valued at $5450, brought by auction $130, in Boston.

David A. Gage, late city treasurer of Chicago, has made arrangements to turn over to the city some $224,000 in cash, give security for the payment of interest already charged against him on the comptroller's books amounting to $133,000, and for the recovery of city moneys deposited in broken banks—about $150,000—which will end the criminal prosecutions now pending against him.

The shooting of Steve Lowery, one of the notorious outlaws of Robeson county, N. C., took place in the Scufflestown region, on the plantation of John McNair, who had frequently suffered from the depredations of his gang. Lowery and others were carousing at a whisky camp, where they were joined by three farmers, who, after some conversation with the outlaw, during which he bragged of his deeds and prowess, left and returned to obtain a favorable opportunity to shoot him, which soon after occurred. The body was perfectly riddled with balls and buckshot. The head was perforated in several places, and there were three large wounds in the heart, any one of which would have proved fatal. The outlaw was armed to the teeth, there being found on his person when killed a heavy rifle, three pistols, a knife with a blade about twelve inches in length. He was only about twenty-eight or twenty-nine years of age. He is said to have been the most cowardly, and at the same time the most treacherous and vindicative of the whole Lowery gang.

A Sioux City gentleman knocked his wife down with a billet of wood. He is a great, strapping fellow, while she is a small woman; but his excuse for striking her with the billet was that he is too much of a gentleman to strike a woman with his fist.

Great Falls has a sensation. A new postmaster has been recently appointed at the request of Mr. Representative Small. The leading business and financial men of the town took no steps to recommend a successor of the late Mr. Eastman, until after his funeral obsequies had been held. In the meantime a petition signed by a few persons was sent to Mr. Small, and now the bankers, manufacturers and leading men of the place unite in a remonstrance to the department against the new appointee. He has been appointed and confirmed in such haste that the remonstrants are indignant, and suggest he is not the man the business community of Great Falls desire to see in the office.

The farm of Stephen and Abby Foster was sold by auction, by the collector, for $82 84 for unpaid taxes of 1873. The Fosters refused to be taxed because Mrs. Foster cannot vote. The farm was sold to Osgood Plummer for $100. Marietta Flagg afterwards sent an indignant letter to the Worcester Press, in which she denies that it was a bona fide sale, on the ground that the law which is unjust is not law, according to a ruling of Blackstone. She said further: "The man who bid on my property, who seeks to steal the widow's mite through the injustice of the law, has fired the first gun of the second Lexington. Another 'irrepressible conflict' is imminent, and I shall not prove recreant to my principles by yielding to that insignificant duplication of Arnold—Silas Brimhall. As one of the minute women of the New Revolution, I mean 'fight,' and shall contest to the last any attempted usurpation of my rights as an American 'Free Woman,' which, by God and the Constitution, I am, though all the Jews, Pauls or Peters in Christendom cry me nay!"

After five days' hard fighting near Coomassie, the English troops have beaten the Ashantees. The British loss was 300.

A majority of the Massachusetts Congressmen having recommended a new candidate for Collector of Boston, President Grant informed them that he should not withdraw Mr. Simmons under any circumstances. Senator Boutwell has decided to recommend the confirmation of the latter, and all the New England Senators but Sumner are said to favor it.

State News.

Hon. Jacob H. Ela opens the campaign bypeaking at Keene.

Hon. Mason W. Tappan, one of the Greeley electors of last year, has written a letter in favor of Gen. McCutchins.

The drowning of Cornelius Welden in the river at Dover on Sunday, came near being a double tragedy, says the Dover Democrat. His brother Dennis, a boy of some 16 years, endeavored to save his brother's life, and proved himself a noble little fellow. When he saw his brother struggling in the water he sprang in with his clothes on, swam to Cornelius, and endeavored to get hold of him. The drowning boy grasped at him, scratching his face and pulling his hair in his struggles. Dennis got him by the waistband of his pants, when he was taken with cramp in his hands, and both sank together. As Dennis came up a plank was pushed over the ice to him, but his cramped hands would not grasp it, and he seized it with his teeth, and was dragged to the shore. Cornelius was in the water some twenty minutes, and when taken out was dead.

The Franking Privilege.

In the House on the 24th, Mr. Phelps of New Jersey opposed the bill and all amendments which proposed to reenact the franking privilege. Day after day, he said, bills had been introduced, and there was not a man of them that did not cry for economy. But they never had been able to find that particular measure on which they were willing to practise. [Laughter.] He satirized the arguments of members as to the extreme longing of people for public documents, saying for every application he had for an agricultural report, or for an essay on the silurian period, or the isothermal line, or the crustacean theory, he had a polite letter asking for five dollars. [Laughter.] This bill was declared to be in the interest of the grangers. He was not a granger. He did not like the granger principles. The grangers had not nominated him or voted for him. The republicans had nominated him and voted for him, and he should therefore stand by the republican party, and by its principles as expressed in its platform. He should give in his fealty to the new party of the grangers never, never, unless they should happen to establish grangers in the northern part of New Jersey. [Laughter.] There could not be any great suffering for want of these public documents, when they could be had at any second-hand bookstore for a little more than they were worth in old paper. If Congress wished to distribute books among the people, why not distribute grammars, reading-books, arithmetics and other useful publications? He submitted that it was not fair or just or republican to tax fifty people in order to give a luxury to the fifty-first. After ridiculing Mr. Cannon of Illinois for his devotion to the interests of the grangers he turned his attention to Mr. Garfield of Ohio, and satirized him very humorously for the contrast he had drawn in his speech between a calm, cool, sensible, country editor and the editor of the great metropolitan journal, who slashes off an article at midnight, and calls that the voice of the people. He yielded to no man in respect to the affection, the awe which he felt for this country editor. He found it almost impossible, sometimes, to catch the eye of the speaker, but he knew that the eye of his country editor was on him all the time, and that the pleasure or displeasure of the country editor might either mar or make him. [Laughter.] Mr. Phelps reviewed with admiration the ingenuity of the committee which reported the bill, in sugar coating the assafœtida pill, so as to make it agreeable to the taste of the country editor. If Congress was going to habilitate this old Jacob of the franking privilege it should be done boldly. Congress should not make the mistake of attempting to deceive the people by a false issue. Mr. Phelps' speech created much amusement and was frequently greeted with applause.

The Woman's Crusade.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

Two months have now passed, and the women are more earnest than ever. Driven out of the bar-rooms, they kneel in the muddy streets, which may be cleaner after all than sanded floors bestrewn with the refuse of conviviality. They mind neither the cold winds nor the pelting rain. All manner of engines of defense have been brought up against them without avail. Here an unregenerate saloon-keeper throws snuff into the midst of the praying band. There an irate ruffian assults them with a poker. Vulgar caricatures are displayed in the shop windows. Coarse jests are heard as the crusaders march through the streets. The law is invoked to prevent trespass upon the private premises as interference with a legal occupation; and in this part of the defense it is important to notice that the wholesale liquor dealers are helping the rum-shop keepers with money. Nevertheless the crusade goes on, and the roll of victory lengthens every day.

It is apparent that we have all underrated the strength of a woman's enthusiasm and devotion. These generous and Christian impulses are something more than outbursts of sentiment; they are important forces in the government of society. If the Ohio temperance movement can be guided with reasonable discretion, it may regenerate the whole region. It will not, of course, destroy intemperance, and probably it will not permanently check the sale of liquor; but it may make drinking more disreputable, and save thousands of men whose case is not yet hopeless. The danger in such movements is in attempting to go too far. The Ohio ladies will do well not to misunderstand the legal aspect of their case, to begin with. No doubt, they have been guilty in many instances of a technical trespass; and though the courts are evidently in sympathy with them, they may easily place themselves in such a position that the law will be compelled to interfere. The committees of gentlemen, organized to assist them, have kept prudently in the back-ground, and we trust they will have sense enough to remain there, since their appearance in the front, even under the pretense of protecting the ladies from insult, would probably lead to scenes of violence fatal to the whole enterprise. Let the women keep their tempers and respects the law, and they will have things pretty much their own way.

Ill Treatment of a "Villain."

The Chicago Times prints the following anecdote of Mr. William Whalley, formerly "leading man" at the Boston Museum:

It was remarked that Mr. William H. Whalley, who supports Miss Western in her present engagement at Hooley's, acted the part of Richard Craddock in the "Child Stealer" somewhat feebly on Wednesday evening. Now everybody who has seen Whalley act knows that he generally acts with all his heart. When he represents Sykes, or Francis Levison, or Dick Craddock, or any other villain, he is uniformly successful in drawing down upon the head of the personage all the odium, the scorn, the silent contempt, the what not that the personage so richly deserves. When people remarked, therefore, on last evening and the evening before that Mr. Craddock seemed less energetic in his action than usual, it was plain that there was good cause for the seeming shortcoming.

It is interesting to peep behind the scenes occasionally. It is necessary on this occasion to let the public have a glance in order to fully exonerate Mr. Whalley. But first let us take a look at the last scene of the "Child Stealer" from the auditorium. Mr. Craddock is finally caught, overwhelmed and hand-cuffed. He retires, with irons upon his wrists, and with a Mephistophelian sneer on his lips, a mocking laugh bidding defiance to whomsoever it may concern. All this Mr. Whalley did "up to the handle" on Wednesday afternoon, and the curtain fell amid applause.

The property-man, whose business it is to supply hand-cuffs, happened to have on his feet a pair of painfully tight boots that day. He locked the "derbeys" on Whalley's wrists at the proper time, and putting the key in his pocket walked out on Clark Street to visit his shoemaker. He forgot all about the key, and only thought of his boots.

Whalley, in a few minutes after the curtain fell, was seen in the dressing-rooms in a state of furious excitement, calling aloud for that property-man. He was hungry, he had an engagement with a man, he wanted rest, he wanted to get those accursed manacles off his wrists. The property-man at that moment was blocks away, swearing at a shoemaker. Whalley was in despair. He said that man would be gone until his supper would be cold. A file was procured and the stage manager began to saw through the irons. He commenced about five o'clock and by half past seven o'clock he had succeeded in filing through one of them.

It was almost time for the evening performance and "Bill" had no supper. There was still another handcuff to saw through. A friend suggested that he should go to the Sherman House to "meet that man." He went, with one manacled fist hidden in his pocket, and sat down in an obscure corner, with a very suspicious-looking outfit and in a rather surly humor. The tall watchman of the Sherman caught sight of the concealed hand, and this being his first chance of distinction as a policeman, he sent a bell boy to an officer to tell him that an escaped convict was lurking in the hotel. Two policemen came in, and the unhappy actor was invested, and all but lugged away to the armory. He managed to escape this last drop in the bucket, however, and got back to the theatre in time for the play. There was just time to eat a bite of something, so he dispatched a call boy for lunch. The boy rushed back with a trayfull of edibles, but he was so flustered by the impatient bearing of the hungry histrione that he upset and smashed the dishes. With a groan of despair Whalley rushed on the stage supperless!

His lack of energy in the performance on that night was excusable.

—An agent for the sale of liquor was badly "sold" some time since by a couple of wags who bet that his rum would freeze if exposed to the cold weather. Indignant that he should be suspected of watering the article in question, the agent offered to submit it to a test, and a bottle was carefully filled and corked and placed out of doors. During the night the jokers "treated" themselves and filled up the bottle with water, and when the party met in the morning to investigate, the bottle was found shattered and its contents frozen solid. The agent's astonishment and the joker's exultation were equally great, and it was some months before the former learned how he had been sold.

Indistinct Ailments.

There are many distressing symptoms of disease the causes of which are uncertain. Debility, nervous irritation, mental stupor, and headache, for instance, may possibly be symptomatic of chronic disease in some particular organ; yet, in a large majority of cases, at least, they arise from indigestion, and morbid conditions of the liver and bowels engendered by a foul stomach. When this is the case a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will usually effect a complete cure, but should the symptoms be only mitigated without being entirely removed, by a brief course of the remedy, let it be continued until every trace of disease has vanished. Dyspepsia is a wonderful mimic. It imitates with startling accuracy the indications of heart disease, brain disease, kidney disease, and half a dozen other frightful ailments, and when the doctors have solemnly announced the existence of one or other of these complaints, half a dozen doses of the bitters will in most cases explode their theories by curing the patient.

20,000 cures of PILES have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. Hottentots Gathering Buchu for Helmbold's Extract has become almost a historical picture. The great consumption of Dr. Helmbold's Buchu attests the important fact that thousands upon thousands need a diuretic medicine. For Dropsy, Gravel, Kidney Complaint, and all diseases of the urinary organs, either in male or female, there has never been a remedy equal to Helmbold's Buchu. Its imitators are mere trash. Helmbold's is the old reliable standard remedy. For sale by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. Y. Register.]

Gov. Thos. E. Bramlette, of Louisville, Ky., has given three years to the building up of a Public Library in Louisville, which he intends shall be the best in the country. He is doing it by a series of Gift Concerts, the profits of which go to the Library. The third drawing distributed $500,000, and the fourth, which takes place March 31st, distributes $1,500,000. The drawing will certainly occur on the day named, and the 12,000 gifts distributed as set forth in advertisements.

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by calling under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for the misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take, and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

Local Matters.

Coroner's Inquest.

The inquest in regard to the death of the late Mr. Pillow was resumed once more on Thursday afternoon.

Frank Wendell and J. Horace Kent, agent of the road, were the only witnesses examined, the former testifying in regard to the position of the body after the accident, and the latter in regard to the width of the crossing at Green street, distance between the rails, etc. The distance from the bottom of the ash pan of the engine to the planking of the crossing was 5 3-4 inches, and from the ash pan to the sleeper on which the blood was found was 9 1-4 inches.

The jury were then addressed by the counsel, Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett speaking in behalf of the road, and Hon. J. S. H. Frink in behalf of the friends of the deceased. Coroner Rider summed up the evidence and the law bearing on the case, and cited some recent decisions for the guidance of jury. The latter retired for deliberation, and returned the following verdict:

That Mr. Pillow came to his death by being struck by an engine of the Eastern railroad, and that the railroad corporation was guilty of carelessness in not providing proper safeguards at the crossing. Also, that the engineer, Samuel A. Hawkes, and William Allen, fireman, were guilty of negligence in not giving the signals as required by the regulations of the railroad, which contributed to the result.

Laconics.

We understand that a new volume of Shillaber's poems is soon to be issued in beautiful style, to be had by subscription only. Portsmouth friends of the bard will be glad of an opportunity to testify their appreciation of him who never forgets them.

Had any one of the croakers who are constantly asserting that the world is going to the bad attended either of the firemen's balls given here within a week past, and contrasted the commendable management and respectable company present with his memory of what a firemen's ball usually exhibited twenty years ago, he would have been constrained to acknowledge that there has been a vast improvement in at least one direction, notwithstanding the general retrograde movement of the world's morals. And no one now imagines that a rough makes any more efficient a fireman than does a respectable citizen,—which is another long step ahead.

Mr. Isaiah Farwell, the well known stage driver, died at Ogunquit, York, a few days since. He was sixty-three years old.

Lieut. Frank D. Webster, U. S. M. C., is ordered to duty at this naval station.

Johnson, the man who passed counterfeit money in New Boston some time ago, and was bailed by Mr. Woodbury Locke, did not appear when he was wanted, and Marshal Patterson went to Nova Scotia after him. He was found, but attempted to escape, when Patterson fired at him three times, without effect. He was caught at last.

It is expected that Mr. Francis Murphy, the eloquent Irish orator, will speak in Kittery next Sunday forenoon on the subject of Temperance, and in this city on Sunday evening. Definite arrangements have not yet been made, but to-morrow's CHRONICLE will state positively whether or not the gentleman will be here.

Hon. A. H. Cragin, Hon. Bainbridge Wadleigh and Hon. Jacob H. Ela are to speak in this State next week, and General Noyes of Ohio is also expected to be here.

A Narrow Escape.

The young man who was indiscreet enough to spit out of a car window, at a railroad station, has quit chewing tobacco. His last feat of thoughtless expectoration was performed at Bridgeport, Connecticut. As soon as the coffee-colored saliva had left his lips he saw that it would go into the face of an employe, who was testing the wheels, but it was too late to arrest it then. His first impulse was to blurt out an apology, but the train was moving off; and so, affecting an outward air of innocence he hoped that his trouble about the matter would pass away with his inward regrets. But a furtive glance convinced him that the man with the hammer had resolved to interview him. That functionary suddenly wore a determined look and stood ready to grasp the railing of the hind car, like a brakeman who had got off to turn a switch, and was afraid of being left.

The spit-ist resolved himself into a committee of the whole to consider the situation. He could lose no time, for the injured man was coming through the cars like an avalanche. There were but few passengers around him and he quickly exchanged his seat for one across the aisle, not far from the rear door. As he did so he took off his cap and linen duster and stuffed them into his satchel; then put on his high hat and disguised his face by taking out his store teeth and looking cross-eyed.

Just then the door opened with a gush and closed again behind some one with a bang. "Tickets!" exclaimed the conductor.

Here was a new complication not very favorable to the disguise, but the spit-ist thought it cheapest to give out the impression that he had just got aboard, and so he quickly held out a dollar note.

"Where to?" asked the conductor.

"Next station," was the terse reply.

"Where did you get on?"

The cornered man pointed with his thumb over his shoulder to Bridgeport.

Before change could be made the man with the hammer entered, fully up to the idea of an interrogation point.

"Where is the feller? Did he get hurt? Was he killed?" asked the cornered man, lisping through his gums and looking in several directions at once.

"Who?" asked the man with the hammer.

"The man who jumped the train."

"When?" asked the conductor, grasping the bell rope and giving it an awful jerk.

"Just now. Was sitting over there and all at once he dropped his Daily Graphic, and out and leaped off that platform like crazy."

"There was a man in a light coat sitting thar, a short spell ago; but I wonder whar he has gone to," said an old lady in iron rimmed spectacles who had not noticed the changes that had taken place around her. "Pr'sume 'ts likely, that was him."

"He's the one I'm after. Would go into the last ditch to tap his rim," said the knight of the iron instrument, hurrying out of the door and taking advantage of the slacked speed to jump off.

In a moment the train had come to a full stop and the passengers put their heads out to see what was the matter. The old lady insisted that a man had jumped off and got killed, but no one was to be seen except the man with the hammer; evidently not killed, nor even hurt, and apparently attending to his business on the road, rather than hunting anybody else with purposes of vengeance. There was evidently a mistake somewhere. The conductor shouted "all right;" and the engineer whistled "up brakes" and put on steam to make up three minutes of lost time. But the man whose first imprudence caused all this excitement "stopped off" at the first station, and laid over for the next train. He did not like to travel far under the enquiring look of that conductor. And he carried his store teeth in his pocket and looked both ways for Sunday until he got away from that line of road entirely. The boys who held up their baskets of peanuts and hard boiled eggs, at the stopping places, called him "gimlet eyes," and even "Ben Butler," but he maintained his imperturbable gravity. That night when a hundred miles away he essayed to replace his dental appendages, but his gums seemed to have contracted from severe compression, and the nerves and muscles of his face ached when he tried to look straight.

He said nothing of his adventure until a stranger asked him for a chew of tobacco, whereupon he promptly replied that he had quit using it upon seeing the evils a single indulgence might entail. The stranger smiled at his earnestness.

Gabbling at Concerts.

[Boston Transcript.]

This grave matter of disturbing public entertainments by talk has been treated quite too leniently heretofore, as a sort of privileged question. It is not such, but comes under the head of nuisances and disturbances generally. For so gross an infringement of private right there is a remedy, and we look to see some person, held in such esteem by the community that his motives will not be questioned, proceed to the vindication of this private right in as emphatic a manner as did the late David Henshaw, in the matter of voting by printed ballot. The man who pays for a seat at a concert is entitled not to the occupation of the seat merely, but to the quiet enjoyment of it. He is not called upon to spend the evening in keeping his neighbors in order. This is guaranteed him, either by the parties selling the seat or else by municipal law. If this is not so, then the old systems of head-punching and personal violence will be revived. Sensitive people will not much longer submit to paying the now ruling prices of popular entertainments with the chance of even the possibility of sitting next some bore of an elbower, who beats time with his heels through the pianissimo sentiment and giggles with insane but audible delight at every fiery outbreak of, to him, unfathomable passion.

—Barnet, Vermont, proudly boasts of a young person named Nelson, who has four times spelled down three school districts.

—A South Australian man has just discovered a cure for diphtheria, which has been used in the colony with great success. It consists of a dose of four drops of strong sulphuric acid in three-quarters of a tumbler of water for adults and a smaller dose for children.

—The St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger remarks: "A clergyman in one of our churches was very much annoyed yesterday by the whispering and laughing of a married man among the girls, and after sharp looks and noticeable pauses had failed to rebuke and silence the disturber, the minister stopped in his discourse and prayed for him. It proved as effectual as the same agency does upon the rum-sellers of Ohio."

SMITH'S ACADEMY
—AND—
Commercial College
FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including especial attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will have that prominence which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 31 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.
DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.
PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.
The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, it so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.
This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron foundation.
Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left unused at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also
LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON
And other direct clear Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

THE GHOST OF JIM SHAW.

[Kansas Pacific Railway.]
1872.

"Why, as to that," said the engineer,
"Ghosts ain't things we are apt to fear,
Spirits don't feel with levers much,
And throttle-valves don't take to such;
And as for Jim—
What happened to him
Was one-half fact and t'other half whim!

Running one night on the line, he saw
A house—as plain as the moral law—
Just by the moonlit bank, and thence
Came a drunken man with no more sense
Than to drop on the rail,
Flat as a nail,
As Jim drove by with the midnight mail.

Down went the patents. Steam reversed.
Too late! for there came a 'thud.' Jim cursed,
As his fireman, there in the cab with him,
Kinder stared in the face of Jim,
And says, 'What now?'
Says Jim, 'What now?
I've just run over a man—that's how.'

The fireman stared at Jim. They ran
Back, but they never found house nor man—
Nary a shadow within a mile.
Jim turned pale, but he tried to smile—
Then or'he tore,
Ten mile or more,
In quicker time than he'd made afore.

Would you believe it!—the very next night
Up rose that house in the moonlight white;
Out comes the chap and drops as before.
Down goes the brakes, and the rest encore—
And so, in fact,
Each night that act
Occurred, till folks swore Jim was cracked.

Humph! Let me see, it's a year now, most,
That I met Jim East, and says, 'How's your ghost?'
'Gone,' says Jim; 'and more, it's plain
That ghost don't trouble me again;
I thought I shook
That ghost when I took
A place on an Eastern line—but look:

What should I meet the first trip out,
But that very house that we talked about,
And that self-same man!' 'Well,' says I, 'I guess
Its time to stop this yer foolishness."
So I crammed on steam,
When there came a scream
From my fireman—and it broke my dream—

"You've killed somebody! Says I, "Not much;
I've been that often and there ain't no such,
And now I'll prove it." Back we ran,
And—darn my skin!—but there was a man
On the rail, dead,
Smashed in the head—
Now I call that meanness!" That's all Jim said."

—The cause for the recent assault on Rev. Luther T. Beecher, at Nyack, N. Y., is said to have been an act of impudence on his part in kissing a Mrs. Wessells against her will, while calling at her house. The lady and her husband were highly indignant, and the gentleman determined that his punishment should be open and conspicuous. Beecher is teacher in a school attended by young ladies of the first families.

—A satisfactory method of deciding as to whether or not murderers are insane, has been introduced in Chicago. The suspected party is hanged and his brain is taken out, hardened, preserved in alcohol, sliced, mounted on glass and subjected to microscopical examination.

A Source of Great Anxiety.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of this medicine restored her health, strength and appetite. N. H. TILDEN,
ins. and Real Estate Agt., 49 Sears Building.
Boston, Mass., June 5, 1872.

MOTHERS, READ THIS!

A Great Blessing!

WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.

Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.

My little girl is two and a half years old; and during that time I have not had two consecutive nights' rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and trouble for some days.

I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept her suffering there; and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very late in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I often say, the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar a drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing. MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,
175 Tudor street.
South Boston, July 16, 1871.

Circulation of the Blood.

The circulation of the blood is the life of the body, and its stoppage is death. We are healthy when the blood circulates freely; any interruption preventing its free course is the commencement of disease. "Blood is the life of the flesh." Can we expect to enjoy good health when bad or corrupt humors circulate with the blood, causing pain and disease; and these humors being deposited through the blood, body, produce pimples, eruptions, ulcers, indigestion, costiveness, headache, rheumatism, scrofula, with a number of other complaints? No disease can be in the body without first being generated in the blood; and no disease can possibly be in the body if the blood is pure. It is of great importance to know what medicine will purify and renovate the blood, eradicate the disease, renew vitality, mentally and physically, and instil fresh vigor into all the vital functions of the body. This medicine is the VEGETINE, i.e. great blood purifier.

It extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with its foundation; correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, giving good life, and bringing Nature to perform its allotted task.

VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 4ordp nrm.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years. Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It was all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, rattling in head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.
Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

His Lucky Number.

"Every one has a lucky number," said the old gentleman. "Mine is twenty-one. Twenty-nine might have been, would have been, an unlucky number for me. Yet I didn't know it, both were painted in black letters on a white oval. Twenty-one—twenty-nine. Not much difference you see—21, 29—very like indeed; and yet because I chose the number without a flourish and a long leg, I am here to-day, and have had a long and happy life. I should have been the occupant of a suicide's grave ever so many years ago had I chosen twenty-nine."

"I really can't understand," said I. "Was it a lottery or a draft, a conscription, or what? Was it a game—was it?"

"It was the number on a door," said the old gentlemen. "Wait a minute; I'll tell you all about it."

"I was very much in love; everybody is at some time in his life. At twenty-five I was desperate. Talk about Romeo! He was nothing compared with me.

I'm not ashamed of it. She was a worthy object. Not only because she was beautiful, but she was good and amiable, and such a singer. She sang soprano in the church choir. And I've heard strangers whisper to each other, "is there really an angel up there?" When she sang her part alone, clear and sweet and flutelike her voice was. I've never heard its equal."

"Well, I loved her, and, thought she liked me; but I wasn't sure. I courted her a good while, but she was shy as any bird, and I couldn't satisfy myself as to her feelings. So I made up my mind to ask and know for certain. Some old poet says:

"He either fears his fate too much,
Or his deserts are small,
Who fears to put it to the touch,
And win or lose it all."

I agreed with him; and one evening as I walked home from a little party where we had met, with her on my arm, I stopped under a great willow tree, and took her hand in mine, and said:

'Jessie, I love you better than my life—will you marry me?'

I waited for an answer.

She gave none.

'Jessie,' I said, 'won't you speak to me?'

Then she did speak:

'No—oh, dear, no!'

I offered her my arm again, and took her home without a word. She did not speak either. She had told me before that she should start with the dawn to visit an aunt in New York; but I did not even say good-bye at the door. I bowed; that was all. Then, when she was out of sight, and I stood alone in the village street, I felt desperate enough to kill myself.

What had I done to have so cold a refusal? Why should she scorn me so? 'Oh, dear, no!' I grew furious as I repeated the words.

Yet it stung me all the same. I tossed from side to side on my bed all night, and I thought I could endure it no longer. But I would not pain and disgrace my respectable relatives by committing suicide in the place wherein they dwelt and were well known and thought of. I would go to New York—even then a very large city—and, seeking some hotel, register an assumed name, and, retiring at night with a bottle of laudanum and a brace of pistols, awake no more, and so be rid of my misery. I arranged my affairs to the best of my ability, and received an imaginary letter from a friend in New York, requesting my presence on a matter of business. I burdened myself with no unnecessary luggage. What did an 'unknown suicide' want of another coat and a change of linen?

I kissed my mother and sister, and startled my grandmother by an embrace, and started upon what I mentally called my last journey, with a determined spirit.

There was a certain hotel to which many of the people of our village were in the habit of going. This I avoided. Another, chosen at a hazard, seemed to be better. Thither I walked, determined to leave no trace of my destination to those who knew me—no clew to my identity to those who should find me dead.

I had no mark upon my clothing, no card, paper or letter with me. I had torn the hatter's mark from my beaver. As I ascended the hotel steps I felt, so to speak, like one going to his own funeral.

A grinning waiter bowed before me. A pert clerk lifted up his head and stared. I was an ordinary traveller to them—that was evident.

It was late in the evening. The place wore an air of repose. Laughter and a faint chink of glasses in an inner apartment, told of some conviviality. One old man read his newspaper before the fire. Nothing else was astir.

I asked for a room. The clerk nodded. 'Do you care what floor?' he asked.

I shook my head.

'Number twenty-nine is empty,' he said, and tossed a key to the waiter, whom I followed at once.

We reached the room by two flights of stairs. At the door the waiter paused.

'Thought he said twenty-nine,' he muttered. 'The key is twenty-one.'

'Then open twenty-one with it,' I said. 'I don't care for the number of the room.'

'No sir—to be sure, sir,' said the waiter, and passed along a few steps further.

'Twenty-one,' he said, and, unlocking a door, pushed it open.

'Shall I bring you anything, Sir?' he said.

I answered 'No,' and he left me, having put the candle on my bureau.

The hour had come. As I shut the door, a heavy sigh escaped me. Alas! that life had become so woeful a thing to me that I should desire to be rid of it.

In the dim light of my one candle I paced the floor, and thought bitterly of the girl I loved so dearly.

It was in the days of curtained beds. The bed in this room was hung with dark chintz; so were the windows. Over the bureau was a looking-glass, with a portrait of a lady in puffed sleeves and high comb at the top, by way of ornament. There were four stuffed chairs, and a brass shovel and tongs stood guard beside the grate. I fancied myself lying dead on the bed amidst all those belongings, and felt sorry for myself. Then I took my pistols from my portmanteau, and leaving my door unlocked, for why should I put the landlord to the trouble of breaking it open, I lay down on the bed, drew the curtains, took a pistol in each hand, and, as true as I now speak to you, had the muzzle of each to a temple, when some one opened the door, and—'There, now, Jessie,' said a voice, 'I told you, you di dn't lock it.'

'I did,' said another voice, 'and sent the key to the office by the chamber-maid.'

I laid the pistols down and peeped through the curtains. There were two ladies in the room. One an old lady in a brown front of false curls, the other my cruel lady-love, Jessie Grey. For a moment I fancied I must be dreaming.

'Sure it's the right number?' asked Jessie.

'Twenty-one—yes,' said the other. 'And here's my band-box. Oh, dear! I'm sleepy.'

'I am not,' said Jessie. 'I wish I was, aunt.'

'You didn't sleep a wink last night,' said the aunt. "Nor you haven't eaten your meals to-day. You'll go into a decline if you go on that way. I'll see Dr. Black about you to-morrow."

"I don't want Dr. Black to be called," sighed Jessie. I'd rather die.'

'What's the matter?' cried the old lady. 'You are not yourself. You don't eat or sleep, and cry perpetually. What ails you?'

'I'm miserable,' said Jessie.

'Why?' cried her aunt.

'Oh, aunt,' said Jessie, 'it's all your fault. You told me over and over again that a girl must never jump at an offer; that a man must be refused at least once, or he'd not value a girl. And I liked him so! And, oh! he liked me! And when he asked me I felt so glad!—I said 'Oh, dear, no!' and he left me without a word. And I'm so sorry! Oh, sorry because I loved him,'aunt.'

'You little goose!' cried the old lady.

As for me, you can fancy how I felt. I had no thought of suicide now. My desire was to live and ask the question over again. I pocketed my pistols and crept down on the other side of the bed. I stepped toward the bureau and blew out the candle. The faint red light of the fire was still in the room. As I dashed out of the door, I heard two female screams, but I escaped in safety.

I met the waiter on the stairs.

'Found out the mistake, sir;' he said, just coming to rectify it.'

'Don't mention it,' I said. 'I'm very glad—that is, it don't matter. Here is something for your trouble,' and I gave him a five dollar bill.

He said, 'I thank ye, sir;' but I saw that he thought me crazy. He was confirmed in his opinion when, as I passed to the door my own room, I cried:

'Heaven bless twenty-one! It's a lucky number!'

But I never was saner than I was then, and never half so happy.

Of course, I proposed to Jessie the very next day, and I need not tell you that her answer was not 'O, dear, no;' and that's why I call twenty-one my lucky number."

Defeat of the Franking Bill.

The advocates of the franking privilege met with an unexpected defeat. The Packer bill was rejected by a majority of two votes. No one anticipated this result when the previous question was ordered by a majority of nine on a very full vote. The friends of the measure felt perfectly confident of success and Mr. Packer, thinking that nothing but the roll-call was necessary to complete his triumph, gave away the hour which belonged to him to close the debate to a number of gentlemen who wanted five or ten minutes to put themselves on record. His feeling of confidence became one of certainty when the house refused to lay the bill on the table by a vote of 118 to 140. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered was then lost without a division, and the next vote was upon the amendment offered by the committee authorizing the Postmaster-General in his discretion to delay the transportation of documents for a period not exceeding thirty days. This was also voted down. Packer refused to admit any of the numerous amendments which had been read during the debate except that of Mr. Hale of New York, restoring the franking privilege as it existed before the repealing act was passed. The roll was called upon this and only 49 members voted in the affirmative, the negative vote being 199. The opponents of the bill then agreed to make no dilatory motions, and let a test vote be taken at once on the passage. When it was found toward the close of the roll-call that the vote would be very close, a good deal of excitement prevailed, and at the latter part of the call several members changed their votes amid an unusual silence that showed how deep was the interest felt in the matter. The speaker announced that the bill was not passed, the ayes being 129 and nays 131. The defeat is not necessarily final, a motion to reconsider being privileged. The loss of the bill resulted from the defection at the last motion of General Butler and a few of the extreme advocates for the restoration of the entire franking privilege. They did not like the bill because it did not go far enough, and when Hale's amendment was rejected they determined to vote no, thinking if the bill could be killed and a new issue could be afterwards presented to the house of the old franking privilege or nothing, they could carry the day. Congressman Small voted yes, and Congressmen Pike and Parker voted no.

Another horrible accident resulting from the use of dualin occurred at the Phœnix Mine on the shore of Lake Superior, last week. A quantity of loose dualin was lying in a room next to the office of the works, and two men were at work with the dualin, and another held a candle. Suddenly an explosion occurred. The men were literally blown to peices, a body being found here and a leg or arm there. Capt. Hoatson, who had charge of the works, lived about fifteen minutes. The other men were undoubtedly killed instantly. Two of them leave families and one has eight children and one four. Six men were killed.

Referring to the outcry of the press last year against the franking privilege and the desire of some of the papers for a renewal of the special privilege formerly accorded, the Brunswick (Me.,) Telegraph says many of them are "sick of the business. Served them right. These virtuous spasms are all in your eye—sometimes in your stomach."

The city of Fall River has adopted the system of furnishing text books for the schools.

—A Frenchman has devised an arrangement by which smoke and cinders can be kept out of the windows of the cars, thereby doing away with one of the most disagreeable incidents of railway travel. It consists in the attachment of a pipe to a locomotive smoke stack, which carries the smoke to the end of a train of cars. If the invention be found practicable each car will be supplied with a length of pipe, and when a train is made up the pipes will be attached to each other. Rubber "bumpers" between each length will prevent the sundering of the connection when the train is going at high speed and the cars are swaying. The invention is being tried on a New York road.

Chicago has had a terrible experience with mad dogs. Two of these rabid creatures rushed through different parts of the city at about 7 o'clock, Friday morning, biting every one that came in their way. No less than seventeen persons and sixty dogs were bitten by these animals, one of them having planted its fangs in the flesh of twelve persons and of nearly forty dogs in the two hours before it was shot by the police, who were in pursuit of it. The result, of course, causes great apprehension for the future, and there has already been a willing sacrifice of the bitten dogs, in order to avoid the consequences of their having been exposed to hydrophobia.

The women in one of the streets in Machias, Me., noticing that a week after the snow storm the sidewalks were not cleared, turned out and put the sidewalks in good condition. The Republican proposes to elect these women on the School Board.

A new and fine church in Hyde Park, Mass., stands unused and undedicated. The Episcopal congregation ordered its erection and placed the supervision in the hands of the pastor, who assumed all responsibility, the understanding being that when all was done the the transfer of the property should be legally made. The pastor, however, exceeded the limit of cost by a thousand dollars, and consequently the congregation refuse to take the church.

Speaking of keeping in good humor, Dr. John Hall says to teachers who have trouble with their classes: "If with a competent knowledge of the lesson and a fair amount of power to interest you cannot rule and manage a class, if every now and then you have to call upon the superintendent to remove a boy or girl, or get them expelled, you may almost regard it as a conclusive proof of your unfitness for the place. You had better get out of the way, and leave your place to some one with more grace or more good sense." If this rule was acted on strictly in every school, what a thinning out of teachers there would be!

Napoleon and Paris.

A Paris correspondent writes: "Undoubtedly the dead Emperor is much regretted in Paris. The good that he did lives after him, and the mighty amount of evil is interred with his bones. One sees on all sides mourning-draped pictures of him, some in rich and elaborate black frames, others with the letters R. I. P. They may tear down the eagles of the Empire and erase the crowned N from the public buildings, but till they efface the wide new boulevards and net Paris over again with a tangled web of narrow streets—till they sweep away the new part of the Louvre, the Opera House, and hundreds of other improvements—they cannot efface the signature of their dead ruler from off this city. After all, he was the sovereign of their choice—he suited them. Virtue and patriotism are but fade qualities beside address, cunning, duplicity, and, above all, extravagance. There be those who sigh for the good old days of gayety and luxury and vice—for an Emperor with twenty mistresses, princesses with forty lovers, counts with a million scandals. Patience, gentlemen, the good old times once existed before, in the reign of Louis XV., and they may return again."

—Some students fixed up a ghost and placed it on the staircase of a Troy newspaper office the other night, and then retired and awaited developments. One of the editors came along and didn't get frightened. He disrobed it and now wears a $15 pair of pantaloons, a $10 vest, a $7 pair of boots and an $8 hat, while one of the students goes about without a vest and another roams through the least frequented streets wearing a very ancient pair of pantaloons.

Indistinct Ailments.

There are many distressing symptoms of disease the causes of which are uncertain. Debility, nervous irritation, mental stupor, and headache, for instance, may possibly be symptomatic of chronic disease in some particular organ; yet, in a large majority of cases, at least, they arise from indigestion, and morbid conditions of the liver and bowels engendered by a foul stomach. When this is the case a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will usually effect a complete cure, but should the symptoms be only mitigated without being entirely removed, by a brief course of the remedy, let it be continued until every trace of disease has vanished. Dyspepsia is a wonderful mimic. It imitates with startling accuracy the indications of heart disease, brain disease, kidney disease, and half a dozen other frightful ailments, and when the doctors have solemnly announced the existence of one or other of these complaints, half a dozen doses of the Bitters will in most cases, explode their theories by curing the patient.

20,000 cures of PILES have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments, and quack nostrums always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple, permanent cure, as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker St., New Yorx.

Hottentots Gathering Buchu for Helmbold's Extract has become almost a historical picture. The great consumption of Dr. Helmbold's Buchu attests the important fact that thousands upon thousands need a diuretic medicine. For Dropsy, Gravel, Kidney Complaint, and all diseases of the urinary organs, either in male or female, there has never been a remedy equal to Helmbold's Buchu. Its imitators are mere trash. Helmbold's is the old reliable standard remedy. For sale by all druggists.

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. Y. Register.]

Gov. Thos. E. Bramlette, of Louisville, Ky., has given three years to the building up of a Public Library in Louisville, which he intends shall be the best in the country. He is doing it by a series of Gift Concerts, the profits of which go to the Library. The third drawing distributed $500,000, and the fourth, which takes place March 31st, distributes $1,500,000. The drawing will certainly occur on the day named, and the 12,000 gifts distributed as set forth in advertisements.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for the misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meantime it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

Local Matters.

The Annual Report

Of the receipts and expenditures of the city for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1873, is issued. The receipts from the city farm were $4798.74; expenditures $3546.33; balance $1252.41. The receipts from labor off farm were $1450.43. The expenses of the Overseers of the Poor were $9262.34, being an excess of $1262.34 over the appropriation. Besides this the amount from the receipts of the city farm, $4908.33, and the amount received from the county, $1999.43, have been expended, making the expenditure $16,170.10. It is evident that if reform is needed in the city government, the Overseers of the Poor will have occasion to economize. They have spent for out-door pensioners $4246.42, $1999.43 of which the county pays.

The net income of the city farm was $4880.60. The inventory of the stock of the farm is $15,916.96. The whole number of persons admitted to the almshouse during the year was 153. Average number of inmates 65. There were five deaths. Nine of the inmates are insane and four are idiots. There were 65 commitments to the house of correction, 46 males and 19 females; all but ten were for drunkenness. Fines collected $102. City bonds to the amount of $32,200 were paid; also a net interest of $9735.70.

The expenses of the Street department were $9426.44; Fire department $8312.02; Police, (Watch not included,) $462.99, $2006.96 having been received from fines. The street lights cost $1729.86; repairs and rent of school-houses $2388.86; roads out of compact part of the city, $2753.27; health committee $4958; sidewalks $641.70; sewers $1260.73; schools $21,896.47; contingent $16,609.49; land damages—widening Fleet street, $6186.50; reception of the Sons, including uniforms for the Independent Battalion, $9272.47. The receipts from licenses to showmen were $268.50; from savings bank tax $13,199.95. The total expenditures exceeded the appropriations $3565.18. The city debt (outside of the P. & D. R. R. bonds) is $122,754.75, an increase of $1076.35! The real estate and personal property of the city is valued at $540,713.80.

The Mayoralty.

By common usage and courtesy the nomination of Frank W. Miller, Esq., for Mayor should be made by acclamation; but the ward committees deemed it advisable to prevent misunderstanding by calling the caucus in the same manner as that of last year, when Mr. Miller was nominated without any effort on his part. We presume he will be the nominee quite unanimously, next Tuesday, and be elected by a great majority on the Tuesday afterward. The place for republicans to indicate their preferences is at caucuses, and there is no excuse for bolting where a nomination has been fairly made. Thus far there seems to be a general desire to acquiesce in the will of a majority. The citizens' movement of last year was unfortunate alike to those who engineered it and the republicans who believed it unnecessary. Any attempt to repeat it this year would not affect the result.

Not Found.

Mr. Daniel B. Harris of York, Me., returned from Missouri on the 25th, after an unavailing search for his brother, Mr. John S. Harris, who left Quincy, Ill., Jan. 22d, to go alone for some horses in Platt county, Missouri. After finishing his business, he started to return, his friends noticing that he was acting queerly. Instead of taking a direct course back to Quincy, he wandered about and after traveling all night of the 24th, put up at a tavern in Ridgely, Mo. He had taken a horse and colt with him on the return, but the colt, being unmanageable, returned to the farm. At five o'clock on the afternoon of the 25th, Mr. Harris was seen to cross a brook running into the Platte river, since which time he has not been heard from. His tracks were seen on the opposite side of the river and his coat, which he had been carrying on his arm, was found on a limb of a tree. He had followed the river a considerable distance and had crossed it several times, as if he was wandering about with no settled purpose.

His brother Daniel engaged in the search for two weeks, the neighbors aiding him all in their power. The ice in the river was cut out for a quarter of a mile in vain hope of finding the body, and parties are still engaged in the search. Mr. Harris was 42 years of age and had no family. He was very energetic and ambitious. He had been in the West since 1855, being a conductor for three years on the Chicago, Alton & St. Louis Railroad. He was afterward a conductor on the Hannibal & St. Joe Railroad, and was made Master of Transportation afterward. The responsibility of the position so affected his mind that he was obliged to resign, and once more resumed the position as conductor. Last year for two months, he was on a pleasure tour through Colorado, Utah and California. If still alive, he may have strayed in that direction. Becoming partially deranged, he left work about New Year's and has been attending to his private business since. When he left for Platt county he had with him a gold watch and chain and about $1000, most of which probably remained unexpended. Mr. Harris was an affable gentleman, very generally known, and was popular with the public and his railroad associates. His sad condition when last seen and the suspense caused by his disappearance have awakened great interest among his friends and acquaintances.

Another Gem.

We have already in a brief paragraph alluded to the fact that our old and esteemed friend, B. P. Shillaber, Esq.,—who always comes into our sanctum when he visits his native city, to heap political contumely on our head, and make us mad after he's gone because we didn't give him the lots of sharp political raps we could have bestowed had we only thought of 'em in time,—proposes to issue a new volume of his poems, to be published by subscription. The following address to his friends shows that advancing years have wholly failed to make "rare Ben" an old man, and that physical suffering—of which he has enjoyed much more than one man's share,—has done nothing toward blunting the genial humor which made "Mrs. Partington" and her quaint sayings famous so many years ago, and has given pleasure to thousands but pain to none:

CHELSEA, February, 1874.

To His Friends:—The undersigned, without wishing to obtrude himself, like a grain of sand, into the eye, asks attention to the fact that, being stimulated by recent disappointment, he purposes to publish a new book, by subscription, and appeals to his ten thousand and more friends for their aid. He feels hopeful that his appeal will not be in vain, but that all, as the actors say "will give him their hands." The book contemplated will embody many of those rhymed efforts—occasional and otherwise—which have secured favor, and some new that have not been published; which, without aiming at any exalted poetical excellence, have served a pleasant purpose, and may not yet have lost their savor. The grave and the gay will be harmoniously blended, the latter not spiced so highly as to offend the serious, and the former not unsuited to the subdued mood of the most hilarious. Without presuming to anticipate any remarkable degree of benefit to the world from his publication, the undersigned modestly suggests that its success would prove a world of benefit to himself—a consideration which he trusts will not be overlooked. He deems that no impropriety will be seen in this mode of presenting his claim. His book is his wares, his merchandise, his production, and he hopes it may be regarded as some desirable fabric,—"illusion," perhaps. By the way: the address "To His Friends" is not to be construed into a prohibition of his enemies' subscribing, if they choose. The book will comprise some three hundred pages, of superior type, paper and binding, to which will be affixed the autograph of the author in his most courtly hand. B. P. SHILLABER.

Five hundred subscribers only are needed to insure the publication of the book, and that number, at $1.50 each, should be easily procured among his friends here,—"his friends" embracing the whole adult population of the city and not a few of the young people. A subscription list is now open at the Congress Block Bookstore of Jos. H. Foster, Esq., who will be pleased to furnish pen and ink for signing, to five hundred subscribers within a week.

Canine Affection.

About nine o'clock, Tuesday evening, as one of our citizens was returning home, he noticed a small dog standing on the sidewalk in front of Dr. Richter's residence on State street, shivering. Noticing the peculiar actions of the dog, the gentleman watched him. In a few moments the dog plunged his head into a snow drift and burrowed there until he went nearly out of sight, dying in a short time. Two hours after the gentleman looked out of his doorway and saw a large setter dog sitting close to the dead one and whining, with his nose pointed to the sky. During the night the gentleman was awakened by a succession of mournful whines and barks, and looking out again found the large dog still sitting up with his dead companion, occasionally lying his head on the body of the latter. At daylight the setter was still there, but soon after trotted off and left the body. The small dog probably died of poison.

Kittery.

Riverside Lodge, I. O. O. F., of this town, closed a very successful Levee and Fair at Trefethen's Hall on Thursday evening. The hall was beautifully decorated with streamers and flags, and was packed full of people; many articles were awarded to the lucky holders of lucky tickets, good-natured mirth universally prevailed, and altogether the fair was undoubtedly the most successful one ever held in Kittery. The affairs of the order here are in good hands and flourishing finely, and the citizens generally wish the brotherhood much success.

Your worthy townsmen, Messrs. Kent and Pender, were over here on Thursday making arrangements for Mr. Murphy to talk temperance here on Sunday forenoon; and although we have no open dram-shops we are glad to see the renewed interest taken in the temperance cause.

Laconics.

Morse & Ilsley wrote in the year 1873 Accident Policies amounting to three hundred and seventy-four thousand dollars, and paid out several hundred dollars to policy holders who were injured.

A suit against the Eastern Railroad will be brought on behalf of the family of the late Joseph D. Pillow, for $5000 damages. Mr. Pillow's life was insured for $3000.

The Jubilee Singers will continue their organization and concerts for the purpose of raising funds to build their church. Mr. J. E. Bradley is the new leader.

Edmands' second quadrille band furnishes no better music than the Naval Band, when the latter do not play carelessly.

Rev. James DeNormandie will deliver the eighth of his series of historical discourses on Sunday evening next. Separation and History of the Parish at Newcastle, is the subject.

Ship Governor Langdon, (of Boston,) built at this port in 1854, 1162 tons, was sold at Liverpool, Feb. 13th, for £7500.

Mr. Francis Murphy, the temperance orater, will lecture at the Temple to-morrow evening at half-past seven o'clock. A collection will be taken. He will speak at the M. E. Church at Kittery to-morrow morning at 10.30.

Six of the fires in this city during 1873 were incendiary and seven accidental. Loss $81,600; insurance $19,700.

The Annual Meeting of the Members of the Young People's Union will be held at their rooms this (Monday) evening, March 2d, at 8 o'clock. All friends of the Union are invited to be present.

Dawes has written a letter regretting that he cannot speak in New Hampshire during the present week. Sho!

A dispatch to L. W. Brewster, Esq., announces that Simmons was confirmed for Collector of Boston, Friday, by a vote of 30 to 16.

The whole number of pupils attending the public schools in 1873 was 2209, 1080 boys and 1129 girls; average attendance 1429. Whole number attending the High school, 162—boys 68, girls 94; average attendance 134.

More Smash.

There was a railroad smash-up on Portsmouth bridge, just beyond the draw, shortly before midnight on Friday. Several freight cars had the wheels knocked from under them and were otherwise damaged, some heavy timbers connected with the draw were broken, and the tall sentry-box-looking concern which has something to do with the telegraph and scares half the horses that pass it, was smashed. We have no further particulars.

MARRIED.

INMAN—PAGE. In North Hampton, Feb. 26th, by Rev. T. V. Haines, Mr. William R. Inman of East Boston Mass., and Miss Ellen A. Page of North Hampton.

DIED.

WEBSTER. In this city, Feb. 27th, after a brief illness of lung fever, Mr. Roswell Webster, aged 55 years;—an honest man, a worthy citizen, and one of our most intelligent, industrious and successful farmers—who honored and adored his calling, because he loved and appreciated it.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND EHUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Steamboat and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN BLACK ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Not Understood.

The favorite complaint of ninety-nine men and women out of a hundred is that they are not understood.

Every married woman with a fondness for weak sentimentality confides to her intimate friend that her husband, kind and well-meaning as he is, does not understand her.

Every married man who is in the slightest degree addicted to the morbid habit of dissecting his own emotions firmly believes that his wife totally fails to understand him.

As for the unmarried of either sex, they accept as a matter of course the conscious isolation that springs from being misunderstood by all their kind.

At the same time that we are all complaining because we are misunderstood we are making it the aim of our lives to conceal our true selves from any one else.

It is like the full-dress paradox. The less a lady clothes her shoulders and arms the nearer she approaches to the state of "full-dress." The more we wish to be understood the more we pose ourselves in assumed characters.

You, my dear sir, who sadly say to yourself over your solitary evening cigar, "No one understands me," really mean that no one accepts you as the person of unique merit which you wish to convince the world that you are.

You, my dear madam, who say to your intimate lady friend, or the sympathetic young man with whom you are carrying on a perfectly unexceptionable flirtation, "Nobody understands me," simply mean that no one concedes that you have succeeded in perfectly disguising yourself as a woman of exceptional strength of mind, delicacy of feeling, and capacity for everything that is noble and excellent in your sex.

Now, the truth is that we are all of us understood by our friends quite as thoroughly as we desire to be.

A man is nearly always accurately gauged by the world, so far as his merits are concerned. A woman is nearly always understood by her feminine friends as thoroughly as she wishes them to understand her.

Which of us would be willing that the secret thoughts and emotions that we keep carefully hidden should be surprised even by our truest and best friend? Yet that is what must precede the process of being thoroughly understood.

Still there is a degree of knowledge of a man or woman which is something less than this intolerable exposure, and something more than the knowledge which the world attains. And it is a curious fact that the person admitted to this knowledge is always of the opposite sex to the one making the revelation.

No woman ever thoroughly understands another woman; and no man perfectly comprehends another man.

A woman has an instinctive fear of being thought unwomanly by another woman. A man is never free from the dread of doing something that his best friend, even if he loves him as a brother, may think unmanly. And so, whether we are men or women, we always keep up a barrier of conventionality between ourselves and those of our own sex.

It is only to a man that a woman reveals herself. It is only in the presence of a woman that a man lays aside the reserve that he maintains among his fellows. No woman knows her own sister as well as does the young man with whom she has had a six months' friendship. No man understands the friend of twenty years of masculine intimacy half so well as the woman whom the latter has courted for six weeks understands him.

Does it follow, then, that married people know each perfectly? By no means.

The doors of intimacy that were open during the days of courtship grow rusty on their hinges after marriage.

By and by, in the confidence of mutual affection, a free criticism of one another's faults becomes frequent, the atmosphere grows a little chilly, and the doors are shut forever.

A woman does not like to whisper "You may look into my inmost heart" to the man who feels so much at home with her that he is quite capable of saying, "Thanks; but just wait till I find my pipe. I can't see why it is that you women always will put things where a man can't find them."

There is precisely one relation in which men and women are known perfectly through and through, in their inmost grain and fibre, by one another. It is that of unlawful love.

It is partly the recklessness following a step that once taken can never be retraced, and partly the isolation that a shameful secret carries with it, that lead to this absolute unveiling of good and bad alike which marks the relation of the faithless wife with her passionate lover.

And this unveiling is perhaps the reason why it is that the man and his mistress must ultimately quarrel, and bitterly despise one another.

It was never meant that we should stand mentally and morally naked before our fellows. If we really long to do so, it is a morbid longing that ought to be promptly suppressed. And so let me say to the wife who wails that she is not understood, and the husband who would make a similar plaint if he did not fear ridicule, you are longing for that which can never be reached by ope nand peaceful paths.

Individualism was not made the condition of humanity without a purpose. The separate soul is not segregated in its body by an expensive error. It is worse than folly for us to long for a "Pan-Humanity," in which one vast and identical soul shall form the myriad bodies of the race.

A Source of Great Anxiety.

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. N. H. TILDEN,

MOTHERS, READ THIS!

A Great Blessing!

WORTH A DOLLAR A DROP.

Mothers, are your little ones fretful? And is your patience almost exhausted in vain efforts to please them? I can sympathize with you, and can tell you what will make your little child quiet, give it a good appetite, and procure for it hours of sweet, sound sleep.

My little girl is two and a half years old; and during that time I have not had two consecutive nights' rest. She has been sick a number of times and no one seemed to know what was troubling her. It was hard to hear her little fretful cry, and not know what to do for her. I doctored her for worms, but it did no good; and I was nearly tired out with sleepless nights and trouble for some days.

I heard of the VEGETINE, and determined to try it. It has proved a blessing to me and my child. It has cleansed from her stomach and bowels the sores which kept gathering there; and now she sleeps soundly from her bedtime until very late in the morning, besides a long nap at mid-day. Her appetite is good; and, in fact, she is like a different child. I often say, the true value of this medicine to me is a dollar a drop. Try it. Cleanse the humors from your children's blood while they are young. Try it, and you will join with me in calling it a great blessing. MRS. ELLEN L. CLAPP,
175 Tudor street.
South Boston, July 10, 1871.

Circulation of the Blood.

The circulation of the blood is the life of the body, and its stoppage is death. We are healthy when the blood circulates freely; any interruption preventing its free course is the commencement of disease. "Blood is the life of the flesh." Care we expect to enjoy good health when bad or corrupt humors circulate with the blood, causing pain and disease; and these humors being deposited through the entire body, produce pimples, eruptions, ulcers, indigestion, costiveness, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, and numerous other complaints? No disease can be in the body without first being generated in the blood; and no disease can possibly be in the body if the blood is pure. It is of great importance to know what medicine will purify and renovate the blood, eradicate the disease, renew vitality, mentally and physically, and instill fresh vigor into all the vital functions of the body. This medicine is the VEGETINE. I, a great blood purifier.

It extends its influence into every part of the human organism, commencing with its foundation; correcting diseased action, and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted task.

VEGETINE is composed of Roots, Barks and Herbs. It is very pleasant to take; every child likes it. Sold by all Druggists. 4w 40r3p nrm.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most compounds, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

and all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for the Patent Office executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

CATARRH!
A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.
And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the
CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.
To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:
I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hooksett, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old, and it held all the time. It run all the period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is good, I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from misery and suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.
MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.
Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.
I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, sickings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.
Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Children at a Ball.

[Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer.]

On Thursday night our citizens gave the members of the Agricultural Convention a ball, the council voted the money to make it a success, and some of our most sterling ladies took it on themselves to see that everything was worthy of Columbus, and they did their part well, for the supper, per se, was a success, and many of our most worthy citizens went to the ball to bid welcome to our guests. We went, taking with us an invalid lady, to whom we believed the change for an hour or two would do good; and we were pleased to see many ladies of years there, happy at the thought of others being so. The first thing that met our gaze on entering the ball-room was a quadrille set composed exclusively of children from nine to fourteen. We wondered, as did everybody, at this sight; and the wonder increased when we found little fellows crowding the ball room on every hand, acting the gallants to little girls, who ought to have knelt by a mother's knee hours before, said their prayers and gone to bed. Children, as a rule, are barbarians if left to themselves, and they are utterly selfish if away from a parent's watchful eye. We saw old ladies compelled to stand while these children, with a startling coolness, monopolized the chairs and sofas, fanning with inimitable coolness and laughable burlesque the little girls by their side. These children took the best places on the floor when a dance was announced; and we were not, therefore, surprised, when supper was ready, to find them first about the tables, as they were the last to leave. They ate as if they had been starving weeks for the occasion, and this was the last square meal they were ever to enjoy on earth. We appreciated this exhibition of juvenile gorging, though we sympathized with the ladies and gentleman who could get nothing to eat; or, if brave enough to try it, did so at the risk of ruined garments. Up to this time the affair was so extremely laughable that we did not consider the moral aspect of the case till one of the many gentlemen strangers and visitors who were commenting on the extraordinary conduct of the children begged us to walk up stairs. We went up, and found a room where liquor had been provided for such of our guests as wanted it, and here, to our horror, we saw more than a dozen boys—not one over fifteen years of age—indulging in whisky raw and whisky punch, and two of them were sitting on a table "far gone," and vainly trying to keep two cigar-stumps in a state of enjoyable ignition. We do not blame these poor children. They were all there with the consent of their parents, and parents have a right to take their children to such places, if the managers allow it. We got the names of most of the children, and we shall watch their future anxiously and prayerfully.

Capital Punishment.

Referring to the proposition recently before the Maine legislature to abolish the death penalty, the Brunswick Telegraph says: What's to be done with such cool-blooded assassins as Wagner and Gordon? Commute their punishment and pray for them, says the philanthropist. Did they heed the prayers of the poor victims whom they slew? We are not, however, going to argue the question of capital punishment, for we know it to be fashionable to stone the seduced, and to take to our hearts the villainous seducer. We are more anxious that the laws of Maine, whatever they may be, shall be established and that nothing shall be left to chance. If no capital punishment is to be the rule, say so like men; if it is to be enforced, let the law explicitly say so, and unalterably fix the time.

But there is another phase of this question introduced by the conviction of murder in the first degree, of James M. Lowell, recently tried in Lewiston for the murder of his wife three years since. Now we are free to admit that one who does not hear the testimony in any given case is hardly competent to pronounce upon its probability; we further admit that we did not read all the testimony given with care. After admitting this much, we are bound to say that the verdict was somewhat a surprise to us, inasmuch as the testimony that Mrs. Lowell is dead was slight enough, and the identification of the skeleton found in the woods far from satisfactory. The anatomical testimony, while clear and direct, showed that there was at least great mystery about the case, —in the absence of the head, the uninjured state of the bones where the head was separated from the body. That verdict looks to us like a leaning in the wrong direction, and we say this without having the slightest personal knowledge of the man or the jury who gave the verdict of guilty, and we here disclaim all intention of casting a reflection upon them. It may be that what we describe as "a leaning in the wrong direction" is rather seeming than real. We will admit, if you will, that the jury honestly did its duty, and yet we cannot refrain from saying that the verdict has an unfortunate leaning in this wise—capital punishment will be abolished and as we have a tolerably fair case we may as well as not make an example of Lowell, for he will be in no danger of losing his neck. This was substantially the argument put by the Attorney General to the jury.

As grave injustice may be done under this state of things as under a law which imperatively demands a life for a life, and not only so, but the fountains of justice will be as thoroughly tainted, as under our present system which says hang but don't.

We are certainly making wonderful legal progress in this State. We are striving to eliminate the judges from all but the law, in the enactment to forbid their expressing any opinion upon the facts; with a little further progress we shall come to ignore the facts.

Now that the Simmons contest is settled, it seems singular that he was opposed for being too much of a republican. Had Simmons been nominated at the request of Congressman Pierce of Boston, the newspapers and fossil politicians who opposed him would have never condemned the choice, and had Gen. Butler refused to join in recommending him he would have been sneered at for deserting a faithful and capable official.

The Massachusetts State Senate has passed the ten-hour bill.

Kansas is to vote on woman suffrage.

At the republican caucus in Saco, Dr. Stephen P. Libby was nominated for mayor, receiving 200 votes. Rufus P. Tapley had 196. Rishworth Jordan is the democratic candidate.

Ex-United States Senator Revels aspired to be State Printer of Mississippi, but the colored members of the legislature, who are in a majority, defeated him.

Judge Haines, of Chicago, has decided that editors are professional men, and that their scissors, paste-pot etc., cannot be seized for debt.

Mr. J. Mortimer Delaney, of Kentucky, fell into a tank of sour mash last week, and had a narrow escape from suffocation. The accident is noteworthy as showing that, sooner or later Providence gets even with a man who parts his name in the middle.

The Terry Island Adventists will hold a convention in the spring and figure it out again.

It is said that Jeff Davis goes to Europe to escape Gen. Joe Johnston's impending military history, which it is stated is terribly severe on the Confederate ex-President, showing both his military incapability and the petty malice and favoritism which controlled him. Davis' friends induced Johnston to take one chapter out, but the rest is said to be terrible in its severity.

The Tichborne claimant has been sentenced to penal servitude for fourteen years.

The business portion of Panama has been burned. Loss $100,000.

The simplest kind of burglar alarm is to throw newspapers loosely on the stairways and near doors and windows.

The ball recently given by Marshal MacMahon at the Elysee, in Paris, rivaled the luxurious displays of the second empire. About 6,000 persons were present, and the cost is roughly estimated at $40,000.

Some time since a married lady of Saco was called from home. During her absence the days and nights were bitter cold and her husband shook and trembled alone. Finally one day he addressed his wife a postal card with simply the words Ecclesiastes 4: 11 upon it.

The son of the Fire Superintendent of Troy set his father's house on fire and then gave the alarm. He subsequently explained that he wanted to "see how the Osgood machine worked." Being but six years old, his punishment, since the fire was a failure, was left to the Superintendent, and was a forcible illustration of parental influence.

"Sometimes, I think," Butler is reported to have said in a recent interview, "there is no compensation in public life. If it wasn't for my enemies, I might quit it." The Boston Herald hastens to say it don't believe Butler has an enemy in the world.

Of the forty-four members of the Ohio House who voted to suspend the rules in order to put on its passage a resolution of sympathy with the Women's Temperance Movement, thirty-three are republicans and eleven are democrats. Of the forty who voted in the negative, four are republicans and thirty- six are democrats. Although there was a majority in the affirmative, it requires a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules, and the resolution went over accordingly.

Mr. Routhledge, of Elyria, Ohio, took unto himself a wife without previously consulting her mother. When the old lady saw the little joke she whaled her daughter. The tender bride was so indignant at her new husband for not taking a hand in the dispute that she put a bill for divorce on the plea of desertion. The Indiana Daniel said he had never heard that a man's refusal to lick his mother-in-law was ground for divorce, and he reluctantly refused the application, ordering the husband to pay the fees of court.

After securing the opposition of Senators Boutwell and Sumner and seven of the eleven Massachusetts representatives, to Collector Simmons, the anti-Simmons men were jubilant. President Grant would not withdraw the nomination and Gen. Butler spent half of Thursday night and all of Friday interviewing Senators. The debate on the confirmation of Mr. Simmons lasted three quarters of an hour. Senators Cameron, Carpenter and Conkling spoke in favor of, and Senators Cragin, Sumner, Boutwell, Thurman and Bayard against it. Nearly all the democratic Senators voted to confirm. The result is a great triumph for Gen. Butler, perhaps the most notable and deserved of his eventful political career. He has more influence and individuality than all the New England Senators combined.

State number thirty-eight is knocking at the door for admission. An earnest effort is being made during the present session of Congress to obtain the admission of Colorado into the Union. This territory has been beseiging Congress for nearly ten years to open the door to it. It came very near succeeding in Andy Johnson's time. The bill creating a State Government passed both Houses of Congress, but was promptly vetoed by the President. His reason for refusing his assent was the insufficiency of the population. They have returned to the charge this year with a more plausible showing on the population question. They profess to be able to convince anybody who doubts that there are 100,000 people permanently residing within its limits. The total vote for delegate to Congress two years ago, was 13,856, which at the usual ratio of one voter to six of the inhabitants, would show at that time a population of 83,136. Immigration has been pouring into the territory since, and a round hundred thousand is claimed. Certainly if Nevada with 42,000 inhabitants is entitled to be a State, Colorado, with twice as many, is being unjustly dealt with.

A Duluth couple were married on the ice and it would have been highly romantic if the bride hadn't fallen down and cracked her auburn head, and kicked the minister's feet out from under him.

New York, with 1,000,000 inhabitants, uses about as much water each day as London does with 2,620,000 people—in other words the average New Yorker consumes three times as much as the average Londoner. The daily supply in London is 110,874,000 gallons. In New York it is 104,000,000 gallons.

Among the unique entertainments of the season in New York are "Dickens parties"—the invited guests being requested to appear in some character made celebrated by the late Mr. Dickens. Several have already been given on an extensive scale, and all proved most successful and enjoyable.

An Earnest Protest.

The following letter has been addressed to Congressman Small. It speaks for itself:

We, Republican voters in Somersworth, N. H., and part of your constituency, hereby protest against the gross outrage done us by your indecent haste in filling the vacancy caused by the death of Royal Eastman. We say nothing of your duplicity in promising that no such hasty action should be had, nor of that moral cowardice which drove you to skulk behind an appointment, trembling at possible responsibility, neither do we intimate that such baseness can be shd only by purchase. We simply claim that our character, position, influence, and business, all of which are well known to you, should have protected us from the pettifoggery of a snap judgment. Saturday morning, the day after Mr. Eastman's funeral, Clarence L. Chapman was on his way to Washington. He arrived there Sunday, and on Monday, through your perfidiacity, he was nominated Postmaster at Great Falls. Ahab made no greater haste to take possession. In that common decency which characterizes civilized men, and to which your conduct is so rare an exception, we waited till the deceased was in his grave before beginning a political contest for his successor. Your cannibal haste has left us nothing but this protest.

A Keen Satire.

Not many years ago our transatlantic brethren were accustomed to hold up their hands in horror at the frequency of accidents on American railroads,—and well they might,—while the management and immunity from serious accidents of British railroads were often contrasted in this country with the recklessness and disasters on American lines, to the manifest disadvantage of the latter. But within a year or two the British roads have surpassed even the American ones in the number of accidents and the horrors attending them; and a late number of the London Punch has a striking satire on the prevalence of railroad accidents which has something more than local application. The picture is entitled "A Hitch," and represents a traffic manager saying to a station agent, who has just made a report; "Line not clear yet? Tut-t-t-t! We shall never be in time for this afternoon's collision, you know!"

The Epping Railroad and the Coal Trade.

[Newburyport Herald.]

While the Epping railroad will be of great advantage to all of the commercial manufacturing interests of Newburyport, the coal tonnage will be greatly increased. But this cannot be done without stimulating other branches of business. To show this is the object of the present article. The amount of coal used at Portsmouth last year was 80,000 tons; for Manchester and beyond, the estimated increase will bring the amount needed this year to 100,000 tons. The building of the Epping railroad will cente eat Newburyport the business of the most important coal companies, and of their shipments alone 60,000 tons will go over the road during the first year of its operation. Within five years the shipments will increase to 100,000 tons. But when it is remembered that making Newburyport a centre for the northern business, must give this port new importance, and increase our coal shipments over the Boston and Maine railroad, it will be readily admitted that for ten years the increased amount of coal brought to Newburyport by the building of the Epping railroad will be 75,000 tons per year.

The average size of vessels engaged in the coal trade has greatly increased during the past few years, so that at present, including the iron steamers, the average is about 500 tons each. On this basis the arrivals would be 150 per year. This would give our pilots about $2,000 of new business each year. The wharfage on 15,000 tons of coal will be of value to wharf owners, but as the rates are subject to private bargains, no estimate can be made of this item. Even if there be no increase of the coal trade at Newburyport, a new tug boat is urgently needed. It is reasonable to credit the Epping railroad with creating a demand for the services of at least one more tow boat. The capacity of the marine railway is fully taxed even now, and we do not see how they will be able to meet the need of this new commerce without adding to their present facilities. Every vessel spends some money here for fresh provisions and ship stores. During the season there are many calls for new sails and rigging and iron work. $50 per vessel would be a low estimate to include all the money paid in this way to our traders and mechanics. $22,500 is the cost of discharging 75,000 tons of coal. This amount of money goes at once into general circulation, and finds way to every channel of trade. Every ton of coal which comes to Newburyport will pay to Newburyport people fifty cents in wharfage, discharging, pilotage, supplies and repairs, or $37,000 annually. But we not only need to know that the business of Newburyport will be benefitted, but that the earnings of the road will pay its interest account and the cost of its maintenance. In the future discussion of the question it will be claimed that it is reasonable to expect that the transportation of this amount of coal, together with the general business of the road, will guarantee its financial success.

—A couple were recently married in Hardin county, Iowa, and after the ceremony the bride asked the husband his name. They had been acquainted only a few hours when he proposed and she accepted. This frankness on the part of the bride, showing a desire to know her husband's name, is auspicious of a happy future.

Indistinct Ailments.

There are many distressing symptoms of disease the causes of which are uncertain. Debility, nervous irritation, mental stupor, and headache, for instance, may possibly be symptomatic of chronic disease in some particular organ; yet, in a large majority of cases, at least, they arise from indigestion, and morbid conditions of the liver and bowels engendered by a foul stomach. When this is the case a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will usually effect a complete cure, but should the symptoms be only mitigated without being entirely removed, by a brief course of the remedy, let it be continued until every trace of disease has vanished. Dyspepsia is a wonderful mimic. It imitates with startling accuracy the indications of heart disease, brain disease, kidney disease, and half a dozen other frightful ailments, and when the doctors have solemnly announced the existence of one or other of these complaints, half a dozen doses of the Bitters will in most cases, explode their theories by curing the patient.

20,000 cures of PILES have been recorded during the past five years by ANAKESIS, the happiest discovery in medicine ever made. No disease is more painful and vexatious than PILES, and lotions, ointments, and quack nostrums always make them worse. ANAKESIS is an infallible, painless, simple, permanent cure, as a bougee, soothing poultice and medicine. The relief from pain is instantaneous and cure certain. All Doctors recommend it.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 48 Walker St., New York.

Hottentots Gathering Buchu for Helmbold's Extract has become almost a historical picture. The great consumption of Dr. Helmbold's Buchu attests the important fact that thousands upon thousands need a diuretic medicine. For Dropsy, Gravel, Kidney Complaint, and all diseases of the urinary organs, either in male or female, there has never been a remedy equal to Helmbold's Buchu. Its imitators are mere trash. Helmbold's is the old reliable standard remedy. For sale by all druggists.

Symptoms of Liver Complaint and of Some of the Diseases Produced by It.

A sallow or yellow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots in face and other parts of body; dullness and drowsiness with frequent headache; dizziness, bitter or bad taste in the mouth, dryness of throat, and internal heat; pulsation, in many cases a dry teasing cough, with sore throat, unsteady appetite, raising of food, and a choking sensation in throat; distress, heaviness, bloated or full feeling about stomach and sides, pain in sides, back or breast, and about shoulders; colic, pain and soreness through bowels with heat, constipation, alternating with frequent attacks of diarrhœa; piles, flatulence, nervousness, coldness of extremities, rush of blood to head, with symptoms of apoplexy, numbness of limbs, especially at night, cold chills, alternating with hot flushes, kidney and urinary difficulties; female weakness and irregularities, with dullness, low spirits, unacceptability and gloomy foreboding. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time. All who use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for Liver Complaint and its complications are loud in its praise. Sold by all Druggists everywhere. 711

At this season of the year, when so many of our people are suffering from colds, we call attention to AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL as a sure cure not only for coughs and colds, but all affections of the lungs and throat. Having used it in our family for many years, we can speak from personal knowledge of its efficiency. There may be other remedies that are good, but in all our experience this has proved to be by far the best. Its qualities are uniform and wholly reliable. It is pleasant to take, and should be kept at command, by every family, as a protection against a class of complaints which seem harmless in the beginning, but become afflicting and dangerous if neglected.—[N. H. Register.]

Gov. Thos. E. Bramlette, of Louisville, Ky., has given three years to the building up of a Public Library in Louisville, which he intends shall be the best in the country. He is doing it by a series of Gift Concerts, the profits of which go to the Library. The third drawing distributed $300,000, and the fourth, which takes place March 31st, distributes $1,500,000. The drawing will certainly occur on the day named, and the 12,000 gifts distributed as set forth in advertisements.

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE

NO. 4 BULFINCH STREET, BOSTON.

When a thing is counterfeited, it is a proof of its excellence and popularity. The Peabody Medical Institute is a case in point. Founded in good faith many years ago, and the only establishment of the kind in the country, its success and ever-increasing popularity finally caused the name (Medical Institute) to be pirated and adopted by a lot of infamous quacks, empirics and pretenders, who have been endeavoring to cheat the public by sailing under a stolen flag. The founder of the Peabody Medical Institute can in no way be held responsible for the misuse of the name of a reputable and well-known curative establishment and legitimate medical institution, which has been from the start specially devoted to the treatment of nervous derangements and affections, from whatever causes proceeding. During its existence there have been issued from it several medical publications; quite recently a work on Diseases of the Nervous System, which have had almost a world wide circulation and popularity. These publications sufficiently attest the high character of the institution under whose patronage these medical works have been published. Meanwhile it is gratifying to know that several of the impudent charlatans, who have stolen its name to cover their nefarious practices, are getting their deserts in the penal institutions of the Commonwealth.—Boston Herald.

Local Matters.

The Independent Battalion.

The first annual reunion and supper of the Portsmouth Battalion, which is commanded by Major Edwin A. Tilton, was held at the Rockingham House on Friday evening—the anniversary of the organization of the corps. As is well known, the battallion was organized for Fourth of July escort, last year; and was enlisted for a year's service as city militia. The members have conducted themselves most creditably; and the decision of all guests on this occasion seemed to be, that the young men ought to be encouraged and sustained in their determination to preserve a permanent organization.

The only exercises on the occasion were those of the tables, in the beautiful dining room of the Rockingham. Maj. Tilton was placed at the head of one long table, and Mayor Marvin of the other. There were sixty-four of the gray uniforms of the Battalion filled, several members having left the city—and guests to make up the number of a hundred, comprising prominent citizens, with a few visitors from Massachusetts. Among the guests were Cols. W. H. Hackett and W. H. Size of the Governor's staff, Senator Hall (that is to be) of this city, several of the clergy, and representatives of the Massachusetts militia.

The whole affair was one of the most informal, sociable and pleasant we ever attended. Major Tilton acted as toastmaster, and handsomely answered the calls of the position; and right well was he supported by nearly all the speakers. The first sentiment, "the President," in absence of Postmaster Peirce, was responded to by national airs from Harlow's orchestra, which furnished good music for the evening. Col. Wm. H. Hackett, of the Governor's staff, spoke for "New Hampshire," and alluded especially to the interest shown by all citizens of Manchester in their famous Veterans corps, as compared with the apathy in such matters existing here.

Mayor Marvin responded to the "City of Portsmouth," and spoke highly of the Battalion and their performance of duty. He alluded to the fact that to the Adjudant General of the Massachusetts Militia, is the city and corps indebted for the loan of their arms.

Albert R. Hatch, Esq., responded to "the Law," showing the relation of the legal and military powers, and spoke earnestly, as did nearly all the other speakers, in favor of a State Militia. Among the humorous anecdotes, Mr. Hatch related that of the first bull run, when a bull of Col. Peirce's, in this city, several years ago, charged on a squad of military on South road, and drove them from their guns over into a field.

Lieut. Kramer of the Somerville Light Infantry, a native of this city, spoke for "Massachusetts" and her military.

Frank W. Miller responded for "the Press," referring to the patriotism of the early editors of Portsmouth, and the relation of the pen and sword. He closed with this sentiment:

The Press of Portsmouth: may it in the future as the past, ever be found in the van of progress; opposing all op-press-ions, aiding to sup-press all wrong, ready and able to im-press the people for liberty and right, and with them to press onward and upward. And may the pen never need but always merit, the protection of the sword.

Letters regretting inability to be present, were read from Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, E. G. Peirce, Jr., Rev. Canon Walsh, J. H. Kent, Esq., and others. Mr. Kent sent the following sentiment:

The Independent Battalion:—Equally ready to enjoy the delights of peace, or to suffer the fortunes of war. May the time be long before they are called upon to embrace the latter alternative.

Father Walsh also forwarded a sentiment, of which we regret our reporter did not procure a copy.

Maj. D. J. Vaughan, commander of "the Portsmouth City Guards," responded for that corps; and his pleasant remarks were well received, and repeatedly interrupted with queries. He closed with a sentiment to the Battalion.

Col. Wm. H. Size, of Gov. Stearns' staff, responded for the old "New Hampshire Militia," and being introduced as a one-armed soldier, (having recently broken his arm by a fall,) well sustained the humorous idea.

Maj. Tilton gave some reminiscences of a transient local military organization.

"The Pulpit, the Press and the Bar," called up Rev. Carlos Martyn, who has been engaged in all these callings, and is good at all. He said, alluding to Father Walsh's absence, that he had expected to hear a loud report for the clergy, from a Canon—a real Irish columbiad was called upon to speak; but in lack of that, he and his brothers present would do the best they could. He spoke pleasantly and well, as usual.

Rev. A. C. Hardy spoke for "the Pulpit in the Field;" and having been Chaplain of the N. H. 18th Vols., gave some allusions and anecdotes of the service and the cloth.

Capt. John H. Hutchinson, formerly of the Vermont Infantry, responded handsomely to "Our Veterans."

Rev. Dr. Alden responded handsomely and well for "the Church Militant."

Major Tilton made due acknowledgements to all who had assisted the Battalion in any way; and after the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the company, adjourned the meeting for a year. And thus closed a pleasant evening, during which the Independent Battalion gained new laurels and yet higher standing in the community.

Kittery.

Riverside Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Kittery, made a net of $475, at their Levee. One pleasing feature at the Levee was a presentation by the Lodge of a fireman's badge to Mr. George Stringer of this city for saving their charter at the late fire. It was presented by Mr. Calvin L. Hayes in a neat speech, which was responded to by Mr. Stringer in a few appropriate remarks. The articles which were disposed of by votes were distributed as follows: Webster's Unabridged Pictorial Dictionary to Albert H. Purinton; Past Grand jewels to P. G. Charles Chickering; quilts to Mrs. George O. Wilson and Miss Cora Mitchell. Of the articles disposed of by tickets, Mr. John C. Burnham received an "American" sewing machine, Mr. Dennis H. Shapleigh a marine view in oil colors, and Messrs. James Philbrick and Edwin Frost each a quilt. Number 16 ticket, the holder of which is supposed to be a resident of Portsmouth, drew the cuckoo clock.

Poconics.

Smith's Academy is a deserving institution and grows rapidly in public favor. We learn that the new term will commence with a largely increased attendance.

Assistant Surgeon P. M. Rixy has reported for duty on Receiving Ship Sabine.

Six sailmakers, two painters, and one laborer were discharged from the Equipment department at the Navy Yard on Saturday, and the riggers placed on half time.

Arrangements are made for two mails per day each way between this city and Dover.

—A libel suit has been brought against the Senatobia, (Miss.) Signel for maliciously commenting upon the size of the mayor's feet.

—Sneezing is very seldom heard in parlors now after the old folks have retired, for lovers bear in mind the receipt given by Dr. Brown-Sequard—that sneezing can always be stopped by pressing the upper lip—and act accordingly.

—The Dieppe police, warned by several recent calamities, have issued a notice to persons, requesting them, when a lady is in danger of drowning, to seize her by the dress, and not by the hair, which oftentimes remains in their grasp.

—An old man of 73, who had been in bonds of intemperance, was recently converted, and, when relating his experience, ascribed his first determination to reform to the remark of his little boy, who once brought in the old man's brandy bottle from its hiding place in a hay mow, saying: "I suppose some vagabond left it there." The word vagabond did the business.

—A member of the Montana legislature recently, answering a speech of one of his fellow-members, said: "Mr. Speaker, this is a democratic legislature, and it is a shame to permit a one-horse republican like Sanders to run it. No, sir, because the senator from Lewis and Clarke is gifted with a tongue as long as a curlew he mustn't think he can subdue and demolish all of us."

New Publications.

The March number of ST. NICHOLAS opens with a very useful article on Edward Jenner, by Clarence Cook. Elsie Alcott contributes a story, "Roses and Forget-me-nots;" Robert Dale Owen has a sketch of his boyhood, "Rascally Sandy;" there is a sea-side story, full of adventure and fun, by Noah Brooks; a sketch of Gulliver, the Lilliputian, and Gulp, by Donald G. Mitchell; a well illustrated story, "What the Storm Saw," by E. L. E. Ward; and a narrative true to nature, of a girl's adventures when "snowed in" on a Western prairie. A poem, "Elise Jack, the Giant-Killer," by J. S. Stacy, will delight both old and young. The three serials increase in interest, "Hippo's Troubles," by Olive Thorn, containing a remarkably well-told story of a poor, half-starved negro man, who accidentally found the key of his master's wine and provision cellar. A dog, named Bob, comes to the front under very favorable circumstances, in Frank R. Stockton's story, "What Might Have Been Expected;" and Jack Lazard and his friend George, in "Fast Friends," develop a genius for money-making. The illustrations are up to the usual high standard, and there are some very striking full-page pictures. The French story is unusually good, and is well illustrated. A "Letter Box" has been added to the attractions of the magazine.

THE INTERNATIONAL REVIEW for March contains articles on the Working Classes in Europe, the Transit of Venus, Upper Schools, Practical Work in Painting, Our National Currency, and Nationalism and Internationalism. Issued six times a year; subscription $6; A. S. Barnes & Co., New York, publishers.

The Mountains of Western North Carolina are the subject of Mr. Edward King's graphic "Great South" contribution to SCRIBNER'S for March; which is accompanied by a profusion of illustrations from sketches by Champney; Dr. Robinson discusses in the same number of the Women of the Arabs; and there is a brief account of the "Heirons of Washington," a very interesting little bit of history. Two articles of especial importance are anonymous papers on John Stuart Mill, and an unimpassioned, but not the less startling account of the "Credit Mobilier." There is "A Dream Story" by the author of "Patty;" and a curious tale entitled "The Chrysopsy;" a new serial by Miss Trafton's and Mrs. Davis' serials are continued, and there are poems by R. H. Stoddard, John Fraser, Anna C. Brackett, James T. Fields, and Joel Benton; Dr. Holland in his "Topics of the Time," discusses of "Literary Hindrances," "The Delusions of Doing," and "The Press and the Publishers." The Old Cabinet is full of "Misery," and in "Culture and Progress" is a notice of some length of the "New Poet," James Boyle O'Reilly.

SMITH'S ACADEMY
—AND—
Commercial College
FOUNDED 1874.

An institution for Young Ladies and Gentlemen intended to meet the requirements of Portsmouth and vicinity.

Instruction will be given in the Greek, Latin and modern languages and literature, including special attention to those studies required for admission to college. Book Keeping, Mathematics, and Penmanship will form the prominent features which their practical importance demands. The Natural Sciences will be included in what is intended to be a thorough and complete English course of instruction.

Mrs. E. M. Barrett, educated at Mt. Holyoke Seminary and well known as a successful teacher in schools in Massachusetts, will assist. Other competent teachers will be employed as the needs of the patrons may require. Spring term commences Monday, Feb. 16. Applications for admission can be made at the residence of the Principal, 31 Middle St. or at the Academy rooms in Mechanic's Block, Congress Street. LEWIS E. SMITH, A. M., Principal.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP
Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, scarching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline its shed prematurely.

AYER'S Hair Vigor, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops hair falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and restores surely its natural color when faded or gray. It invigorates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strong; dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

The New Orleans Mardi Gras.

C. C. Fulton, writing to the Baltimore American of the festivities attending the Mardi Gras at New Orleans, under date of the 18th, says:

The Carnival of Mardi Gras closed at daylight this morning, when the dancers at the masked balls ceased from very exhaustion, and are now sleeping off the fatigues of a most stirring day. I do not think that any other American city could get up and carry through with such perfection of detail in all its appointments so grand a spectacular scene, or join so heartily and enthusiastically in the enjoyment of a day of fun and frolic. The illuminated tableaus of the Mystik Krewe of Komus must have required months of labor in their arrangement, and a combined unity of purpose that seems truly surprising. It was all done so secretley that even the subject it was to illustrate was kept secret, and when they appeared on the streets no one knew where they came from, or from what direction they would approach the Clay Monument, which is the grand centre for everything in New Orleans. Who the parties were that represented all the principal characters in the tableaux was kept equally secret, and there are only vague surmises to-day as to their identity.

The throng of people on the streets last night during the progress of the torchlight procession was much greater than that of the day during the Rex display. Canal street was literally massed and blazing with light from the illuminations of the houses. Each tableau was the most perfect scene picture, and at various points on the route they were stopped and calcium lights thrown upon them. On each side of the stagings men arrayed in black dominoes carried blazing torches, giving abundance of light, and showing the elegant dresses of the characters to great advantage. When the procession had passed one point there was a general rush to meet them at some other crossing, and at times the screams of women and children in the crowd were quite fearful. The broad galleries in front of the houses were all massed with people, many of whom had brought their lunch-baskets with them and spent the whole day in waiting.

The ball of the Mystic Krew at the opera house was a grand and very select affair. Two very extensive tableaus were given on the stage before the dancing began, in which all the characters in the procession participated. The two lower tiers of the house were reserved entirely for ladies, and they appeared in full ball dress, to the number of about fifteen hundred, not a bonnet being visible in the house. Every available inch of space was occupied, and a richer display of fine dresses could not have been given even in New York. It was not distinguished for female beauty, but for rich apparel and good taste in its use the ladies of New Orleans are famous. Decollete dresses were the rule with those who had fine shoulders to display—perhaps too low for the taste of the more northern clime. At 11 o'clock, after the tableaux, the curtain rose, and all the guests of Comus, dressed in characters and masked, came forward. The ladies met them on the floor, and in a few minutes were flying round in a mystery waltz with shahs, kings, dukes, and cavaliers.

The peculiar secrecy of the Krew renders it very difficult to secure invitations to the ball. No one knows who to apply to, and all must wait their chances. The anxiety is consequently very great, and the ladies take care to inform their gentlemen friends of their desire to go, in hopes that some of them may possibly be members of the Mystic Krew. Strangers in the city are always given the preference in the distribution of tickets, which come through the Post-office without any indication as to who they are indebted to for them. Among the dancers were Lotta and Lydia Thompson, both of whom are filling engagements here. A gentleman cannot take a lady to these balls unless she has also received a ticket of invitation, nor can she take a gentleman unless the postman has also delivered him a ticket. They cannot be bought with money.

—A Georgia editor was bitten by a dog, "being evidently mistaken for a bone."

—A clergyman being invited to open a legislature with prayer, uttered the following ambiguous petition: "May corruption and sin of every form be as far from every member of this legislature as Thou art."

—Talking about upsetting sleighs, Wicks remarked to a young lady he was taking out to drive, "I always pick out the softest place I can when I upset my sleigh." She replied, "Why, I should think it would grow monotonous; always falling on your head."

—Now we know all about it! The Siamese twins were Xiphopoges of the class of Terata-anacatadidyma, and may be called, for short, Omphelopagus Xiphodidymus. Popular apostrophe to the Philadelphia faculty in chorus, "We thank thee, Jew, for teaching us that word."

—During Colonel Tom Scott's recent visit to St. Louis he was hailed on the street by a little boot-black with, "Boss, have your boots shined?" The colonel pleasantly shook his finger at him, saying, "My boy, I am no boss." The little waif swung his box over his shoulder, and, eyeing the great railroad king from head to foot, replied, "You're boss of your boots, ain't yer?"

—The New York court of appeals has supported a view taken by the English courts, but one which is opposed to the ruling of courts of some of the other States in the Union, in deciding that a passenger who buys a ticket bearing the words, "Good for the day only," must use it on that day or pay again. This will be interesting to the public and welcome to the railroads.
